LINDBERGH GETS THIRD RANSOM LETTER

LULL IS BROKEN AT NANZIANG BY BLOODY BATTLE

Victorious Tokyo Troops Are Occupying Zone About Shanghai.

10,000 FOES DEAD, JAPANESE DECLARE

Invaders Accuse Defenders of Opening Fire During Occupation of City.

Shanghai, Friday, March 4 (U.P.).—Chinese and Japanese troops were engaged in another bloody encounter at Nanziang at 10 a. m. today.

Japanese charged that Chinese entrenched at Wangtu, near Nanziang, had opened a withering fire as Japanese started occupation.

Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa, who arrived from Japan with the Eleventh Division, to take supreme command of the Japanese military activities around Shanghai, promptly ordered Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda's Ninth Division to attack Nanziang.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai, Friday, March 4 (A.P.).—The order to cease firing went up and down the whole Shanghai battlefront today from both the Japanese and Chinese commanders and after 35 days of warfare there was quiet.

Japan's military operation appeared finally to have been completed, with the victorious troops occupying a zone about the city much deeper than the 12½ mile area from which Tokyo originally demanded that the Chinese withdraw.

Unverified Chinese reports said fighting had broken out again near Liuho, village on the Yangtze River, about 20 miles north of Shanghai, in disregard of the orders. This seemed unlikely, however, and the Japanese denied the reports.

Shanghai Is Optimistic.

Shanghai, at least, with the warfare removed from its doorstep, breathed easier, and people talked of a return of normalcy.

Shops opened their boarded fronts somewhat wider, the smoke from burning Chapei had thinned, the sun was brighter and optimism reigned.

Only an occasional rifle barked this morning on the 20-mile front running from the southern bank of the Yangtze River down to Nanziang, on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway.

Two Japanese columns, one from the north and the other from the southeast, were consolidating the Japanese positions in order that an unbroken front might be presented to the enemy.

No Formal Armistice.

There was no formal armistice, but both the Japanese and Chinese commanders instructed their troops to cease hostilities unless the enemy attacked. The Chinese charged that early this morning, after the Japanese order had gone out, there was fighting—initiated by the Japanese—in the region of Liuho and near Nanziang, but Japanese headquarters announced that the entire front was quiet.

In the absence of any formal agree-

Buffalo Is Seeking Smith Delegates

Candidacy Announced by Another of Backers in District.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 3 (A.P.).—A movement to select Democratic national convention delegates from this section favorable to the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York, was disclosed today.

Philip A. Sullivan, former Supreme Court justice, announced his candidacy for delegate in the Forty-first District and asserted that efforts were being made to select Smith candidates also in the Fortieth and Forty-second Districts. Gerhard Lang, jr., also a candidate in the Forty-first District, previously had announced he favored Smith's candidacy.

Norman E. Mack, Democratic national committeeman, said Sullivan and Lang were the only independent candidates for delegates as far as he knew. While the organization delegates were not openly pledged in their adherence to the candidacy of Gov. Roosevelt, Mack said, they were believed to be all "Roosevelt men."

U. S. to Insist 9-Power Pact BeRecognized

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States will insist on formal recognition of the Nine Power Treaty by all the signatories concerned in any peace conversations growing out of the special session of the League Assembly of Nations or the Shanghai round-table conference, it became known here yesterday.

Secretary Stimson yesterday remained at his home in Woodley, receiving the reports of the Geneva conference. Japanese Ambassador Debuchi called at the State Department in the morning, but merely announced that his country had accepted the conditions of the truce.

Reports from London yesterday indicated that Great Britain would confine her representations to the general note of February 2 which dealt with the Shanghai situation only and avoided all mention of Manchuria. Secretary Stimson declined to accept these reports as constituting a painful photograph of the official British attitude.

There has been some little pique in State Department circles that the plainspoken invitation of Secretary Stimson's for corroborative action has yet to be accepted by any of the

U. S. WHEAT STOCKS VOTED TO AID NEEDY

House Passes Senate Bill to Use 40,000,000 Bushels to Relieve Hunger.

(Associated Press.)

Congress raised the lid of the swollen Government wheat bin yesterday for the Red Cross to take 40,000,000 bushels and distribute it among the unemployed.

If President Hoover approves, after differences between the House and Senate are reconciled, nearly one-quarter of the Farm Board's huge wheat stocks will be available for Nation-wide relief.

An overwhelming House vote of 344 to 2 made this possible yesterday. Two months ago the Senate voted 40,000,000 bushels to feed the hungry. Two weeks ago it allotted 5,000,000 bushels for the crop failure areas of Northwestern States.

The House agriculture committee bound these two measures together and under the spur of Democratic leaders reversed itself to approve by a 15 to 6 vote what formerly it had rejected, 14 to 9.

When consideration began on the floor, Representative Snell, the Republican leader, immediately indorsed the relief proposal, thereby removing partisanship from the debate and insuring the nearly unanimous vote.

As passed, the bill makes 40,000,000 bushels of stabilization wheat available to the Red Cross, to be released as demanded upon the approval of President Hoover. It remains available until May 1, 1933.

Besides feeding distressed people, the Red Cross may use the grain to feed livestock in the Northwestern States.

The Red Cross, or organizations designated by it, may mill the wheat

HOOVER'S STOCK TAKES RISE DUE TO RELIEF WORK

DEMOCRAT LEADERS BECOMING RESTIVE

Economy Efforts, for Which Foes Claim Credit, Have Heightened Chances.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A year from today, President Hoover will ride down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol, there to take part in the traditional inauguration ceremony. Will he be the principal or merely a witness in this ceremony? Will it be he who takes the oath, or will it be a Democratic successor?

Twelve months in advance of the inauguration, and eight months in advance of the presidential election, it is generally conceded that the Democrats have a better chance to capture the Presidency this time than they have had in sixteen years.

However, if Congress may be taken as a barometer of sentiment, two things may be stated as facts:

First, President Hoover's political stock is going up as a result of the economic legislative program that has been hurried through Congress.

Second, Democratic leaders and workers out in the States are getting restive, and are asking when the Democrats in Congress are going to put through something that bears their own label.

Turning of Tide.

These two statements are based on interviews with senators and representatives, Republican and Democratic, who are in close touch with what is going on and what is being said back home.

A few months ago, Republican politicians frankly admitted that the situation seemed hopeless, so far as Republican success in 1932 was concerned. The Democrats had captured the House, an almost infallible omen of defeat for the party in power. When Congress convened, unemployment was at its peak; banks were failing in all parts of the country, prices were tumbling and hoarding was beginning to frighten the administration.

As is always the case, the President was blamed.

Then came the big relief program. Working with war-time speed, Congress passed the various measures that the President had recommended—the bill creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, designed to aid weak banks; the bill to increase the capital of the Federal Farm Loan banks, a measure to help the farmers, and the Glass-Steagall bill, which expands credit and frees a vast amount of much-needed gold.

Hoover in Ascendancy.

In the meantime President Hoover has set up an organization whose task it is to discourage the hoarding of money.

At present economists are pointing to a number of hopeful signs. Bank

RECENT PHOTOGRAPHS OF VANISHED INFANT

HOME OF KENTUCKY GOVERNOR IS INVADED

Mob Damages Mansion in Protest Demonstration Against Sales Tax.

Frankfort, Ky., March 3 (A.P.).—A crowd of more than one hundred men and women forced their way into the executive mansion, frightened members of Gov. Ruby Laffoon's household and slightly damaged the furnishings late today during a demonstration here against the governor's 1 per cent general sales proposal.

Gov. Laffoon was not at home at the time, being in his office in the capitol nearby. Word of the demonstration was brought to him at the capitol by members of his household, who ran out a side door when the intruders forced their way past a Negro doorman.

Walking up the driveway that leads from the capitol to the mansion, the crowd went to the front door and when the doorman opened it, several men who appeared to be spokesmen, asked to see the "women folks," Gov. Laffoon said.

When Douglas Majors, the doorman, refused to let the crowd inside the mansion, he said, one of them offered him $40 if he would tell them where the governor was. He said they insisted the governor was hiding in the mansion.

On his refusal to let them in, Majors said, the men in the van of the crowd pushed him aside and walked into the reception room. They insisted, he said, on being given an audience by "the women folks."

Mrs. Laffon and the governor's two daughters, who lived with him, Miss Lella Laffoon and Mrs. Will Robinson, were not at home at the time.

The governor's two grandsons, Tommy Robinson, two and one half years old, and R. W. Robinson, 11, were home but were not molested.

"This is not the governor's house," one remarked. "It belongs to us because we paid the taxes to build it."

The disorder occurred while thousands of merchants from all parts of Kentucky were holding a mass meeting in the rain on the lawn in front of the State capitol, near the mansion. The meeting was in protest against the sales tax, which has passed the Kentucky house and is pending in the senate. It bears the governor's approval.

Vancouver, B. C., March 3 (A.P.).—Unemployed demonstrators stormed the city hall today, two of them forcing their way into the mayor's office.

Baby One of Few Things Which Have no Price Tag

By JOHN J. DALY

WHAT is a baby worth?
Well, they say you wouldn't give a nickel for a baby, and yet you wouldn't take a million dollars for one if it were yours.

A million dollars? All the money in the world, laid end to end, could not buy a baby belonging to the poorest parents.

A pair of baby hands clutching at its mother's breast, fingers entwined in heart-strings—that is the wealth of the universe. Rosy finger tips tapping a tattoo on a tired, wan cheek—there is the spark that rejuvenates.

Baby feet, a-patter on the floor—far more forceful than the rhythmic march of soldiers going to the wars, strong, booted feet that smash and smatter bridges, ruin roadways, destroy fields. A toddling baby would stop an army!

• • • •

A BABY'S voice, cooing, saying only da, da, da and ma, ma, ma—unintelligible utterances to the uninitiated—is sweeter by far than all the songs ever sung on the grand opera stages of all time, more melodious than the madrigal of philharmonic and symphonic orchestras, more compelling than the oratory of statesmen and patriots.

The smile of a baby—like the blessing of God—casts a benediction on all who come within its magic presence, a baby's laughter the real nepenthe that brings surcease from sorrow.

How much for a baby?

Millions for his majesty, in tribute; but not one penny in barter. Boy or girl, a baby has no price tag.

• • • •

STAR-FLUNG beams on a stilly night,
Never so lovely, serene, or bright
As the glance of a baby's eyes;
All of the beauty the heaven absorbs
Flashed in the gleaming of baby orbs
Like a meteor in the skies.

Laughter, a-throb in the baby mart,
Bursts like spring in a poet's heart.
The birds, and the buds, and the dew
Emblazon the borning of man's delight.
Where is the equal of such a sight,
As the race is born anew?

A helpless mite, see a mother hold,
Precious more than an emperor's gold,
The lordship of the land.
They only know what a world is worth
Who'd trade all gifts of a rich old earth
For the touch of a baby's hand.

Get you a glimpse of the glory glow,
The mystic vision, the soft halo
Enshrouding a babe the while—
And then bring on whatever you crave,
The bulky bullion of Mammon's cave,
And measure a baby's smile.

Mrs. Hoover Feels Anxiety Over Child

Sends Secret Service Agent Ashore to Learn News of Search.

Greencove Springs, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Great anxiety was felt by Mrs. Herbert Hoover today over the fate of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby and she sent a secret service agent ashore from the motorship Sequoia to receive latest news of the search.

He telephoned to Jacksonville and Associated Press dispatches, saying no definite trace of the child had been found, were read to him. This news, in turn, was relayed to Mrs. Hoover.

Palatka, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover arrived here today aboard the motorship Sequoia and embarked on a short tour of the city and surrounding places of interest. She was welcomed by Mayor Walter McNally and other city officials.

She was accompanied on the sightseeing tour by members of her party, including Mrs. Starke McMullen, Mrs. Edward Richard, Mrs. Mark Sullivan and Miss Mildred Hall, her secretary.

Kansas District G. O. P. Delegates Back Hoover

Wichita, Kans., March 3 (A.P.).—The Fifth Kansas Congressional District Republican Convention today indorsed the administration of President Hoover and instructed its two delegates to the national convention to support him for renomination.

The entire Kansas delegation is expected to vote for the renomination of Mr. Hoover and Vice President Curtis. Eight Hoover-Curtis district delegates already have been chosen.

Kidnapers May Use Mail to Make Deal

Persons Not Having Child, but Seeking Ransom, Guilty of Fraud.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Paradoxically enough, the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., may use the mails to arrange terms for his return without violating the postal laws, but those who send "crank" letters demanding ransom are guilty of using the mails to defraud.

Charles H. Clarahan, chief postal inspector of the New York District, explained today that while the act of kidnaping is a crime the use of the mails to communicate ransom terms is not.

"However," he added, "if anybody who is innocent of the kidnaping seeks to communicate terms and collect money, that is a fraud."

Child, Trapped in Field Of Burning Sedge, Dies

Franklin, N. C., March 3 (A.P.).—Trapped in a blazing field of broom sedge near her home here, Elizabeth Boston, 8, received burns from which she died today. Melvia, her 6-year-old sister, was badly burned in a heroic effort to save the elder girl by tearing her clothes from her body.

Pursued Masked Suspect Saved From Roof's Ledge

Policemen, Leaving Apartment House After Abandoning Chase, Look Up and See Accused Robber Clinging to Ridge Six Stories Above Ground.

Three policemen late last night saved the life of a man clinging desperately to the ledge of an apartment house roof, six stories above the pavement, but the man will face an attempt robbery charge in payment. He was captured after he had played hide and seek in the darkened halls of the Alton Apartments, at 1445 Park road northwest, with the three minions of the law.

Private R. F. Goodwin, of the Second Precinct, was sent to the apartment when a man telephoned the station that he had seen a masked man enter the Alton. Private Goodwin found all the lights in the halls and on the stairways had been turned out. Then he caught a glimpse of a form on the stairway and the hide and seek game started.

Private Goodwin chased the man up the stairs to the roof and back down again. The man disappeared for a time, but the policeman caught another glimpse of him and the chase started anew. This time Private Goodwin, who is portly, lost his wind, and was forced to sit down for a moment to mop his brow.

Just then Privates R. F. McCarty and R. S. Bryant, who had been sent to the apartment house to investigate another matter, stepped from one of the suites. Private Goodwin outlined his troubles and the trio began a new search for the masked man.

They failed to find him, and concluded he had gotten away. As they left the apartment, Goodwin happened to look up. He started in horror as he saw his quarry, six floors above the street, clutching for dear life to the ledge of the roof.

He and McCarty dashed to the roof and attempted to pull the man back to safety. They failed, and the man gave every evidence of being unable to hold on very much longer. They shouted for Bryant, who had re-

NOTE'S CONTENTS ARE GUARDED AS HUNT CONTINUES

Flier's Hope of Dealing Directly With Kidnapers Fades as His Offer to Pay Is Announced.

RADIO APPEAL IS BROADCAST FOR FAMOUS CHILD'S RETURN

Second Missive Demanding Payment Is Regarded as Work of "Crank;" More Warnings Are Mailed; 325 Persons Are Questioned.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Hopewell, N. J. (Friday), March 4—A promising clew to the kidnapers of America's most publicized baby, Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., developed early today from the disclosure that a third ransom letter, in handwriting similar to the first, had been received by the anxious father.

Its contents were kept as much a guarded secret as those of the one found pinned to the sill of the window through which the abductors fled with the 20-month-old child Tuesday night.

One other note came through the mail yesterday, making three in all. While investigators displayed concern about the other two, they quickly disclosed the text of the second, after handwriting experts had found there was no comparison between the writing in it and the first one.

Threatened Lindbergh.

This note, apparently the work of a "crank," threatened Col. Lindbergh himself if he made public its contents.

While ready and anxious to pay the $50,000 ransom demanded for the return of his curly-haired young heir, it became increasingly apparent that the famous flier had not succeeded in establishing a contact with the kidnapers, and neither had police.

A national radio appeal last night, which broadcasting officials said was authorized by an intimate friend of Col. Lindbergh, said:

"Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh not only wish but hope that whoever is in possession of their child will make every effort to communicate with them."

Clews Are Many.

The mass of new clews and leads which held the attention of investigators last night included:

A communication from a former convict in Hudson County which Inspector Harry Walsh described as a "hot tip." Four of the crack detectives stationed at the Lindbergh home were dispatched to an unnamed city during the afternoon to investigate. They had not returned late last night and officials here refused to discuss that angle of the case.

A report that Frank W. Kelly, a lumber dealer, had recognized the wood used in the ladder left behind by the kidnapers as part of a house he had recently torn down. Later, however, Kelly was unable to identify the lumber.

A tip from a Union County man, whose name officials refused to disclose, that two friends had threatened two months ago to kidnap the Lindbergh child. Detectives were still working last night on this angle.

Another deluge of postal cards bearing ominous warnings poured into the mails.

One posted in South Orange, N. J., read: "Baby will die." It originally

CAR SEEN IN VIRGINIA MAY FURNISH CLEW

Search Started for Couple With Baby; One of Many Leads in Inquiry.

(Associated Press.)

From the hills of Virginia to the rocky coast of Massachusetts an alert citizenry and a vigilant police kept watch yesterday for some trace of kidnaped Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr.

Hopewell, N. J., March 3 (U.P.).—An ominous quiet settled over the Charles A. Lindbergh estate tonight, and from a source close to the distraught colonel the United Press learned that he has now abandoned hope of his kidnaped son being returned to him by the abductors, but believes there is "better than an even chance" that the infant will be abandoned.

Richmond, Va.—The Times-Dispatch says it was informed by Mrs. M. A. Cogbill, wife of the Commonwealth's attorney of Chesterfield County, that at about 6 o'clock last night a man, woman and baby traveling in a car bearing New York license number 3L-97-N. Y., stopped at her home and asked for lodging. Mrs. Cogbill said the man came to her door and asked for lodging for himself, his wife and their "sick baby." Informed that she did not take lodgers, he insisted he had stopped there on a trip South a year ago and then asked if she had any New York papers. She told him she had and went to get them. She returned to the door to find him gone.

Meanwhile, however, she had observed the license number on the automobile. She said the car was blue and either a sedan or an open car with curtains up. State motor police were notified and at once began a search for the machine, which was headed toward the North Carolina border.

Boston—A woman, about 60, posted an air mail letter to Col. Lindbergh saying his son was held by two men and a woman at a house in "Provincetown, N. J." The reference was

Import and Export Tax Is Increased by Spain

Madrid, March 3 (A.P.).—The National Assembly passed tonight a bill increasing import and export duties between 20 and 30 per cent. The measure raised the import duty on automobiles to 100 pesetas ($7.66) a metric ton. Other import tariffs, per metric ton, under the measure include petroleum and gasoline, 2 pesetas; phosphates, 1 peseta; cattle, 14 pesetas.

Taxes on the production of alcohol, beer, and explosives and on the consumption of gasoline and tobacco also were increased.

WORD FROM SPIRITS PROMPTS BABY NOTE

Woman Admits She Mailed Letter to Lindbergh on Medium's Advice.

Boston, March 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Jennie McLeod, 60, lodging house keeper, admitted tonight, police said, she mailed a letter here today to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh purporting to disclose that his kidnaped son was being held near Princeton, N. J.

New Jersey authorities, after checking the address given in the missive, discarded the letter as a clew.

Mrs. McLeod confessed mailing the letter with air mail postage and that it had been given her by Henry G. Wilson, a medium who held seances in the McLeod lodging house, police said.

Police placed no charge against the woman but immediately began a search for Wilson and Mrs. McLeod's sister for questioning.

Police and postal inspectors at first were inclined to believe the letter genuine and had telephoned the message to Col. Lindbergh at Hopewell, N. J.

Confession Is Claimed.

The Boston Evening American, in a copyrighted story, says Wilson, a self-styled clairvoyant in the South End District, confessed to two of its reporters that he wrote the letter.

The American says Wilson said he was a "Christian spiritualist" and had no basis for the letter's content other than a psychic message "through Indian control."

After receiving word that New Jersey authorities had investigated the information in the letter, the Boston police gave out its text. It read as follows:

"My Dear Colonel Lindberg:

"I'm rushing this information to you for you to act upon in all good faith. If I were to attempt to explain to you how this information came into my possession you probably would be skeptical and not act upon it. I urge you to do so.

"The information is that your son is held by two men and a woman at 123 Temple street, Provincetown, N. J. I pray God you will find this information as given and you will recover your precious little boy.

"Sincerely yours,

"A great admirer and sympathizer."

Another Death Threat.

South Orange, N. J., March 3 (A.P.). A penny postcard, addressed in the same manner as the one found in Newark yesterday, was mailed to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh late today. It was found in a box at the corner of Irvington avenue and Prospect street and was turned over to the police.

Like the card mailed in Newark, the one today was addressed to "Chas. Linberg." On the back it had three words—"Baby will die."

The printing was crudely done and was identical to that on the Newark card which aroused all Newark yesterday. A postman picked it out of the collection in the box at 4:45 p. m. and police began their investigation three-quarters of an hour later.

Police discovered that the message originally read "baby is dead" and that the last two words had been erased and the words "will die" had been penciled over them.

Like the card found yesterday, the "J" in the initials of the State was reversed.

Although police said they believed both cards were mailed by a "crank" they were making diligent efforts to trace the sender.

Third Card Investigated.

Auburn, N. Y., March 3 (A.P.).—A postcard addressed to "Charles A. Lindberg, Hopewell, N. J.," was intercepted by a postal clerk here late today. Immediately afterward State police were ordered to watch all roads radiating from Auburn and halt all automobiles traveling away from this central New York city.

The message on the card, printed in pencil, said:

"Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close look out."

The Auburn chief of police said he compared the card with newspaper photographs of the card intercepted yesterday at Newark, N. J., which also was printed in pencil. He said he did not think the printing was the work of the same person, although there were some points of similarity, in the size of the printing, the spelling and the fact that there was no punctuation on either card. The Newark card had the "J" in N. J. inverted. The Auburn writer did not invert his J.

At the request of New Jersey State police photostatic copies of the card were made and sent by airmail to Hopewell.

Lindbergh Baby Funds Promoter Is Arrested

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Posing as the promoter of a fund to help recover the Lindbergh baby, Harry L. Davis, of Detroit, was arrested today after he had accepted a contribution of $100.

Davis, who said he was a salesman, appeared in the office of Walter B. Cook, an undertaker, and stated he was collecting contributions to hire the best detectives in the hunt for Lindbergh, jr. Many prominent men were giving from $100 to $500, he said, and Cook agreed to contribute. When Davis returned he was met by police.

Finland's Fascist Uprising Is Fading

Communication Lines Are Restored as Desertions Sap Rebel Ranks.

Helsingfors, March 3 (A.P.).—Government officials expressed confidence tonight that the Fascist march on the capital with demands for stronger policies against Communism would collapse before the week is over.

There have been numerous desertions from the Fascist ranks as a result of the steadfast loyalty of the civil guard, it was said, and telephone and telegraph service, cut off between the capital and outlying sections, has been restored.

The Associated Press correspondent drove through the snowdrifts today to the rebel camp at Riihimaki, seeking a statement from the leaders, but was forcibly ejected from their headquarters.

"We want no American reporters here," they told him. When he returned to his car the windows had been smashed.

Lindberghs Can Only Wait As Hunt for Baby Goes On

Parents Are Powerless to Act After Offer to Pay Kidnapers $50,000 Ransom Fails to Bring Return of Child.

Lindbergh Farm, Hopewell, N. J., March 3 (U.P.).—Sitting and waiting. In their great, rambling house that seems strangely empty to them despite the tramping of detectives and the hurrying of troopers, the Lindberghs are doing that—and nothing more. Sitting and waiting.

Tonight, 48 hours after the kidnaping of their son, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., there is nothing more they can do. They have done everything humanly possible to bring their child back. Now they can only sit and wait.

In the two days since the most famous baby in the world was stolen from the crib where he lay asleep, Col. Lindbergh has published to the world his willingness—eagerness—to pay the $50,000 ransom demanded for the return of his son.

He had cleared his grounds of curious hordes in order to provide free access to the kidnapers—if they will negotiate. He has demanded the withdrawal of rewards offered for the capture of the criminals.

He has authorized the broadcasting to the world of his willingness to deal, to pay any amount required, to make any promises for the safety of his tormenters. He has helped trace, first hopefully and then desperately, all the manifold clues that have presented themselves.

Now all he can do is sit and wait; sit and wait. The theories are left to others—to the detectives gathered here from great Eastern cities, to the criminologists who have spent two days analysing the crime, and to newspaper speculation. And some of these theories, advanced by students of psychology and criminology are too dramatic, too horrible for their minds to dwell upon.

There is the theory, for example, offered by those who see in the kidnaping the act of a person criminally insane. This theory is supported by the following evidence:

The crime is of such magnitude that it could be contemplated only by a person of tremendous criminal imagination.

It was so cunningly conceived and executed that it bears the stamp of an unusual mentality—A "genius" of the perverted, crooked type.

Demand Called Small.

The modest "ransom demands," $50,000, indicate that money is a secondary consideration. The kidnapers could have asked ten times that sum.

And yet, if this theory is tenable, there is still hope, and this hope was expressed by Col. Lindbergh as he stood, his face lined and seamed with care, in his living room late today.

The colonel believes, a close friend advised the United Press, that the world's horror at the deed, and the hue and cry that have been raised will strike fear into the hearts of the kidnapers.

If that happens and they abandon their hope of exacting a ransom for the baby's safe return, they will unburden themselves of the infant and leave it, "alive and well," in some public place, whence he could quickly be returned to his parents.

Lindbergh Talks to Aids.

Tonight, Col. Lindbergh could be seen, standing at the window of his living room, his rumpled hair silhouetted against the bright lights, talking to ten men in plain clothes, gathered around him. One wing of the house was dark. There were no lights in the baby's room.

The hurry and bustle and hectic activity of the past day were gone. The household had settled into an atmosphere of calm waiting. There were no reporters there, for their deadline had been moved a mile and a half from the entrance to the estate.

Upstairs, comforted by the presence of her mother, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, dry-eyed but wan and pallid, was sitting and waiting. Just sitting and waiting.

That is all the Lindberghs can do.

THIRD RANSOM NOTE RECEIVED BY PARENTS OF KIDNAPED BABY

said "Baby is dead," but the last two words had been changed.

Another found in the Elizabeth, N. J., postoffice, read: "Kindly follow instructions in next letter. Baby is safe. Well taken care of. Don't worry. If any harm comes to us, harm will come to baby. Follow instructions carefully."

A third, intercepted at Auburn, N. Y., bore this message:

"Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close look out."

"Cranks" Are Blamed.

Investigators were inclined to believe all were the work of "cranks," but efforts were being made to trace all the senders. The South Orange card corresponded in several details with one found in a Newark mailbox Wednesday.

More than 325 persons, many of them employes or former employes of the Lindberghs and Morrows, were paraded through the Lindbergh garage, where all the law enforcement agencies working on the case had set up a consolidated headquarters.

Betty Gow, the nursemaid, who discovered the empty crib, and her predecessor, Marie Cummings, were among those subjected to a rigid examination.

After they had left cablegrams were sent to Scotland Yard asking British detectives to check up on the past of Miss Gow, and also of Ollie Wheatley, the Lindbergh butler.

The aviator-father, Gov. Harry Moore said earlier in the day, "expects something to happen any minute."

But the governor quickly made it clear that he knew of no foundation for such an expectation; that no contact had been made with the kidnapers by either police or the Lindberghs; that investigators had succeeded merely in fixing the approximate hour of the abduction and deciding two persons were responsible.

"What," he was then asked, "is the basis for Col. Lindbergh's expectation that something will happen any minute?"

"Oh, I guess it's just psychic," he replied.

Refuses to Cancel Search.

However, Col. Lindbergh refused to consider a suggestion that the spectacular search be called off and an appeal made, on a no-questions-asked basis, for the return of the blue-eyed, 20-month-old child who was snatched from its sick bed Tuesday.

Late in the day police disclosed receipt by Col. Lindbergh of a second ransom demand. The letter postmarked New York and unsigned called for payment of $50,000.

Handwriting experts immediately sought to determine whether it was written by the same person who scribbled the note left pinned to the window sill of the nursery the night of the kidnaping.

The contents of the second letter were made public, but the authorities continued to withhold the text of the first note, which was understood also to demand $50,000.

Many Clews Valueless.

Clews and possible leads developed and exploded with the passing of each minute. Nearly 2,000 letters, authorities said, had been received by Col. Lindbergh from all parts of the country, apparently written by "cranks" offering assistance and information purporting to come from the kidnapers.

The Lindbergh garage was converted into a police substation and by nightfall approximately 325 persons had been led in for the most rigid sort of questioning.

Not a step was being overlooked by the smoothly organized detective machinery that might be productive of some hint, some indication of who stole the world's most famous baby.

Miss Betty Gow, the nursemaid who discovered the empty crib Tuesday night, and her predecessor, who was discharged, were rigidly questioned in what John J. Toohey, secretary to the governor, called an attempt to determine whether the abduction was an "inside job."

All employes of the Lindberghs and the Morrows were fingerprinted and questioned. A complete check also was being made of their past history.

"There is no reason, however, to suspect any employe, Toohey said.

Two fingerprints, not sufficient to be definitely classified, were found on the pane of the window through which the baby was taken. They were studied by experts.

While the business-like little group of State troopers and crack detectives were working in the garage, beside fifteen newly installed telephones, the mother who had lost her only child paced up and down in the big hilltop house.

Her own mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, was with her, and so were many close friends, all trying to keep her mind off the one subject she could not forget.

Occasionally she was seen in the now-deserted nursery, passing and repassing the window through which her son had been taken.

The governor's secretary said Mrs. Lindbergh had no intention of leaving her Sourland Hill home for the quiet of her mother's residence in Englewood. She and Mrs. Morrow will remain here, Toohey said.

Last night Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had one hour of sleep, but Toohey said they were both cheerful and hopeful when he saw them, in spite of their weariness. Last night's rest was the first the young father had had since the kidnaping.

The colonel, who had blazed a way fearlessly across a dark ocean, sought relief from the strain of helpless waiting by going for an aimless walk through the woods of his estate with his shaggy-haired dog at his heels.

Yesterday he had sloshed through those same thickets in the hope of stumbling on a clew. Today it was simply for relaxation.

Text of Kidnap Note.

The text of the second kidnap note read:

"You read this and keep your mouth closed. Don't open your trap to a living soul. If you do, it will be your last tale. Your father has plenty of money, so do as you are instructed. If you do, no harm will come to you. You know the fate of the Smith girl, who received a similar letter and did contrary to our instructions by making it known to her friends and her father. She was dropped out of the picture, and just so will you if you tell anybody about the contents of this letter.

"We want $50,000, and we will forward instructions for the delivery of same.

"Do not set a trap, or the price will be high and the penalty severe."

The "Smith girl" phrase may have referred to Frances St. John Smith, of New York, who disappeared from Smith College in January, 1928. Her body was found in the Connecticut River in March, 1929. Medical authorities and police investigators pointed out they were certain she was a suicide.

Also both the father of Col. Lindbergh, once a Minnesota representative, and the father of his wife, Senator Dwight Morrow, are dead.

Hold Two Persons Responsible.

Gov. Moore, in explaining why police had decided two persons took part in the abduction, pointed out that the window of the nursery from which the Lindbergh heir was taken is "pretty narrow" and that it would have been difficult for any one to climb through it while holding a baby.

"The police think," he continued, "that one of the kidnapers entered the nursery and the other waited at the top of the ladder. Then the baby was handed through the window to the man outside."

He said the time of the abduction had been narrowed down to between 8:30 and 9:15 p. m. Col. Lindbergh came home at 8:30, using the same road the kidnapers must have used. There was no car in the road at that time. At 9:15 he went to his desk, which is under the nursery. If a ladder had been raised to the nursery window then, he would have seen it. He remained at the desk until the nurse screamed that the baby was missing.

Malone Declines Part In Quiz by Sirovich

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Dudley Field Malone today sent Dr. William I. Sirovich, chairman of the House committee on patents and copyrights, a telegram declining to serve as professional adviser in the committee's inquiry into present-day theatrical criticism.

MRS. DONNELLY ASKS DEATH FOR KIDNAPER

Woman Held by Abductors in December Points Out Horrors of Crime.

Editor's note—What should be done about kidnaping? Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy Kansas City garment manufacturer, kidnaped and held for $75,000 ransom last December, gives in this article written for the Associated Press the views of one who has first-hand knowledge of this growing type of crime. Besides her business training she has a background of national and State Democratic politics. She actively is seeking to bring to justice the men who abducted her, but obtained no ransom.

By MRS. NELL DONNELLY.

Kansas City, March 3 (A.P.).—Society is challenged by the underworld in the series of recent kidnapings.

The audacity of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping this week shows there is no limit to what the criminal element will do.

I know wealthy women here in Kansas City who have not stirred outside their homes at night even with chauffeurs to guard them since I was kidnaped and held for ransom. They are intimidated by the abduction of myself and others.

Kidnaping is the most terrifying experience. From the time my captors hit me on the head after forcing my chauffeur and me to drive away from my own home at 6 o'clock one afternoon last December, I realized they would hurt me physically at will and would kill me without hesitation if that would serve their purpose or help them to escape.

Death Penalty Urged.

I was so incensed that I felt that whatever happened I wanted to bring those men to justice.

The extreme penalty for convicted kidnapers should be death, but I believe circumstances and conditions should govern cases as they do in murder. The death penalty is the one most forceful weapon to protect society against the underworld.

I have two lines of thought about the legislation pending in Congress which would make kidnaping a Federal offense. First, I would say that the States should be able to take care of their own affairs.

My attitude is, also, that since the failure of the Federal Government to enforce prohibition, the Federal law doesn't mean as much as it used to, and might be equally as ineffective in curbing kidnaping.

When I was growing up the Federal law meant something. It was generally felt that if Federal authorities got after you, you might as well give up. I don't believe people feel that way now.

Responsible Jurors Urged.

With all the kidnaping and crime generally that has been reported lately, it seems to me that prosecutors must get responsible men to serve on juries. Many men who can't spare time for jury service do find time for much less important things.

A jury failed to convict the first man tried in connection with my abduction. He is Paul Scheidt, who confessed that he rented to the kidnapers the filthy place where I was held two days while former Senator James A. Reed and other friends tried to effect my release.

Paul Scheidt admitted he knew his house was to be used to hold someone who would be kidnaped. Yet the jury could not reach a verdict. To thwart such things as this we must have juries that will convict persons involved in any way in kidnaping.

Prohibition Given Blame by Moffett

Extends Sympathy to Flier and Wife and Offers Aid of Bureau.

Prohibition, which has allowed the concentration of wealth in the hands of the criminal classes, was blamed yesterday for the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy Department. Admiral Moffett, who is a close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh, yesterday extended the sympathy of the bureau and offered to do whatever he could in assisting in locating the child.

It is significant that Al Capone was able to offer a reward for the return of the child from his jail cell, Admiral Moffet said. No mother can feel safe as long as such a condition obtains, he declared.

Apart from the millions of dollars the Government is losing in revenue, prohibition has enabled persons who never had money before to become millionaires, according to Admiral Moffett. Only by abolishing prohibition can kidnaping and similar crimes be curbed, he asserted.

Death for Kidnapers In Carolina Is Sought

Columbia, S. C., March 3 (A.P.).—The maximum penalty in South Carolina for kidnaping would be death, under a bill introduced in the House today by Representative E. B. Friday, Orangeburg.

Life imprisonment now is the most severe punishment.

State Measure Urges Death for Kidnapers

Boston, March 3 (A.P.).—A bill providing the death penalty for kidnaping and similar offenses was filed in the House of Representatives today by Representatives Daniel P. Day, of Hopkinton, and Harry C. Mohr, of Cambridge.

Food and Hotel Prices Soar in Hopewell Boom

Hopewell, N. J., March 3 (A.P.). The kidnaping of 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., shocked the Nation and shocked Hopewell, too, but a boom's a boom, and Hopewell has it.

Overpopulated overnight, the tiny town has hiked the rates, or, rather, is hiking the rates, for every trainload of newspaper reporters arriving from Philadelphia or New York places new premium on the prices.

Ham and eggs, once 30 cents, now 75 cents. Hotel rooms, $5—take it or leave it. Taxicab fare, how much have you got?

Even the bootleggers have the spirit, and applejack is going up where expense accounts won't stretch.

Folks in the outlying section were cautious, as one New York photographer who knocked at a farmhouse door at night to inquire his way learned. The farmer met him at the door with a pistol in his hand. His wife stood behind with a double-barreled shotgun.

KIDNAPERS PUZZLE TO PSYCHIATRISTS

One Group of Criminals That Experts Are Unable to Classify.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Kidnapers, Dr. Amos T. Baker, Sing Sing Prison psychiatrist, said today, comprise the one group of criminals that experienced penologists are unable to catalog.

"In the mental twists actuating a kidnaper, we can only theorize," he explained.

He said that while prison psychiatrists are able to analyze the habits, mental reactions and other peculiarities of most criminals, they have never been able to compile much data on kidnapers, principally because few of them get to prison.

Ransom Often Is Motive.

"In the kidnaping of infants," he continued, "the first motive is generally the desire of getting the ransom, which is apparent in the Lindbergh case.

"Criminal research indicates kidnaping is one of the rarest crimes, particularly when young children are snatched from their parents. In this day of racketeers, the abduction of adults has become a new underworld activity, but there is little similarity between that and stealing small children.

"The loss of a child often causes women to kidnap the infants of others, a mental derangement caused by the dominating passion of mother-love.

"Jealousy and hate are all motives for the abduction of children. Repressed maternity, loss of a child or envy influence women kidnapers.

Difficult to Identify.

"Then there is the moron type which now and then horrifies the world.

"As an illustration of the envy motive behind infant abduction, there was the celebrated Baby Clark case of 30 years ago. The baby was snatched from his carriage on Riverside drive.

"The city was in an uproar. For weeks police searched fruitlessly. Finally an arrest was made and the child returned safely to its parent.

"The kidnaper had been rejected as an applicant for the police department. He concocted the scheme of kidnaping a baby so he could finally return it, claiming brilliant detective work and shaming the police department.

"In this instance the police arrested him, recovering the child before the kidnaper carried out his intention of returning it.

"These are rare instances; They do not afford the psychiatrist with definite characteristics which identify the kidnaping criminal."

De Valera Thanks U. S. Supporters

Says They Have Helped Cause of Independence in Ireland.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Friday, March 4 (A.P.).—Eamon de Valera, whose Fianna Fail (Republican) party won the recent Free State election, broadcast by radio this morning an appreciation to Irish friends in the United States for their support of the cause of Irish independence.

The Republican leader, who is expected to be the next president of the Free State's National Council, said the loyalty and support of many thousands from New York to San Francisco and from Chicago to New Orleans had brought the cause of Irish independence far on the road to victory.

De Valera was dubbed "the George Washington of Ireland" in cablegrams received from friends in the United States when his victory in the general election became certain. "The Irish Republicans of the District of Columbia salute you as the George Washington of Ireland," said one.

Prayers for Child's Safety Offered at Mount St. Alban

Prayers for the safety of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., and his speedy restoration to his parents, have been offered at all services in Washington Cathedral and in the Chapel of St. Alban, the National Cathedral School for Boys, since the news of the baby's kidnaping was received at Mount St. Alban, it was announced today by a member of the cathedral staff in behalf of Bishop James E. Freeman, who is out of the city.

At the celebration of the Holy Communion in the Chapel of the Resurrection this morning, the Rev. William L. DeVries, Pd. D., D. D., canon and precentor of the Cathedral, offered an appropriate prayer for Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh and their infant son, and then followed with this intercession taken from the Book of Common Prayer, "For Persons Under Affliction:"

"O merciful God and heavenly Father, Who hast taught us in Thy Holy Word that Thou dost not willingly afflict or grieve the children of men, look with pity, we beseech thee, upon the sorrows of thy servants for whom our prayers are offered. Remember them, O Lord, in mercy, imbue their souls with patience, comfort them with a sense of Thy goodness, lift up Thy countenance upon them and give them peace; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

PLEA MADE FOR U.S. KIDNAP AUTHORITY

Cochran Wants Aid Like in Lindbergh Case for Every Mother.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, appealed over the radio yesterday for a Federal anti-kidnaping law "to assure every mother that her child will be accorded the same attention from the Government of the United States as the President provided in the Lindbergh case."

Cochran, who is author of a bill to establish Federal jurisdiction over interstate trafficking in abduction, said President Hoover had no authority for putting Department of Justice agents to work on the Lindbergh baby case, but added:

"God knows, I would never object to the President taking this action. I commend him even though he had no authority. But yesterday another child was kidnaped, this time in Ohio. What I seek to do is to assure every mother that her child will be accorded the same attention from the Government of the United States as the President provided in the Lindbergh case."

Offered Navy Plane Aid.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, meanwhile offered Col. Lindbergh all facilities of the Navy's air service if it could be of assistance in finding the kidnaped child.

The admiral's message expressed the condolences of the bureau and the hope that the child would be safely returned.

Using the Lindbergh kidnaping as an illustration, Cochran discussed the workings of the present law and the changes that would be made under his bill to make it a capital offense to kidnap a person and move that person from the jurisdiction of the State wherein he was abducted.

"The child was kidnaped close to the New Jersey border line," he said. "Say the New Jersey State police are on the job and have information that the baby is being taken toward New York. They follow the trail, arrive at the State line and there the jurisdiction of the New Jersey police ends.

Cites Benefits of Plan.

"If we had a Federal law to cover kidnaping, a Department of Justice agent could be called upon to aid the police and when the State line was reached, he could proceed across the boundary, taking the pursuing police with him and follow the criminals. This because the Federal jurisdiction did not stop at the State line. As it is now the pursuing police must stop at the State line. They must contact the local authorities of the adjoining States who would then take up the trail."

Cochran emphasized that the Federal Government would not be asked to take over the police work of the State, but only to furnish a way for the State police to accompany a Federal agent into an adjoining State.

He added that his bill would also compel the attendance of witnesses who now are making escape across State lines.

War against organized kidnapers was urged before the House yesterday by Representative Cooper (Republican), Ohio.

Cooper recalled that within ten hours of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, a similar crime was perpetrated in his State.

Action on the Cochran bill to make interstate kidnaping a Federal crime was deferred by the House judiciary committee.

The measure again will come up for discussion Tuesday.

Lindbergh's Baby Is Called Apt Pupil

Aunt Says He Counts and Understands Simple Sentences.

New York, March 3 (U.P.).—Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., is able to count the steps he climbed and to understand simple sentences, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, the missing baby's aunt, said today. Miss Morrow, who is principal of the Elizabeth Morrow Nursery in Englewood, said her nephew is a "smart school pupil."

"He used to come to the school a great part of the time, and play with the other children. He would play in the swings and slide on the slides, and was always very cute and lively. He was the youngest child at the school. He was not enrolled, but enjoyed being with other children," she said.

Close friends of the Lindberghs said the youngster calls his father "Daddy," his mother "Mum-Mum" and the nurse "Betty."

NUMEROUS CLEWS FAIL TO AID SEARCHERS IN HUNT FOR BABY

believed to be to Provinceline road, Princeton, N. J. As the woman was being sought the Boston American, in a copyrighted story, said Henry G. Wilson, self-styled clairvoyant, admitted writing the letter. He said he obtained information through "Indian control" from a woman whose sister mailed the letter.

Princeton, N. J.—No such address as the one mentioned in the Boston letter could be found on Provinceline road. Authorities discarded the letter as a clew.

South Orange, N. J.—A penny postal card, similar to the one mailed in Newark Wednesday to Col. Lindbergh, was dropped in a mail box here. Like the other one, it was addressed to "Chas. Linberg." On the back it had three words, "Baby will die."

Auburn, N. Y.—A postcard addressed to "Charles A. Linberg" was intercepted by a postal clerk. It read, "Baby taken good care of, look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close, look out."

Asbury Park, N. J.—Coast Guard boats searched up and down the Jersey Coast for a fast 30-foot cruiser, after a rumrunner reported he had heard a baby cry on the craft.

Washington.—War against organized kidnapers was urged before the House by Representative Cooper (Republican), Ohio. The House judiciary committee deferred until Tuesday action on the bill to make interstate kidnaping a Federal crime.

New York.—A member of the Lindbergh household looked over rogues' gallery pictures. Three New Jersey police officials conferred with Police Commissioner Mulrooney. Detective Sergt. James Finn, friend of Col. Lindbergh, who often has acted as his bodyguard, went to the Lindbergh home to act as the commissioner's representative, and had a long interview with Col. Lindbergh. Broadcasts for two cars, each containing a baby, were sent out by police. Bishop Manning asked all Episcopal clergy to offer prayers for the safe return of the kidnaped child.

Pittsburgh—Western Pennsylvania police ordered to arrest two men and a woman who left Philadelphia for Pittsburgh with a baby wrapped in a quilt. They left without their change at a gas station.

Newark—Car containing man, woman and baby stopped a milkman and bought a bottle of milk. The clew of a Pennington, N. J., waitress collapsed, when three men she reported had inquired the way to the Lindbergh home last week were disclosed to have been newsreel photographers.

Paterson, N. J.—John Venneman, arraigned on a holdup charge, told Judge Delaney he overheard a man in a Yonkers speakeasy tell two companions, "we'll get the girl and she can take care of the eaglet." He said he assumed the reference was to the Lindbergh baby.

Green Cove Springs, Fla.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover expressed great concern over the kidnaping and sent a secret service agent ashore from the motor ship on which she was cruising to receive the latest news.

Rochester, N. Y.—After an alleged attempt to reach Col. Lindbergh by telephone, Isaac Negrin, a wholesale confectioner, was taken into custody for a mental examination.

HOPE FOR KIDNAPED BOY IN OHIO WANES

Armed Father Vows Revenge as He Hunts With Police; Reward Now $5,000.

Niles, Ohio, March 3 (A.P.).—A woman witness to the kidnaping yesterday of 11-year-old James Dejute, jr., tonight tentatively identified a police photograph of a man as the driver of the automobile in which the youth was spirited away.

Niles, Ohio, March 3 (A.P.).—A black-haired mother had almost given up hope here tonight of receiving a note from kidnapers demanding ransom for her bright-eyed son, James Dejute, jr., 11.

Almost 40 hours have passed since the boy battled with the kidnapers yesterday. Officers turned to theories of revenge or the work of a fiend as motives for the abduction.

Vowing vengeance and carrying a gun, Dejute, sr., a wealthy contractor, continued the hunt with police after only a short rest last night. He raised his offer of a reward for the capture of the kidnapers from $1,000 to $5,000 today.

Two alleged bootleggers were traced to Youngstown today in the belief they may be involved, but they had fled when officers arrived at the hideout.

Sheriff John C. Risher denied a persistent report today that deputies and a Niles policeman had gone to southern Ohio on receipt of a tip from Portsmouth.

The boy was abducted yesterday on his way to school with his cousin, Anna May Mellina, 12, of Ashtabula, Ohio. She told officers that he fought off the kidnapers once, but that they grabbed him again and fled in a light brown coupe.

"They were both nice-looking men and had moustaches," she said.

Dejute, sr., at first had discounted theories of revenge, as he insisted that he had no known enemies and no labor troubles in his business as a contractor.

Georgia Senator Backs Death for Abductors

Atlanta, Ga., March 3 (A.P.).—James L. Beavers, Atlanta chief of police, has written the Georgia senators and some of the representatives asking support for a bill providing the death penalty for kidnaping which involves interstate transportation of the victim. Senator Harris, Chief Beavers said today, pledged support, and Senator George promised "closest attention" when the bill comes up.

Statistics provided by Joseph A. Gerk, police chief at St. Louis, showed 279 kidnapings in the United States in 1931, 93 demands for ransom, 28 admitted ransom payments, 13 victims murdered, 44 victims carried across State lines and 69 convictions.

Buenos Aires Anxious About Abducted Baby

Buenos Aires, March 3 (A.P.).—Interest in the Lindbergh baby mounted among the public today, which earlier had believed the kidnaping a hoax or some sort of mistake.

Groups gathered before newspaper bulletin boards for latest information while scores of persons, mostly women, telephoned the Associated Press and newspapers inquiring if the child had been found.

POLL SEES DEFEAT OF HOME RAID BILL

Senate Committee Expected to Vote on Measure This Afternoon.

An unofficial poll of the Senate District Comittee last night indicated the Howell "home-raid" bill is doomed to die in committee, if every member of the group turns out to vote on the measure at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Of the fourteen members, seven are announced wets, while an eighth, Senator Thomas P. Gore, dry Oklahoma Democrat, plans to vote against the bill. Senator Gore, who does not regard the vote as a test, thinks the Volstead act is all the District needs to enforce prohibition.

Senator King to Attend.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, said he will make it a point to attend the meeting to oppose the measure. Others expected to cast a negative vote include: Senators Tydings (Democrat), Maryland; Lewis (Democrat), Illinois; Copeland (Democrat), New York; Kean (Republican), New Jersey; Blaine (Republican, Wisconsin; and Glenn (Republican)' Illinois.

The bill, however, was favorably reported last year and may be again if a showdown is not demanded in committee. Although the President has asked supplementary prohibition legislation for the District in line with Department of Justice recommendations, the Howell bill contains search and seizure provisions not approved by the Attorney General.

Lively Debate Expected.

In view of the President's recommendations and Superintendent of Police Glassford's appeal for more police authority in prohibition cases, consideration of the measure is expected to precipitate a lively debate.

Senator Arthur Capper, committee chairman, is expected to announce an unfavorable vote on Senator Copeland's bill for Sunday closing of District barber shops. He has been polling the committee.

The committee may take a final vote on Senator Capper's bill to tighten regulations governing sale and possession of firearms in the District, and a bill requiring automobile liability of motorists guilty of major traffic offenses. Assistant-Corporation Counsel Vernon West has been drafting suggested amendments.

GOVERNOR VISITS LINDBERGH

Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey photographed yesterday with State Trooper James A. McBride near the home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Hopewell, N. J., when Gov. Moore paid a visit to Lindbergh. The trooper is pointing out the points of interest in the kidnaping case.

Man Tells Police of Forced Drive With Couple and Baby

Taxi Driver Claims Cab Stolen After Trip to Baltimore at Pistol Point; Many Tips on Kidnaping Received by Capital Officials.

A story of having been forced at pistol point to drive his cab to Baltimore and return with two men, a woman, and a child, was told by Frederick Small, 27 years old, of 329 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. His story was one of the more than twenty tips the police received last night and yesterday on the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Small said he was hired about 5 o'clock by a man at Twelfth street and New York avenue northwest and ordered to drive to Baltimore. At Fifteenth and H streets northeast, the man pointed a gun at him and forced him to drive to Washington boulevard and North avenue in Baltimore, where a man, a woman, and a "five-month-old baby" got into the cab.

He drove them back to Washington and, he said, at West Virginia avenue and Oates street northeast, he was forced from the cab. The men told him he would find his cab three blocks away, he said, and he followed their instructions and recovered the cab.

From the nature of tips, it is apparent that every one who is seen on the street with a baby immediately becomes the object of suspicion.

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke held men available to be sent to investigate any information that was received. "Although all of the information so far received has proven worthless," Inspector Burke said, "we nevertheless are anxious to have every scrap of information that any one may think valuable. Quite probably the missing child will be found as a result of such a tip."

Many of the tips received concerned children in automobiles and when the cars in question were located, it was found that the children were being taken for a ride by their parents. Another tip came from a nurse who said her patient had been "acting funny" for several days. The reason she was acting "funny," Lieut. Clement P. Cox learned, is because she is ill.

Another woman came to headquarters and told Inspector Burke that she had been awakened Tuesday night by a man who wished to engage a room in her house, which is on the Washington-Richmond highway. The man said he had his wife and his child in the automobile. However, she did not see the child or the mother and could give no description of the automobile.

Hyattsville Auto Clew Valueless

Occupants of Car Left in Garage Are Not the Kidnapers.

The automobile left in a Hyattsville, Md., garage Tuesday night was not occupied by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, it was definitely ascertained yesterday. It was left there about 10 o'clock by A. C. Lenz, of 1305 Maryland avenue, who was accompanied by his wife and their 2½-year-old daughter.

Presence of the child in the car and the fact that it bore Pennsylvania license tags focused attention of police on it yesterday morning. Paul Devalt, night watchman in Rushe's garage, remembered that the machine was occupied by a man, woman and child when it was brought there. He called his employer, J. Frank Rushe, who notified police. Baby's fingerprints, found on the glass of the door, were photographed before it was learned that the child was the Lenz's daughter.

By its tags the car was traced to Lenz, who had left his home in Philadelphia last July. He was finally located in Washington, and his wife said that she went with him when the car was taken to Hyattsville. Lenz told Levalt that he would return for the car Wednesday, and his failure to appear started the kidnaping scare.

Missionary Body Urges End of Orient Fighting

Oklahoma City, March 3 (A.P.).—A resolution by Bishop James Cannon, jr., urging cessation of hostilities in the Orient, was adopted by the General Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church South today. Augusta, Ga., was selected as the next meeting place.

The resolution contained recommendations that the Government should call for an immediate halt of fighting, ask the nations to submit their differences to arbitration, and, failing that, call upon other nations to join in taking such concerted action as would insure an end of the struggle.

Roark Bradford's Wife Files Separation Suit

New Orleans, March 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lydia Shorn Bradford, wife of Roark Bradford, New Orleans novelist and short-story writer, filed suit for separation today in civil district court, charging abandonment. The petition asks $500 a month alimony, declaring the writer's income is approximately $1,500 a month.

Judge Mark M. Boatner signed an order for maintenance of the community property intact until hearing of the suit. Bradford, one of whose novels furnished material for Marc Connelly's play, "The Green Pastures," was charged in the petition with abandoning his wife in January, 1931.

Woman and 3 Men Get Life in Bank Robberies

Napoleon, Ohio, March 3 (A.P.).—A young mother and three men were sentenced today to double life terms for two bank robberies, making it almost impossible for them to be released on parole.

Mrs. Pearl Griffith, 23, mother of three children, confessed she acted as lookout for the men, but denied taking an actual part in the holdups. Arrested with her brother, Clyde Whittredge, 20, her confession implicated another brother, Clark Whittredge, 22, and their nephew, Clifford Corns, 17, of Muncie, Ind. The girl and her brothers are from Delphos, Ohio. They confessed four robberies in this vicinity, but were sentenced on their pleas of guilty to robbery of banks in Malinta and Deshler.

PETITION MAY FORCE HOUSE PENSION VOTE

Rankin Signs Plea to Bring Veterans' Measure Up; Other Bills Pending.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Proponents of additional benefits for war veterans launched an offensive in the House yesterday when Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, filed a petition to force a vote on his bill providing pensions for widows, orphans and parents of the veterans of the World War.

The Rankin bill, it is estimated, would cost something like $161,000,000 in the first five years and would establish a precedent in payments to dependents of war veterans, in that pensions would be paid to their aged, dependent parents.

The Rankin petition, which requires 145 signatures, as yet has only the signature of its author, but he and others, including some who are strongly opposed to the bill, say it probably will be signed by the required number. Mr. Rankin predicted it would be passed by a vote of 5 to 1. Veterans legislation, incidentally, is expected to split wide open party lines and may be the explosive which shall wreck the heretofore smoothly working Democratic machine under the domination of Speaker Garner and his party leaders, one of whom, Representative Charles Crisp, of Georgia, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, told the House a while ago, that he was burning his bridges behind him and was committed to balancing the budget.

The Rankin bill, apparently destined to be the first important veterans' measure to be brought to a vote, is expected to be followed by others, by far the most important of which is the measure drawn by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, providing for payment in full of the balance due, estimated at $2,500,000,000, on the adjusted compensation certificates held by World War veterans.

The ways and means committee has promised a hearing on the Patman bill following disposal of the tax revision measure, but the measure is not expected to be reported favorably. In that case it is likely that resort again will be had to the discharge rule.

Other measures also are pending. One, introduced by Representative Allard H. Gasque (Democrat), of South Carolina, is similar in purpose to the Rankin bill, but would extend pensions which are being paid veterans of dependents of veterans of past wars. The Rankin bill applies only to veterans of the World War.

One bill, introduced by Representative Jacob L. Milligan (Democrat), of Missouri, would abolish the regional offices of the Veterans' Administration and concentrate administration in Washington. Representative Milligan estimates it would mean a saving of $12,000,000 annually through reduction of administrative expenses.

The drive of the veterans against the Federal Treasury must not only carry through the Senate, but also must meet almost certain disapproval by President Hoover.

Receiver Is Selected For Judge Magazine

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson today appointed the Irving Trust Co. receiver in equity for the Judge Publishing Co., Inc., publishers of the comic weekly, Judge.

Close Check in Chicago Is Ordered by Swanson

Chicago, March 3 (A.P.).—State's Attorney John A. Swanson today ordered a close check on Chicago kidnaping activities on the possibility that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's kidnaped son may have been brought here. The prosecutor declared he had no information indicating the babe was hidden in Chicago and asserted the possibility was slim.

"We are taking no chances, however, that this remote possibility might develop," he said. Swanson said the tactics of the New Jersey kidnapers resembled those of gangs which have been operating in this area for several months.

Lamont Approves Paying of Ransom

Morgan Partner Returns From Trip With Wife to Bermuda.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Mrs. Lamont returned to New York today on the steamer Monarch of Bermuda, after a vacation of three weeks in Bermuda. The Morgan partner seemed interested chiefly in news of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. When told of published reports that the Lindberghs were willing to pay ransom to avoid injury to the child, he remarked, "That's a good idea."

The liner returned to New York, after battering her way through a tropical storm which left its scars on the vessel in the form of smashed windows and a stove-in hatch cover. The force of the wind, which for a while reached a 75-mile gale, was so great that the heavy steel combing of the forward hatch was bent and twisted as though it had been so much lead. The cover of this hatch was broken in by the force of the waves.

Eight windows and their frames on the port side of the sun deck forward and five more on the starboard side were smashed. The windows are about 75 feet above waterline.

Search for Baby Leads To Counterfeit Plant

Special to The Washington Post.

Newark, N. J., March 3.—Search for the Lindbergh baby in the neighborhood from which a postcard was sent Col. Charles A. Lindbergh yesterday morning has yielded an elaborate counterfeiting outfit and the arrest of several men for whom police have been searching for weeks.

When the postcard to Col. Lindbergh was discovered in the mail box of a postal substation, the police threw a cordon about a sixteen-block area adjacent to the heart of the city and refused to permit any one to enter or leave the area unless thoroughly scrutinized.

The police then searched every house in the area from cellar to attic, and in their work they uncovered the counterfeiting plant and the several suspects for whom they had been searching.

SANDERS QUESTIONS GRANATA BALLOTING

Tells House Group Illinois Law Forbids Recount Before Notary.

(Associated Press.)

Doubt of the "integrity" of ballots cast in the Granata-Kunz congressional election in Chicago was expressed yesterday before a House committee.

Everett G. Sanders, former secretary to President Coolidge and attorney for Peter C. Granata, who now holds the seat in the House for the Eighth Illinois District, raised the question before the House elections committee. That group is considering a contest of Granata's election brought by Stanley H. Kunz, Democratic opponent of the Republican incumbent.

Sanders argued that a strict interpretation of Illinois laws would forbid a ballot recount before a notary public, as was done in this case. The canvassing board gave Granata 16,565 votes and Kunz 15,394, but the recount showed Granata's total 15,057 and Kunz's 16,345.

Sanders predicted that if the committee accepted the recount and made a report to Congress recommending that Granata be ousted and the seat given to Kunz, the recommendation "will be voted down" in the House.

"What if the committee itself should order another recount?" asked Representative Hare (Democrat), of South Carolina.

"The only question then would be that of the integrity of the ballots now," Sanders answered.

"Do you think the integrity of the ballots is in question?"

"Yes."

"Well, was that integrity in question before this recount?"

"Yes."

Representative Gifford (Republican), Massachusetts, interposed that a representative of Granata, who was present during the recount made repeated objections to the procedure. The recount, Gifford asserted, had a "very convenient result" for Kunz.

Cotton Body Votes To Continue Work

Directors of Cooperative Association Decide to Go On for Five Years.

New Orleans, March 3 (A.P.).—The board of directors of the American Cotton Cooperative Association today decided to continue the organization for a five-year period and put the plan up to the 11 State organizations for ratification.

The association originally was set up for a two-year period but E. F. Creekmore, general manager, said he expected the various State groups comprising the association to ratify the extension.

With State and association indorsement, the plan will be presented to the Federal Farm Board, under which the American Cotton Cooperative Association operates.

Meanwhile, President U. B. Blalock, in an address before the convention, said the association must continue to work out a refinancing, sales and fixation policy that will bring the members of the A. C. C. A., a better price for cotton than that averaged by nonmembers.

Dry Leader Convicted Of Assault on Youth

Chicago, March 3 (A.P.).—Daniel L. Gilday, 65-year-old antiliquor and vice campaigner, late today was convicted of assaulting to kill Herman Knol, 17. The jury recommended a penalty of one to fourteen years in prison. Knol was shot several months ago when he and another youth went to Gilday's assistance because they thought he was drunk.

Gilday, president of a law and order league on the South Side, yesterday testified he "must have been drunk" when he shot Knol, November 29 last. He said he had mistaken Knol and his companion for robbers.

Alleged Killer of 5 Kin Seeks Pardon

South Carolinian, Serving Life Term, Takes His Case to People.

Columbia, S. C., March 3 (A.P.).—Edmund Bigham, convicted four times of murdering his mother, brother, sister and the latter's two children, today pleaded "not guilty" to citizens of South Carolina.

A petition addressed to the citizenship of the State was started circulating today in defense of the man now serving a life sentence for the eleven-year-old slayings.

John W. Langston, World War veteran and one of the chief defense witnesses at the trials, began circulation of the petition which, he said, will be laid before Gov. Ibra C. Blackwood when a large number have signed it.

In 1927 defense attorneys agreed to compromise verdict of guilty, with recommendation for mercy without admitting the guilt of Bigham, who steadfastly denied his guilt and who heard himself sentenced three times to die in the electric chair.

MEXICAN DISCOVERY OF GEMS HELD FALSE

Officials, However, Ridicule Charges After Jewels Are on Display.

Mexico City, March 3 (U.P.).—Charges made by Prof. Ramon Mena that most of the jewels found recently in ancient Indian tombs at Monte Alban were modern falsifications were dismissed as unworthy of serious consideration in archeological circles here tonight.

Mena, an archeologist, made his charges in an article in the newspaper Excelsior today. The department of education came to the defense of the expedition headed by Alfonso Caso, which found the jewels, with an emphatically worded statement guaranteeing that Caso's reports on his discoveries were the "complete truth."

The jewelry has been on display in the National Museum here since Monday. A violent public controversy over the authenticity of the jewels is anticipated, since Mena's article in Excelsior today indicated he had more to say on the subject.

Chilean Cabinet May Quit Soon.

Santiago, Chile, March 3 (U.P.).—Resignation soon of the cabinet to give President Montero the freedom to make changes was insistently reported today. The resignations of the war and navy ministers to permit creation of a single national defense department were considered a mere formality, but it was understood the president might introduce some other changes.

Abelardo Rodriguez was reported as slated for the war office.

Coello was a candidate for precinct leader of the Liberal party in last Sunday's primary elections. His brother attributed the shooting to political differences. The two assailants escaped. Four persons previously were slain as a result of the elections.

Colombian Division Halts Payments.

Medellin, Colombia, March 3 (A.P.). The Antioquia Department Assembly today approved temporary suspension of payments on the external debt of the department. The moratorium action came as something of a surprise to banking circles, as heretofore Antioquia had been an adherent to the government scrip plan, under which the nation assumed responsibility for payments of foreign debts of departments and municipalities.

Buenos Aires, March 3 (A.P.).—Benito Mussolini's play, "One Hundred Days," or in Italian, "Campo de Maggio," nearly caused a riot when it was staged for the first time in a local theater last night. SENATE BODY BACKS STOCK POOL INQUIRY

Approval of Extended Quiz Will Be Asked Today; Bears First Target.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate banking committee yesterday asked the Senate for authority to inquire into the activities of professional operators on the stock exchanges.

It intends to disclose the operations of groups who have been forming pools to drive security prices up or down beyond their warranted values.

Senate approval of the first extended investigation of the stock exchanges in recent history was believed certain. It will be sought today. The banking committee was unanimously for the inquiry.

Bear Raiders First Target.

Bear raiders will be the first target of the Senate inquisitors. President Hoover and congressional leaders are convinced a group or pool of big-time operators have been deliberately taking advantage of hard times to knock down prices for personal gain.

The committee has no intention of prohibiting short selling operations. The committee struck out of its resolution of inquiry the word "prohibit" to insert the word "regulate" in connection with short selling legislation.

Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, who voiced the administration's demand for the investigation, expects it to be started by early next week. He is prepared to submit a list of names of those believed to have been raiding the market.

Bull Quiz Also Planned.

The investigation will be conducted by the whole committee headed by Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota. A subcommittee including Walcott and Senators Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, and Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, drafted the resolution of inquiry. The bulk of the work probably will be turned over to this group.

Attention is to be focused as much upon the bulls as the bears. There is strong sentiment in the committee to find out what group or groups backed the bull market which went to record heights in 1928 and 1929 and then collapsed.

A suggestion for invoking the taxing power of the Government to regulate operations on the exchanges was carried in the resolution of inquiry. Senator Glass (Democrat) Virginia, has advocated this for years.

Australian Law Aimed At Defaulting States

Canberra, Australia, March 3 (A.P.).—The Australian House of Representatives passed by a vote of 46 to 16 today a bill enabling the commonwealth to seize the revenue or bank deposits of any state defaulting debt payments.

The legislation was a direct outgrowth of New South Wales having defaulted interest payments due overseas on February 1. Another bill passed today by a vote of 54 to 5 gives holders of Australian bonds direct rights against the commonwealth. The commonwealth has paid the amount of New South Wales' default.

New Beer Petition Warned in House

O'Connor Says He Will Ask Committee's Discharge Unless It Reports.

(Associated Press.)

Notice that the wet blocs are ready to resort to another discharge petition, if necessary, to get a vote on consideration of bills to legalize beer, was given in the House yesterday by Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of New York.

The O'Connor-Hull bill for 2.75 per cent beer and a 3-cent-a-pint tax has been referred to the ways and means committee.

"If the committee does not report the bill favorably, I will file a petition on April 7 to discharge the committee, after 145 signatures are obtained," O'Connor said. "It is anticipated the beer bill will be brought to a vote by the end of April."

SIR RONALD LINDSAY.

THAT "superior person," Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the most noble and least democratic foreign minister that England ever had would be jarred back to life if he could see the Right Hon. Sir Ronald Charles Lindsay, P. C., G. C. M. G., K. C. B., C. V. O., LL. D., British Ambassador to the United States, at a baseball game.

Sir Ronald likes us so much that he has learned to relish our national game almost as much as his own. His diplomatic career stretches across the map with distinction from Teheran to Massachussetts avenue. He has known the United States since 1905, when he was here as third secretary. In appearance he is tall and erect as one of the Scottish pines that thrive on his Dorsetshire place where he will one day be the twenty-seventh Earl of Crawford.

Back in the days when Russian grand dukes were champagne drinkers, not champagne salesmen, Sir Ronald began his diplomatic career in St. Petersburg. Trotsky and Lenin were sulking in Manhattan's Ghetto. Sir Ronald applied himself to the study of Russian so well that he still can read Gogol and Turgeniev in the original. Thence he was sent to Teheran and came to Washington in 1905.

He came back in 1919, this time as first secretary, and developed the baseball habit. He has been permanent under secretary at the foreign office and was responsible in part for molding the present pro-American tendency there.

He has been his majesty's representative at Angora and in Berlin and continues the Balfour tradition in his diplomacy and in his tennis.

TWO STATES OPPOSE RAIL COMBINE PLAN

Virginia and West Virginia Attack Proposal at I. C. C. Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

Virginia and West Virginia yesterday expressed opposition to the plan for grouping Eastern rail lines into four systems at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on the proposed merger.

Charles E. Bell, on behalf of the corporation commission of Virginia, said the consolidation would disrupt the transportation system of the roads serving Virginia and the Carolinas.

The Eastern lines would be allocated to the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio, under the plan advocated by the railroads.

Bell said the Norfolk & Western Railroad was a vital link between the industries in Virginia and the Carolinas on the one hand and the North and West on the other. He said the road should not lose its independent identity by allocation to the Pennsylvania.

W. Elliott Neffien, assistant attorney general of West Virginia, said the interests of his State would be injured by the proposed consolidation.

Speaking for the board of public works of West Virginia, Neffien said West Virginia would lose much of its revenue if the consolidation were effected, adding that the Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and Virginia railways derived much of their income from a prosperous traffic in coal.

If these were grouped with other lines, he contended, their taxable earnings would be reduced by the merger with weaker roads.

Alfonso Derides Report He Urged Spanish Revolt

Jerusalem, March 3 (A.P.).—Former King Alfonso of Spain, who is traveling in this vicinity, today described as "comic beyond belief" reports that he had issued a manifesto calling upon all Spaniards to unite for restoration of the monarchy.

He said he knew nothing about any such document, details of which were published last week in the newspapers of France and other countries.

mained in the street. The three policemen finally managed to drag the man, still masked, they said, back on the roof.

At the station he gave his name as Harry Isaac Williamson, 22 years old, colored, of Prescott, Ariz. Asked why he had courted death on the ledge, he said that he figured he was cornered and would hide there. After dropping over the roof, however, he found he did not have strength enough to get back.

Police said he would be investigated in connection with the attempted robbery of a resident of the Alton Wednesday night.

ANTIHOARDING PLANS GAIN IMPETUS HERE

Leading Trade Associations Line Up for Restoration of Money Circulation.

Washington's Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and Merchants and Manufacturers Association have pledged their full cooperation in the local effort, part of a Nation-wide campaign to begin next Sunday night, against hoarding. Newbold Noyes, chairman for the District of Columbia area, President Hoover's citizens reconstruction organization, announced last night.

At the same time Mr. Noyes urged that speakers during the week at Washington's various luncheon clubs and before other gatherings of citizens devote a part of their addresses next week to bringing home the lesson that until hoarding is brought to a stop, national economic recovery will be retarded.

Announcement will be made for publication on Sunday, it was stated, of the list of prominent Washingtonians who will sponsor the week's program here. The radio, theater screens and advertising space donated by the newspapers of Washington will carry the general appeal against hoarding which in many cases will take the form of a simple explanation of why hoarding, as the term is used, retards economic recovery.

The President's reconstruction organization points out that with the monetary gold and silver of the country representing less than 2 per cent of the national wealth—which has been estimated at $400,000,000,000—it requires only a relatively small amount of hoarding to curtail the amount of currency in circulation, and for every dollar in money that is kept idle, five to six times that amount in credit is shut off.

The antihoarding appeal, it is emphasized, is not directed at those whose money is invested in securities, or is deposited in sound banks, but to those who through fear have withdrawn money from circulation and thus have destroyed its value and curtailed the credit otherwise available.

U. S.-Canadian Fish Deal Pending.

Ottawa, Ontario, March 3 (A.P.).—Negotiations are being carried on between the United States Government and the Canadian government concerning reduction of duty on Canadian-caught fish going into the United States, Premier Bennett told the House of Commons today. No details were revealed.

FARM BOARD BUDGET REGARDED AS CRISIS

House Group's Reduction to $1,000,000 May Cripple Body's Activities.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Board, long the target of hostile critics, is nearing a crisis in its short, turbulent life as the Government's greatest experiment in farm relief.

Prospects of extensive slashes in administrative expenses and further depletion of its low treasury reserve have reduced its confidence and brought discouragement to its members.

Curtailed operations "along all general lines," especially in connection with assistance to farmers' cooperative organizations, were predicted yesterday by Chairman Stone if Congress cuts the board's administrative budget to $1,000,000.

Approximately $50,000,000 remains in its treasury from the $500,000,000 set aside for agricultural aid. Should 40,000,000 bushels of board-controlled wheat be distributed to the needy, as approved by Congress, this would be further reduced.

Publicly Mr. Stone said:

"If Congress sees fit to cut our budget we will just try to live under it."

But privately he is known to feel that if the board's operations are to be crippled and rendered ineffective, it might well be abolished. Nevertheless he has no intention of quitting or abandoning entirely the program for promoting the growth of cooperatives.

The House appropriations committee, in reporting out the independent offices bill, cut the board's appropriation for 1933 from $1,880,000 to $1,000,000. If adopted by Congress, such a reduction probably will mean that a large amount of field work must be dropped.

The board has primary loans of 32 cents a bushel on wheat bought to stabilize prices. If Congress directs that this be donated to the Red Cross for distribution to the unfortunate, these loans must be taken up by the board, involving between $12,000,000 and $14,000,000.

Mr. Stone yesterday termed it an "extremely bad principle" to use the $500,000,000 revolving fund set aside for agriculture in the interests of poor relief. He said it was "utterly unfair" to donate the wheat without reimbursing the board.

FIVE SISTERS HURT IN CROSSING CRASH

One of Those Injured Near Frederick May Die; Two Live in Capital.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., March 3.—En route to visit the sixth sister at the Sabillasville Sanitarium near Thurmont, five sisters, two from Washington and the others from near Rockville, were seriously injured shortly before noon today when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train at the Harmony Grove grade railroad crossing, 2 miles north of here. The automobile was wrecked and the injured were rushed to the City Hospital, where physicians pronounced the condition of one, Mrs. Ruth Collins, 45, near Rockville, critical.

Mrs. Collins suffered lacerations of the forehead and chin and concussion of the brain. She had not regained consciousness late today and had only an outside chance to live. Mrs. Florence Small, 38, of 623 E street southwest, Washington, D. C., suffered concussion of the brain, fractured jaw and nose, severe lacerations of the scalp, and compound fracture of arm; Mrs. Jesse Heeter, 44, same address, lacerated scalp, injuries to the chest and internal injuries; Mrs. Cora Fisher, 49, Potomac, Md., fractured shoulder and arm, concussion of the brain and broken arm; Mrs. Lillian Gettings, 38, Rockville, shock and lacerations of the face.

The train approaching Frederick stopped at the Harmony Grove siding about 200 feet from the crossing to discharge mail. It pulled away and reached the crossing, going 6 or 8 miles an hour. Persons at the station said the driver, Mrs. Heeter, evidently did not see the locomotive until it was too late and the automobile ran into the train with a tremendous impact. Mrs. Heeter and Mrs. Collins occupied the front seat and the others were in the rear. Two of the women were pinned beneath the wreck and held fast until released by persons who arrived early on the scene.

Engineer Harry L. Tammany stopped the train and the crew went to the assistance of the injured. It is thought that the driver, in an effort to avoid striking the train, attempted to turn the car and it was thrown some distance on the east side of the highway. The automobile was turned completely around, giving it the appearance of going in the opposite direction. A piece of broken wood penetrated the face of Mrs. Collins from the chin to cheek.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Eberle, jr., of 1921 Kalorama road northwest, Washington, passed over the crossing just ahead of the ill-fated automobile. Mr. Eberle stopped and returned to the scene of the accident.

U. S. WOMEN ASSAIL LABOR STUDY GROUP

Mrs. Harvey Wiley Asserts Those Named by League Oppose Equality.

(Asociated Press.)

National Woman's Party opposition was expressed last night to the proposed personnel of a committee to be set up by the League of Nations' International Labor Office to study problems relating to women's work.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, national chairman, said at an organization dinner, word had been received from Geneva, the international labor office had proposed for the correspondence committee of experts "five women from the United States who are all well-known advocates and propagandists for restrictive labor legislation applying to women but not to men." The committee would be consulted when problems relating to women's work are considered.

Mrs. Wiley's criticism was that the prospective members are opponents of equal rights for men and women.

Miss Laura Berrien, chairman of the international relations committee of the National Association of Women Lawyers, also protested.

Young, chairman of the State aviation commission, and Robert Sindall, chairman of the State Boxing Commission, left with the executive. Gov. Ritchie, who was invited to South Carolina in a legislative resolution adopted last month, will remain at Columbia two days. On his arrival, he will be greeted by a delegation from the Legislature.

AIRPLANE MONOPOLY IS CHARGED BY MAAS

House Postoffice Group Is Told of Injustice; Cord Assailed by Pilot.

(Associated Press.)

Monopoly in the airplane industry was charged before the House postoffice committee yesterday by Representative Maas (Republican), Minnesota.

Mr. Maas, testifying in the committee's investigation of the present air mail contract letting system, said the great airplane concerns were freezing out independent inventors and manufacturers of equipment.

E. L. Cord, the man who offered to carry the mails for half the present cost, was not present to hear the testimony of one of the former pilots of his Century Air Lines tell of the pay cuts which led to a lockout of the pilots.

E. Bourford, the pilot, said they had no opportunity to talk pay or working conditions with Cord, because the one interview opportunity he gave them was entirely devoted to hearing "Mr. Cord's theory of world economics in which he called patriotism sloppy sentimentalism."

Carolina Representative Examined at Hospital

(Associated Press.)

Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle, of North Carolina, went to the Naval Hospital yesterday for an examination.

Attending physicians said they had not definitely established the cause of his discomfort, but that it was not of such a nature as to cause apprehension. They indicated he would be confined to bed for some time.

Prisoner Is Released For Daughter's Birthday

Annapolis, Md., March 3.—The appeal of the 14-year-old girl asking that her father be released from the Anne Arundel County Jail so that he might be with her on her birthday, so moved Judge Robert Moss in circuit court here, that he ordered the man's release on a 24-hour furlough today.

The appeal was made in a letter from Ruth Melvin, whose father, former Police Justice Harry E. Melvin, is serving a 4-month sentence for conviction of accepting bribes for the protection of a roadhouse in the northern section of the county.

NANZIANG FIGHT RENEWED AFTER LULL IN HOSTILITIES

ment putting an end to the fighting, there still was a possibility that hostilities would flare forth anew. But foreign military observers considered this an outside chance.

The Japanese were in virtually full possession of a zone bordered on the south by the Shanghai-Nanking Railway as far as Nanzing, on the west by an irregular line connecting Nanziang and Liuho, on the north by the Yangtze, and on the east by the Whangpoo.

Paoshan Forts Hemmed In.

The Paoshan forts, on the southern banks of the Yangtze between Woosung and Liuho, appeared still to be in the hands of the Chinese, but they were hemmed in on the three land sides and in the river there were numerous Japanese ships of war.

Since the beginning of the major offensive Tuesday the Japanese lost 700 men killed or wounded and captured about 100 prisoners whom they disarmed and released. They estimated the Chinese losses at 10,000 saying they had found 3,000 Chinese dead.

"I have ordered the army to stop for the time being at the points it occupies and to stop fighting if the Chinese cease hostilities," Gen Yoshinori Shirakawa, Japanese high army commander, announced.

Intend to Stop Fighting.

This announcement followed an earlier statement issued by the general and by Rear Admiral Kichisabura Nomura, the naval commander, in which they said:

"Now that the Chinese troops have withdrawn outside the zone as the Japanese demanded, we intend to cease hostilities unless the Chinese begin hostile operations."

Similar action by the Chinese followed immediately. The government at Nanking sent word to the League of Nations assembly at Geneva that the Nineteenth Route Army, the unit involved in the Shanghai Battle, had been instructed to cease hostilities unless the Japanese attacked. This definite move by the Nanking government was designed, it was believed to make possible the opening of preliminary negotiations for a formal agreement restoring peace.

The last heavy action of the battle was the final reduction of the Woosung forts, valiantly held by the Chinese despite days of artilery and air bombardment by the attackers.

Deluged With Shells.

Eight 6-inch Howitzers, a naval battery of light field guns and numerous trench mortars were used by the Japanese against the forts yesterday. At the same time several warships deluged them with shells from the harbor.

For half an hour the earth trembled under the terrific concussions. Clouds of smoke rose from the area, partially hiding Japanese airplanes that were bombing the position.

The action disrupted shipping in and out of Shanghai, as it was impossible for vessels to get past the mouth of the Whangpoo. Passengers for foreign ports were unable to embark from Shanghai and incoming steamers were forced to drop anchor off the mouth of the river. Late last night navigation was resumed.

AMERICA TO INSIST PACT BE RECOGNIZED

great powers. Even Italy, which is usually cordial to any official idea emenating from American official sources regarding international policy, has thus far maintained a guarded silence respecting her intentions in China.

Great Britain has been even more reserved in expressing British approval of the Stimson manifesto for noninterference in Manchuria. The British attitude, as gleaned from interpellations in the House of Commons, will avoid all action with regard to Japanese occupation of Manchuria which might be interpreted as offensive to British economic interests there.

The new-born Manchurian state, which has assumed an almost magical political development under Japanese tutelage, will be seeking international recognition within a short time, it is expected. Satisfactory outcome of the Geneva parleys now in progress will probably bring about discussion of the purely political problems, and the Manchurian state is one of the first to be solved.

Strict Interpretation.

A prominent diplomat thus expressed the situation yesterday:

"We have taken the baby away from the army and given it back to the diplomats."

The strict interpretation of the nine-power treaty, which expressly guaranteed the territorial and administrative integrity of China, will be squarely placed before the nations and its provisions will be used by Secretary Stimson as the yardstick by which every result of the Geneva or Shanghai negotiations will have to be judged.

The fallacy of drawing any parallel between the Manchurian situation and the Roosevelt policy in Panama was pointed out here also yesterday. Every one of the signatory powers to the treaty upon which China's territorial and political existence now depend has solemnly promised to carry out its provisions.

May Be Held Violation.

Any alteration of Chinese territory will be regarded as a violation of the treaty and a violation of the solemn pledge under which it was signed.

The situation which was created at the time of the Panama uprising, did not enjoin the United States from recognization of the State of Panama and, furthermore, the United States had signed no promise to respect Colombian territoriall integrity.

The same aloofness has been apparent in the French official attitude with regard to enforcing the Stimson stand. The American position predicated on the principles of the nine-power treaty will be enforced so far as this country is concerned in any outcome. Furthermore, the United States may remind the other signatories of their obligations if they indicate a tendency to yield to the Japanese control of Manchuria in violation of their commitments.

Soviet Denies Massing Of 100,000 in Siberia

Moscow, March 3 (A.P.).—Reports published abroad that 100,000 soldiers of the Soviet Russian army are concentrated at strategic points along the Siberian border are regarded here as exaggerated.

Because of its concern regarding the activities of "white" Russians in Manchuria the army in the Far East is "regrouping," military authorities said, but this is considered a strictly precautionary measure.

U. S. Private Dies in Shanghai.

PEACE STEPS FAIL, YEN TELLS LEAGUE

Virtual Japanese Demand That Chinese Surrender Is Declared Cause.

Geneva, Switzerland, March 3 (A. P.).—Declaring that negotiations for a truce at Shanghai had broken down, Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese spokesman, today appealed to the specially summoned assembly of the League of Nations to exhaust all means provided in the League Covenant in a determined effort to establish peace with justice in the Far East.

The small brown Chinese patriot, who speaks English like a well-born Virginian, opened his plea with a dramatic announcement that armistice negotiations in Shanghai had failed because the Japanese virtually demanded that the Chinese surrender.

The Nanking spokesman did not call directly for the imposition of economic and military sanctions against Japan. Instead, he expressed the belief that "moral forces" still would be able to solve the conflict.

When he had concluded Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japan's representative, asserted the Japanese troops in the Shanghai area had been ordered to halt in their present position and to cease fighting provided the Chinese took no further hostile action.

The Ambassador recounted the Tokyo view of the responsibility for the conflict, citing anti-Japanese feeling in China and the boycott as the provoking factors.

The extraordinary meeting of the league Assembly—the second in history—was called by China under the article of the league Covenant by which economic and military sanctions might be applied. The opening session found the Chinese actively forcing the pace of the deliberations while the Japanese were strictly on the defensive.

Dr. Yen concluded a long and moving appeal by urging the Assembly to seek a settlement in conformity with the Covenant, to bring about the cessation of fighting and the withdrawal of the Japanese forces, to recognize that the Covenant had been broken, and to declare that China was blameless for the "present terrible state of affairs."

After reviewing the developments leading up to the Shanghai campaign, Ambassador Matsudaira asserted it would be unwise to reopen discussion of the Manchurian question, "which has been fully looked after and in which there is no danger of rupture in sight."

Chinese nationalism, taking the shape of antiforeignism, has produced the present conflict, the Japanese representative asserted.

Reds Ignore New Manchurian Rule

Dismissal of Rail Chief by Latest Regime Is Cause of Action.

Tokyo (Friday), March 4 (A.P.).—Soviet Russia has declined to recognize the new regime in Manchuria in connection with the dismissal of Mo Teh-Hui, Chinese president of the Chinese Eastern Railway, by the new Manchurian state's executive committee.

The committee, which recently declared Manchuria's independence from China, appointed Li Shao-Keng, a member of the railways directorate, in Mo's place. Japanese press dispatches from Harbin today said the Moscow government had instructed M. Kuznetzov, Soviet vice president of the railway, to recognize Li's appointment with the explicit understanding that recognition of the new state was not implied.

Mo Teh-Hui has been in Moscow for the past two years attempting to negotiate a new agreement between China and Soviet Russia covering the joint operation of the Chinese Eastern Railway in accordance with the Khabarovsk protocol of December, 1929. He declined, the dispatches said, to return to Manchuria and "play ball" with the new government.

Losses to Virginia By Rail Merger Seen

(Associated Press.)

Submerging of the interests of Hampton Roads and the Virginia coal fields to those of other ports and mining areas under the four-system railway consolidation, was pictured yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission by Charles E. Bell, ace witness of the State Corporation Commission.

Thumbing through a mass of data on the consolidation plan as it affects Virginia, Bell said the State's big port would suffer from discrimination in favor of New York if the consolidation plan is consummated.

JAPAN DUE TO QUIT SENDING MORE MEN

Truce Is Now Unnecessary, Declares Spokesman of Tokyo Government.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo (Friday), March 4.—Authoritative quarters said that Japanese army units under orders to proceed to Shanghai, but still in Japan, probably would have their orders canceled today. Other units already on board transports on the way to Shanghai are expected to be allowed to continue their voyage, probably to relieve the soldiers who bore the brunt of the recent fighting there.

After receiving reports that the fighting at Shanghai was ended, government officials here declared that all Japanese troops would be withdrawn inside the 12½ mile zone around the city as quickly as possible.

Some units of the Japanese, especially the Eleventh Division which moved across the country from the southern bank of the Yangtze, have taken up positions outside the zone, official reports said.

Hope was expressed in government circles that it might be necessary to occupy the border of the zone only a few days. Whenever the Japanese command was satisfied that the Chinese did not plan to renew hostilities all troops would be withdrawn to the east of a line connecting Shanghai and Woosung, it was said.

Tokyo Cabinet Yields.

"The Shanghai mess has ended," a government spokesman said; "it is now unnecessary to arrange a truce."

The cabinet yielded to the insistence of the privy council that a special session of the Diet be summoned to authorize a bond issue which will cover the expenses of the Shanghai campaign. The session will start March 18.

The cabinet had asked a bond issue of 22,000,000 yen ($7,040,000). The council approved an issue of 15,000,000 ($4,800,000). The excess of 7,000,000 yen will go before Parliament in the form of a supplementary estimate.

Hoped to Avert Session.

Cabinet members had hoped to avert the special session in order to prevent "unwelcome discussions" of the Shanghai campaign.

The members of the Manchurian inquiry commission of the League of Nations council were luncheon guests of the emperor and the empress at the imperial palace. These investigators have been flooded with pamphlets books and all kinds of documents pleading Japan's case in Manchuria and Shanghai. None of the members of the commission has made any comment.

"We are a receiving set, not a broadcasting station," said the Earl of Lytton, chairman of the commission.

ATTACKS BY CHINESE OVER, DEBUCHI SAYS

Ambassador Believes Parley Will Be Possible in Two or Three Days.

(Associated Press.)

Ambassador Debuchi of Japan foresees no further attacks upon Japanese troops by Chinese military forces at Shanghai. He believes the situation will be so quiet there in two or three days as to make possible a conference for final settlement of the difficulties.

The ambassador talked with Secretary Stimson for 40 minutes yesterday. Later he told newspapermen the retreat of the Chinese beyond the 12½-mile limit set by Japan had relieved the situation so much that Japanese shops are reopening in Chapei and other districts and business is resuming.

Regrets Loss of Life.

"Japan regrets the heavy loss of life entailed in restoring peace," said the ambassador, "but it could not be helped under the circumstances. It was necessary to protect our nationals, and I do not expect any further military activity. Our troops will be sent away as soon as permanent plans are put into effect for the restoration of order and the protection of foreign life and property."

Discussing the proposed international round-table conference at Shanghai, the ambassador explained there are many details which must be arranged for safeguarding the foreign settlements before a final adjustment of the Shanghai trouble can be effected.

Urges Great Care Be Taken.

He said great care must be taken in making plans to guarantee foreigners and their property against future danger, but he was most emphatic in his statement that Japan has no desire to acquire any territory in the Shanghai area.

Mr. Debuchi gave Secretary Stimson a copy of the declaration of Gen. Yoshinora Skirakawa, commanding the Japanese troops in Shanghai, in which the general explained the Chinese had retreated beyond the limit fixed by Japan and concluded:

"I have therefore decided to order the forces to halt for the time being at points actually held and to stop fighting provided that the Chinese forces do not resort to further hostile actions."

Asked about fighting reported from Manchuria, Mr. Debuchi said there are small isolated detachments of Chinese soldiers and bandits creating disturbances in various sections of Manchuria, but these are of slight importance and are rapidly being suppressed.

Rich Woman Dies As Charity Ward

Mrs. Kaufman, Advocate of Birth Control, Lived Year in Poverty.

Memphis, March 3 (U.P.).—Miserable belongings of a woman, who for a year lived in a $1.50 a week room in a Salvation Army home here, tonight had identified her as Mrs. Viola Kaufman, prominent birth-control advocate.

Officials said she left an estate estimated at approximately 30,000; that she had bank accounts in Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and San Diego institutions.

She died late yesterday, a charity patient in Baptist Hospital, after supervisors at the Army had taken her, dangerously ill, from her sordid little room. She succumbed to pneumonia. A note book said her estate must be given to Margaret Sanger, nationally known birth-control movement leader who is mentioned as the director of the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau at West Sixteenth street, New York City.

Husband Is Sought In Death of Wife

Woman's Body Is Found in Hotel; Mate's Notes Tell of Suicide.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Gerald Greenleaf, former manager of a Santa Barbara, Calif., hotel, was sought by police tonight in the unexplained death of his wife, Louise de Andrea Greenleaf, 35.

Her body was found in their room in an upper Broadway hotel with a bullet wound in the right temple and a revolver lying on the floor by the bed. Three notes written by her husband, detectives said, declared she had committed suicide and that in turn he was going to drown himself. Police were first inclined to the suicide theory, but withheld a verdict pending their search for Greenleaf. They learned he was last seen in the hotel lobby Tuesday morning.

The Greenleafs came here from Santa Barbara last July. He has since been employed as head of the stenographic department of the New York Credit Association.

INTERSTATE CRIMES.

The Lindbergh tragedy gives rise to many suggestions as to means of coping with new methods of crime. The most practical proposal thus far made is that Congress shall provide adequate penalties for the use of instrumentalities of interstate commerce and communications and the postal service for the commission of such crimes as kidnaping and murder. It seems proper that Congress should provide that any person who uses these instrumentalities and agencies in order to kidnap or murder, or to effect escape after the crime, shall suffer death.

The automobile, the mails, the telegraph and the telephone can be employed between States for criminal purposes without incurring any penalty for such misuse. These facilities enable kidnapers and murderers to effect their escape from one State into another, thereby hindering pursuit and often frustrating arrest.

It is well-nigh impossible to commit the premeditated crime of kidnaping and effect an escape without using the postal service and means of communication between States. Jurisdiction over interstate communications rests in the United States. It is necessary that some authority should be invoked to prevent and penalize interstate crimes. Punishment should not be laggard in keeping pace with enterprising crime. The facilities that promote interstate intercourse should not be subject to criminal use without penalty.

Since kidnaping is a premeditated crime of deadly menace, so hideous as to subject the perpetrator to danger of public lynch law upon apprehension, it is substantially equivalent to murder. Public opinion classes it with murder, and would gladly apply the death penalty to it. Congress will not go contrary to public sentiment if it provides the death penalty for all criminals who use interstate communication facilities to kidnap or murder, or to make their getaway after committing such crimes.

FREE IMPORTS DECLINE.

A difficult nut for antiprotectionists to crack is contained in statistics recently worked out by the Department of Commerce. Democratic spellbinders have been telling the country that the tariff has ruined American foreign trade. But the Department of Commerce finds that the chief element of "ruin" in American import statistics falls in the column of free commodities.

In 1931 the value of dutiable imports fell off 32 per cent. The decline in free imports was precisely the same. It would be rather embarrassing for the Democratic orators to attempt to prove that importers are sending to the American market less silk and rubber, which are on the free list, because Congress levied a duty on tomatoes and shoes.

Just how did the Smoot-Hawley act destroy American foreign trade? The spellbinders glibly answer that it closed the American market to foreign goods and brought about the depression. But evidence that the American market was closed to foreign goods is strangely lacking. It is true that during 1931 the value of imports on which a duty is levied fell off $337,000,000. But in the same period the value of free imports—which, of course, are not affected in any way by the tariff—fell off $684,000,000. Measured in dollars the shrinkage in the free list is twice as great as the contraction of the dutiable list.

These figures indicate that the tariff has been a negligible influence among the powerful factors that have been at work for the last two years, tearing down both domestic and foreign business. Imports that are taxed and imports that are not taxed have reacted in exactly the same way to the influences of depression. Will opponents of the tariff still maintain that the tariff is responsible for the emaciated foreign trade values last year?

Most of the decline in both dutiable and free items represents lower prices. No doubt the prices of raw materials, which make up most of the free list, declined more drastically than did the price of dutiable commodities. On the other hand, the demand for rubber, silk, coffee, tea, tin and similar commodities on the free list has been steady in spite of the depression, and large quantities have been imported, while the demand for dutiable manufactures and luxuries has been weak because of decreased purchasing power. It is evident that economic conditions, which can not be controlled by customs duties, are responsible for the shrinkage in the value of foreign trade.

Is the public to assume that antitariff orators are ignorant of these facts? It appears to be a case either of ignorance or willful misrepresentation, or a mixture of both.

A PROSPERITY MAGICIAN.

A few months ago Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, would have been satisfied with an ingenuous plan for securing payment in full of the soldiers' bonus. But destiny urged him on. If he could make veterans happy and prosperous out of the largess of Uncle Sam, why should he not extend his beneficence to all Americans? He probed deeper into the mysteries of finance and has emerged with a plan designed not only to pay off the complete obligation of the Government to veterans but to restore the smile of prosperity to all the land.

Like all strokes of genius, the senator's plan is simple. It would create $2,400,000,000 of what might be termed "prosperity" currency. Of course, Uncle Sam does not have that amount of ready cash available for payment to veterans, because the obligation is not due until 1945. But that does not deter the senator from the "Sooner" State. He asks the Treasury to issue bonds equal in amount to the bonus obligation. These would be distributed to Federal Reserve banks, each bank receiving enough to pay off the bonus certificates of veterans living in its territory. But the bonds would not be turned over to the veterans. They would be used as a basis for Federal Reserve notes of equal amount, and this currency would be turned over to beneficiaries of the bonus.

The effect of this ingenuous measure would be to increase the money in circulation by $2,400,000,000. Senator Thomas envisions a sudden spurt in business and agriculture. Hoarding would be abandoned and the country would march forward to a new era of prosperity.

The senator from Oklahoma is unduly modest. Having brought forth this novel device for rejuventating a depression-ridden world, why does he wish to confine its operation to the bonus? Why not issue bonds, transfer them to the Federal Reserve banks for conversion into money and wipe out the national debt of about $18,000,000,000? Surely the magic power of creating money out of nothing should not be reserved for veterans alone! Let Congress turn over the Bureau of Printing and Engraving to the distinguished senator-economist from Oklahoma, with full authority to restore America to prosperous and happy times within 30 days.

DAVID JAYNE HILL.

The United States has reason to mourn the death of David Jayne Hill. As Minister to Switzerland and the Netherlands, as Ambassador to Germany and as Assistant Secretary of State he made a deep impression upon American diplomacy. Yet his greatest service to the country has been performed outside of any official role.

Dr. Hill was an educator of distinction and a master of rhetoric before he entered diplomatic circles. To his deep understanding of the spirit and temperament of America he added an intensive study of European history and international problems. He prepared himself as few other Americans have done to scrutinize the developments growing out of the World War and to point the course that this country should take. His sound thinking and clear-cut logic were made articulate by a fluent style and unusual powers of expression.

The name of Dr. Hill will always be associated with the fight against participation of the United States in the League of Nations. He diagnosed the situation with unusual insight and judgment. The emotional reaction toward internationalism which swept over the world at the close of the war did not distort his well-grounded views. He stood firmly against the compromise of American independence through entangling alliances with Europe. Likewise he opposed entrance into the so-called World Court on the ground that it is a political agency and not a genuine court of international justice.

Dr. Hill's contribution to the philosophy of government and diplomacy has not yet been completely measured. He was the type of man who leaves monuments behind him for the enlightenment and guidance of future generations. His name will stand out as one of the great diplomatic figures in one of the most dramatic epochs of history.

CASTIGATING THE CRITICS.

Representative W. I. Sirovich, who once aspired to be a dramatist and is now chairman of the House committee on patents, is waging a ruthless war on dramatic critics. It is they, he cries, with a sudden outpouring of pent-up wrath, who have destroyed the legitimate drama. Let them be haled before a congressional committee, where their perfidious profession can be exposed to public derision.

Mr. Sirovich is conducting a hearing on a copyright bill. The connection between the incompetence of critics and the copyright laws is not quite clear. Nevertheless, the irate congressman has invited a score of dramatic critics to appear before his committee and confess their sins. The critics think it is a great joke, but Mr. Sirovich is beginning to talk in menacing terms about subpenas if they do not appear.

The picture conjured up by Representative Sirovich is horrible to contemplate. Thousands of actors, stage hands, musicians, electricians, carpenters, dressmakers, &c., out of work, producers bankrupt and millions of dollars' worth of theater property idle! Why? Because these "undertakers and pallbearers of the spoken drama" are allowed to ply their ghastly trade without congressional supervision.

Will Congress stand by and see the brain children of its own members subjected to the barbs and ridicule of this "incompetent and ruthless lot?" Have they not put a curse upon real dramatic art, forcing the naive public to desert the theater and crowd the "talkie" houses to overflowing? Art can not survive so long as these malicious vultures of literature are at large. There ought to be a law. Let it prescribe qualifications for dramatic critics and a stiff punishment for the culprits who dare to speak their minds. If such a law had been in effect the country might even now be entranced by the dramatic power of one who is wasting his time on patent and copyright problems.

STAGE CHILDREN.

One of the principal theaters in Washington will be empty next week because of the law forbidding the appearance of child actors on the professional stage in the District of Columbia. The comedy, "Bridal Wise," which was to come to the National on Monday next, is barred from a local showing by the fact that there are two children in the cast.

Not only will the playhouse be idle, but all its stage hands, musicians, ushers, &c., will be unemployed. The patrons of the theater are denied an opportunity to see a delightful comedy, graced by a favorite star, Madge Kennedy.

An amendment is pending in Congress to permit the appearance of children upon the stage under proper safeguards. This amendment is sponsored by persons celebrated for their interest in child welfare; it is indorsed by educators, clergymen, social workers and by the men and women of the theater themselves. In the latter group are artists who have enriched the annals of the stage by their genius and whose reputations are irreproachable.

Not even the most skeptical critic can find just ground to object to the passage of this act. It is so framed as to guarantee to the stage child in Washington a measure of protection far greater than the law affords to children not on the stage. The Board of Education is constituted a special guardian for each and every youngster scheduled for the stage.

OVERTAXING THE MOTOR.

Seldom has a tax proposal met with such spontaneous and determined opposition as the suggestion to impose a Federal tax upon gasoline sales in addition to the universal State imposts. The opposition is based both on the invasion of a field that heretofore has been conceded to be one exclusively reserved to the States, and upon the contention that motor transport already contributes more heavily to governmental revenues than any other form of property.

Automobiles now pay taxes in one form or another that amount annually to 20 per cent of their value. This means, of course, that if a car lasts five years its full cost is duplicated by direct taxes and those imposed on its fuel supply. No other article in general use pays anything like one-fifth of its value every year in taxes, and such a total would never have been permitted upon automobiles if payable all in one tax. This total levy upon the motors has grown to its present high level because it was accumulated in driblets.

The high taxes paid by automobile owners, largely without serious complaint up to the present, supply a strong argument in favor of a more general application of the sales tax. The motorist pays a little here and a little there, without realizing that he is overtaxed. If he had to produce the entire amount at the end of the year his protest would have been loud and strong before now.

There was a considerable decrease in automobile mileage and gasoline consumption in the United States last year. This traffic, as well as any other, can be taxed to a point where revenue will decrease rather than be augmented. A contest between the States and the central government to force greater revenue from the all-necessary motors might bring disastrous results for a most important industry and for large numbers of Americans in comparatively humble circumstances, to whom motor transportation is now a vital factor in reaching their daily work and in the conduct of farm or business.

THREE SPOOLS

From the New London Day.

Half of the fun of childhood used to be longing for the unattainable. The small boy with a homemade cart, or a battered train of cars minus most of the wheels, could play all day and be wondrously happy with his few possessions. Likewise the small girl, cherishing a rag doll and perhaps one "best" doll with flaxen hair and eyes that used to close, could "play house" and feel that the world was a grand place in which to live. Not so now, however. Toys have been improved, parents have been educated to buy more of them, children have learned to compare their collection with that of the children next door, and howl their heads off if Jane has a real electric stove and Bobby has a chemical set when they have not.

Modern children, at least, among the families of middle class and moderately well-to-do Americans, are satisfied with toys at a very early age. Nothing thrills them any more; they have something just as good as the newest toy, although they may want the new toy just the same for the sake of appearances among their neighborhood chums. It is with some misgivings, then, that we read of the annual toy exhibition in New York City. Three entire floors in a midtown hotel just filled with toy samples. The buyers and the visitors look them over for new hints about what is likely to amuse Junior for at least ten minutes at a time before he concludes that what he really needs and must have is an honest-to-goodness trimotored airplane that will take him aloft.

Back in the old days of the American home the youngsters of 10 or 12 made waterwheels in the brook, ran a crazy maze of belts to darning-cotton spools mounted on bits of wire, and had a swell time doing it. Today they turn up their noses at the shiniest new velocipedes and demand quite emphatically, "What you bought that thing for?" when they wanted a midget roadster. Of course, we have no brooks, to speak of, left—and besides they might catch cold or miss taking their spoonful of vitamin D, or something, if they got out of sight of the house. The suspicion grows, however, that a boy allowed to really make his kite, rather than take it, ready made, out of a package; forced to construct his own skis out of barrel staves instead of having them delivered to the door wrapped in cellophane, would get more real enjoyment out of his toys. We may be old-fashioned, but we believe it.

"A Major Political Mind."

POST HASTE.

March 4 is here, but next year there will be much more interest in the classification of the March forth.

Japan has captured Shanghai to stop boycotters, and for every Chinese boycotter six weeks ago there are 100 in China and throughout the world who are boycotting Japan in more ways than retail purchases.

"When in the old days nations received word by sailing ships as to what the right of might had accomplished there wasn't much to do about it. Now that every move is known throughout the world in 10 minutes, and at every step any nation that transgresses the rules of the game is duly warned, there is bound to come a day of reckoning.

They say Hershey profits only went up to $8,000,000 last year, but we certainly heard more than that much chocolate consumed at movies.

Gov. Murray's campaign is to be financed by the sales campaign hats, photographs, windshield stickers, ladies' mirrors and other notions, including some of Alfalfa Bill's that have been put in book form.

It is futile to discuss whether the kidnaper is crazy or a fool. If he had abducted King George or stolen the Capitol he might have been one or the other, but taking the Lindbergh baby shows he is both.

In the midst of all the live questions in the world today the Senate foreign relations committee is getting all het up again over American adherence to France's world court.

"Now that the Japanese have secured their object" they are willing to drop the subject. They will find it is not a complete sentence.

The broad open spaces on the west of this col. contained a panegyric on the delight to be realized by getting up to see a sunrise. Smuch eashier to stay up and shee it.

If the amusing attempt of Dr. Sirovich, chairman of the House patents committee, to curb theatrical criticism is ever taken seriously enough to be considered a threat to the liberty of the press, then the doctor will know that he has started something.

We fear 2.75 beer will be found as disappointing to the tax collector as to the consumer, if any way can be found to confine the alky content to that, once the lid is off.

PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE TOWN BOOSTER.

In all of my many travels, and I've ridden the rails for miles,
I've noticed in town or in city there is always the man who smiles;
Some one with an eye that twinkles,
though humble his place and drear,
And signals the worried stranger that counsel and help are near.

That smile is the same land over. 'Tis friendly and warm and true,
As though Boston and San Francisco
the ways of the other knew.
It is seen at the railroad station, it brightens the steamship pier,
As it flashes the cheering message:
"Come in, you have nothing to fear."

He may be a red-cap grinning; he may be the man at the gates:
But still at the city's threshold with a welcoming smile he waits;
And I know as I take the highway I'll find at my journey's end
That smiling and kindly stranger, who is willing to be my friend.

Oh, whether it's town or city, the man with the smile is there,
As if the good name of his people had become his particular care,
Though many may pass unheeding,
and at strangers the thoughtless frown,
There is always that smiling native to welcome them into town.

Only Path You Can Follow in the Dark Is One You Have Followed by Day

By ROBERT QUILLEN

GREEN troops are worthless because they think.

Each man is an individual, with a sense of personal responsibility, having no confidence in anything except himself.

When he hears the whine of bullets or the explosion of shells, he acts precisely as he would if he were a civilian alone on the field. He ducks for shelter or takes to his heels.

It isn't cowardice. It is natural and commendable discretion. The bravest of individuals would act the same way.

But the trained soldier is not an individual. He has been drilled and drilled and drilled until the last atom of individuality is purged from his system.

He is a cog in a machine—nothing more. His actions and reactions are automatic. At certain commands he makes certain movements—without thought or question or sense of responsibility.

His will is completely surrendered. He is the helpless tool of discipline. If fear grips his mind, he still mechanically moves forward. The power of habit has made him a good soldier.

The same subconscious obedience to discipline sustains the prize-fighter who is "out" on his feet.

He is in a trance. His conscious mind no longer is capable of directing him. But long, long practice has made him a machine, and now he does by force of habit the thing that is right and necessary—blocking, punching, feinting, countering, without the slightest knowledge of what he is doing.

That kind of mental discipline—that automatic and subconscious obedience to habit—is almost the whole of character.

No man untrained in honor can be trusted under temptation, any more than a green soldier can be trusted under fire. The only dependable man is the one who is mechanically honest.

Boys are not honest or law-abiding by nature. Their nature is to take what they want, practice deceit when necessary, and obey no rules that interfere with their pleasure.

Ethics must be learned. A gentleman must be made. And the only character that will stand fast in time of trial is the one that need make no decision—the one so thoroughly trained in decency that honor has become second nature.

There is little chance to escape a wreck if you must stop to think in time of emergency.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

McAdoo and Smith.

Houston Post.

New York politicians are saying that William G. McAdoo has sunk the Garner presidential boom by adding the weight of his support to it. They say this development has forced Al Smith into the Roosevelt corner, because Smith would never "go into a deal" with Garner and his bitter enemy of Madison Square Garden to eliminate Roosevelt. And if anything more than the McAdoo support were needed to alienate Smith, it is the support of William R. Hearst. So they say Roosevelt's managers have ceased worrying about Garner and are happy.

Perhaps so. But the New Yorkers, in their typically New York viewpoint, seem to overlook several factors that enter into the situation. One is that McAdoo's support may influence a few State delegations for John Garner which Smith does not control, and which neither Smith nor Roosevelt might be able to keep from him. Another is that Garner may draw a few delegations, on his own account, away from Smith and Roosevelt, though he is distinctly not participating in the "stop Roosevelt" movement. A third is that McAdoo support does not mean McAdoo control of Garner's candidacy; he will merely be one of millions of supporters, and Mr. Smith is too big a man to forswear a candidate simply because of one supporter.

That Embarrassing Question.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Since his presidential boom started, a number of Republican papers have been asking Speaker Garner whether he is wet or dry, and Senator Moses concludes a characteristic outburst with the same inquiry. It is a fair question, we think, and if it is fair in the case of Mr. Garner it is fair, with added emphasis, in the case of Mr. Hoover. "An experiment, noble in motive," was adroitly satisfactory in 1928; but 1932 is another and different year, friends, Romans, countrymen.

Running for Fun.

Memphis Commercial Appeal.

The entry into the presidential race in a big way of Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, of Oklahoma, has furnished a pleasant diversion from the seriousness of a situation that could mean another split in the Democratic ranks. The serious manner in which Gov. Murray has gone out to capture delegates and gain the Democratic nomination has furnished humorous relief to the gravity of the contest.

Nor has the governor's own sense of humor been dulled in the least by his adventure. The other day he was interviewed by newspaper men and he expressed himself as being certain of election, if he but receives the nomination. When asked what he would say in the speeches he is to deliver in Indiana and other States the governor was happy in this reply:

"I'll say what I please. If they don't like it, all right. I'll have a bushel of fun."

Ending a Business Racket.

Boston Transcript.

The more readily Congress follows President Hoover's leadership for law reform, the better it will be for New England and the country at large. In the improvement of Federal court practice in criminal cases there is the promise of a greater stability for law and order, and this can not fail to bring betterment of the daily life of the American people. Meanwhile, the President's recommendations of changes in the bankruptcy act—to stress this part of his message regarding the civil side of the docket—point the way to a positive gain in the soundness of business conditions.

Monetary Measure.

A congressional measure designed to lure idle money from its loafing places and put it to work is known as the Glass bill. Its use should be transparent to everyone. It will make the dollars more visible.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Tighter Laws Proposed Against Liquor and Gun-Toting, but None Against Death-Dealing Speedster.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is to air an idea of mine in connection with Wilson Young's criticism of the traffic authorities, the purport of said criticism being that in the study of means to facilitate traffic due consideration is not given to the problem of traffic safety.

Enforcement of provisions to prevent careless motoring is as important as law enforcement against bootlegging—perhaps more so. In behalf of public safety, rigorous regulation of motor vehicles is just as necessary as that to prevent indiscriminate sale of firearms. In fact, the lethal hazard of the former is much greater than of the latter if we may trust the newspaper record from day to day.

Action to tighten up the law to regulate the sale and restrict the ownership and use of deadly weapons has been recently taken. And now it is proposed to enact legislation for stricter enforcement of the national prohibition act in the District of Columbia. Yet there has been no authoritative proposal, or I have missed it, for a serious study of the problem of traffic safety with a view to reducing the shameful toll of traffic deaths and cripplings.

It goes without saying that like any average citizen I welcome the ban on firearms. I hold, as they say, no brief for the bootlegger. But I am astonished that more attention has not been given to the growing menace of the automobile. In line with Mr. Young's contention, I feel that there should be drastic law enforcement against unlawful motoring.

Fair-Minded Dry Charges Discrimination in Prohibition Enforcement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Though a dry, I am not the least bit surprised at the great gain in wet sentiment in Virginia, as shown by the latest figures in the prohibition poll conducted by the Literary Digest. I do not believe that this gain in wet sentiment is wholly directed against the eighteenth amendment as much as it is against the way the dry laws, both State and national, are enforced in this State, for it seems that if a person is a member of one of the first families, or if his granddad was kicked by Gen. Lee's mule during the Civil War, he can possess and transport as much booze as he wishes and not be arrested. But let a poor white or colored man be caught with a few drops of liquor; he is hauled up immediately before a judge and sentenced to pay a heavy fine or serve 30 or 100 days on the rock pile.

Is there any wonder that the dry laws are becoming unpopular in the supposed impregnable bulwarks of the dry cause? I am a dry who believes in fair play, but the officials charged with the enforcement of the dry laws in Virginia seem to believe otherwise.

When Was John Raskob Made Official Mind-Reader of President Hoover?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Raskob pronouncement on what Mr. Hoover will do in the coming campaign, is history repeating itself most humorously. Some ninety years ago a wave of religious fervor swept over northern Ohio, surged on to Nauvoo, Ill., where it gathered sufficient force to carry it to Salt Lake, where it spent itself, having found a resting place for the practices and coign of vantage for the propagation of the doctrines of Mormonism.

During its progress across the Buckeye State some of the preachers would "talk in tongues," and before sitting down would ask that any one in the audience who felt moved by the spirit would translate what was in the mind of the speaker. The only one who dared venture on such a philological voyage was the most ignorant man present, and though his version of the speech passed muster with those of his class, it was usually loudly derided by the wiser ones. Query: Since when was the chairman of the Democratic national committee commissioned as a mindreader of Republican motives?

Readers Indorse Protest of Mr. Knott Regarding Careless Motorists in Capital.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been greatly impressed by the letter which was published in The Post by J. O. Knott. I feel indebted to your paper for publishing it and to him for giving such a fine argument in conection with the reckless driving in Washington. I hope something can be done about it.

ANTHONY C. ADDISON.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with great interest the protest of J. O. Knott in regard to the killing of Miss Mary Fisher by a truck driver at Fourteenth and Euclid streets.

This trolley stop between Fairmont and Euclid streets is one of the most dangerous in the city, and four or five people have been killed there in the past few years. Nine out of ten cars that go down this hill in the morning are exceeding the speed limit. With children riding to school, a policeman should be stationed there, at least during school hours.

Disapproves Expense of Lincoln Memorial and Urges Aid for Race Freed by Emancipator.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Did it ever occur to you that in the Lincoln Memorial in your great city the figure of Lincoln seems to be attempting to rise in protest against the expenditure of millions in erecting a memorial to him, instead of using that money for the material welfare of the race for whose freedom he gave his life?

MURRAY, ON STUMP, SCORES BIG BANKERS

Makes Fiery Bid for Votes of Farmers in First Speech in Wheat Belt.

Fargo, N. Dak., March 3 (A.P.).—Return the farmer to prosperity and the Nation will be prosperous, Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma declared today in his first presidential campaign speech in the hard spring wheat belt.

He urged revision of the credit structure to take it "out of the hands of the stock and grain gamblers and the international bankers."

"We send a poker player to jail for 30 days—on the basis of the harm inflicted by the grain and stock speculators, we should send them to prison for life," the governor shouted.

Keynote of Address.

It was the keynote address in his campaign for votes in the March 15 North Dakota presidential preference primary. Gov. Murray will make a half dozen other speeches in the State this week.

Speculation is rife on the securities and commodities markets, Gov. Murray asserted. He said speculators have gained control of national and international credit, wresting it "from the real producers of wealth, the farmers, the workers, the middle class."

He urged coinage of money, both silver and gold "on the basis of the materials the money represents, real wealth, our wheat, cotton and other products."

He accused other aspirants for the Presidency of avoiding the "real issues of today, our lack of prosperity."

Meets His Brother.

"They haven't anything to offer; they fear to say anything, for they believe this depression will wear off. Wear off—a silly thought. It won't wear off. We have to get government back where it belongs, in the hands of the people instead of the politicians."

On the platform in the crowded Municipal Auditorium listened the governor's brother, George T. Murray, a Berthold, N. Dak., farmer. They met today for the first time in 34 years.

Oklahoma City, March 3 (A.P.).—Warm words from a cold clime reached "Murray for President" headquarters here today.

A letter from O. B. Skidmore at Ketchikan, Alaska, said Alaska's six delegates to the Democratic national convention are "lined up" for Gov. William H. Murray.

8,440 More Places Found for Jobless

Total in Campaign Now at 146,155 as Illinois Reports 1,250.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—The total unemployed persons placed in jobs since February 15 by the united action for employment drive reached 146,155 today. A total of 8,440 was contributed during the day by 156 communities in 38 States.

Illinois reported the largest number of new jobs with 1,250. North Carolina was second with 1,112, and New York third with 925. Headquarters of the united action campaign here announced that on Saturday the governors of Maine, Maryland, New Mexico, North Carolina and Pennsylvania will issue proclamations to mayors to call together leading citizens to support the campaign.

The report by States (figures in parenthesis showing the total jobs obtained in each State since the campaign started) included: District of Columbia (92), Washington, 5; Maryland (431), Frederick, 8; Oakland, 35; West Virginia (2,835), Clarksburg, 75.

$25,000 for Fruit Fly Loss Quiz Refused

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday refused to consider adding $25,000 to the Agriculture Department appropriation bill for investigation of losses suffered by Florida growers in the eradication of the Mediterranean fruit fly.

A motion by Senator Trammell (Democrat), Florida, to suspend the rules to consider his amendment was defeated by 34 to 33. A two-thirds vote was required.

PROGRAM SENDS UP PRESIDENT'S STOCK

failures have fallen off sharply; indeed, since the Glass-Steagall bill became law not a single national bank has failed. Stock prices have increased substantially, car loadings have shown an increase for the first time in two months and the decline in commodity prices has been checked—for the time being at least.

President Hoover's political stock, having gone about as low as it could go, is now in the ascendancy. As economic conditions improve, so will his chances of reelection improve and the Democratic chances decline. The big question is, How much improvement will there be between now and election day in November?

Looking ahead, Speaker John N. Garner and other Democrats are demanding their share of credit for the relief legislation that has been passed. The President himself has several times praised their cooperation.

However, once the gavels have fallen on Capitol Hill for the end of the session, once the campaign gets under way, the Republicans can be expected to claim for President Hoover the sole credit for whatever has been accomplished. Did the Democrats cooperate? Yes will be the reply, but they had to; the President's program was so sound that they dared not refuse to cooperate.

Meantime, as has been said, there are Democrats back home who are asking when the Democrats in Congress are going to accomplish something that they can point to as their own.

The Democratic House soon will introduce a gigantic tax bill, and will call upon the Republicans to help them pass it. It will be a bill that will hit the purse of almost everybody; one that will be popular with nobody. Consequently, it is doubtful if it will be good politics for either the Democrats or the Republicans to claim credit for it.

About the only matter remaining over which there will be a party battle is reorganization of the Federal departments and bureaus. The President's plan for reorganization has been ditched, and the Democrats are now working on one of their own. Undoubtedly this will be the subject of a major battle before the session is over.

MOONEY'S MOTHER HERE TO MAKE PLEA

Labor Delegation Greets Her at Union Station; Will Address Meeting.

"Mother" Mary Mooney arrived in Washington last night with her plea for release from prison of her son, Thomas J. Mooney. Nearly 100 persons were at the station to meet her.

Mrs. Mooney hopes to take her plea to both the White House and Capitol, and arrangements are being made by the International Labor Defense, which is sponsoring her trip here from California for her to call on the three senators, Cutting, of New Mexico; Costigan, of Colorado, and Walsh, of Montana, who are seeking to have the Mooney case data of the Wickersham Commission published as a Senate document.

She will also attempt to ask President Hoover, as a citizen of California, to aid in freeing Mooney, according to R. D. Winstead, chairman of the official reception committee.

Mr. Winstead released a formal statement, over her signature, last night, in which she said:

"I had to show to the world by coming across the whole continent that my son believes in the power of an aroused public opinion to free him."

She retired immediately upon arrival to her hotel to rest, and tonight the slight, gray-haired woman of 84 will be the guest of honor at a mass meeting at the Arcade, Fourteenth street and Park road, called by the labor defense.

Tinley Friends to Urge Him as Vice President

Council Bluffs, Iowa, March 3 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. Mathew A. Tinley, of Council Bluffs, commanding the Thirty-fourth Division of the National Guard, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Vice President at the Chicago convention, persons close to him said today. Gen. Tinley, asked about his reported candidacy, admitted he had given permission to friends to make an effort in his behalf.

Political observers said the campaign would be launched at the Seventh District Democratic convention in Atlantic, Iowa, Saturday, when it was anticipated he would be named as a delegate at large to the national convention.

CONGRESS DONATES U. S. WHEAT TO POOR into flour and, in cities of over 25,000, bake it into bread. No profit is allowed in the processing.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, told the committee 1,850 of its 3,000 chapters now are engaged in relief work in every county of the Nation and during the last several months has been feeding 1,000,000 people.

Judge Payne has said the Red Cross is ready to undertake the distribution. An effort by Representasetts, to give this job to the President was defeated.

The House voted down, 73 to 25, an amendment by Representative Johnson (Democrat), Oklahoma, to increase the wheat supply to 50,000,000 bushels. It also rejected, 89 to 22, Representative Huddleston's (Democrat), Alabama, proposal that the Government bear the cost of distribution.

Representatives Adkins, of Illinois, and Hope, of Kansas, Republicans, cast the only opposition votes.

Chairman Jones, of the agriculture committee, urging approval of the relief measure, told the House it is costing the Farm Board 18 cents a bushel a year to store and handle its giant wheat stores.

"The merit of this bill is that it won't cost the Government a cent," Mr. Jones said. "At present prices the wheat will have absorbed its own value in less than three years.

"In the light of these conditions and the distress that now prevails, the transferring of a portion of this wheat for purposes of charity and to relieve distress is not a dole.

"This wheat is practically useless to the Government, and if used as provided in the resolution will contribute materially to the relief of those who are hungry and in distress."

HOUSE BODY LAUDED ON SALES TAX BILL

Canadian Expert Says Draft Is Superior to Successful One in His Country.

(Associated Press.)

Although bogged down in a mire of detail over the embryo revenue bill, the House ways and means committee was told yesterday it had drafted a manufactures' sales tax system superior to the successful one in Canada.

Unable to determine whether the sales tax rate should be 2 or 2¼ per cent, the committee sidetracked the issue to hear G. W. Jones, of Ottawa, Canadian government tax expert, discuss the tentative bill.

"It is better than the Canadian sales tax system," Mr. Jones told the group. "It is much simpler to administer than the Canadian system, and the Canadian system is satisfactory to the people and the business interests there. The industries of the two countries are very similar and I don't see why it would not be satisfactory here."

The Canadian tax authority, E. C. Alvord, former treasury expert, and Secretary Mills, have worked closely with the committee in formulating the bill.

Acting Chairman Crisp (Democrat), Georgia, said the men discussed all phases of the sales tax section.

The difference of opinion over the rate of the levy arose when revised estimates of the yield at 2¼ per cent fell from $625,000,000 to $583,000,000 and that of the 2 per cent rate to $517,000,000. An effort is to be made tomorrow to reach a decision on the sales tax rate, Chairman Crisp said.

When the rate and probable yield on the sales tax is decided the committee will use that for a base on which to make up the remainder of the bill, now expected to total about $1,100,000,000. Decisions will be made on excise taxes on gasoline, electricity, industrial alcohol and other commodities recommended by a subcommittee.

Gen. Brown to Assume Charge of Flood Work

(Associated Press.)

Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army engineers, will leave Saturday night for New Orleans to assume charge of the engineers' flood operations on the lower Mississippi.

Latest reports have indicated conditions to be not as serious as first expected, and it was considered possible the Bonnet Carre spillway may not have to be opened.

Walker Friend Wins Subpena Skirmish

Temporarily Avoids Jail Term for Ignoring Writ in Seabury Inquiry.

Albany, N. Y., March 3 (A.P.).—State Senator John A. Hastings, intimate friend of Mayor James J. Walker of New York, today won a temporary victory in the Court of Appeals in his fight to avoid serving a 30-day jail sentence for ignoring a subpena to testify before the Republican Legislature's committee investigating Walker's administration.

The Appeals Court, highest of New York's tribunals, held that the procedure of procuring a jailing order by Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the committee and a former member of the Appeals Court, was wrong. The court, however, upheld the contention of Mr. Seabury and the committee that Senator Hastings possessed no legislative privilege exempting him from a subpena of the committee. It also pointed out what it said was the proper procedure for jailing the Democratic senator.

The opinion was written by Benjamin N. Cardozo, chief judge, who recently was named a justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Bus Regulation Upheld Before Senate Group

(Associated Press.)

Approval of the principle of the Couzens bill to regulate interstate bus and truck traffic was put before the Senate interstate commerce committee yesterday by A. McDonald, of Madison, Wis., for the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners.

McDonald is chairman of the organization's legislative committee and a member of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission.

SHOUSE MINIMIZES CREDIT FOR HOOVER

Democratic Chief Declares His Party Proposed Some of Economic Moves.

(Associated Press.)

Attribution to President Hoover by Republican spokesman of full credit for recent economic restorative legislation was attacked last night by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee.

In an address over the National Broadcasting System, Mr. Shouse replied to a speech made Tuesday by Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Challenging the authorship of the reconstruction program being laid to the President, Mr. Shouse said, "In it there are measures which he proposed, but in it equally are measures which have been proposed by others, some of them over a period of some years."

Mr. Shouse cited that Senator Glass, of Virginia, and Representative Steagall, of Alabama, both Democrats, introduced legislation to provide an emergency circulation of Federal reserve notes based on Federal bonds, and added:

"It was founded on a principle which Democratic leaders have been advocating for 30 years, and which Republicans have invariably flaunted and ridiculed. Even as recently as six weeks ago the then Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, and the assistant who succeeded him, Ogden Mills, emphatically disapproved the bill. But in spite of this fact apologists for the administration attempt to give credit to the President for it."

Former Gov. Brown Is Dead in Georgia

Picturesque Opponent of Hoke Smith Succumbs at Age of 81.

Marietta, Ga., March 3 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Joseph M. Brown, a principal with Hoke Smith in one of Georgia's most stirring and picturesque political feuds, died at his home today after a long illness. He was 81 years of age.

For more than 20 years Brown and Smith, who attained national eminence as a United States senator from Georgia, were arch political foes, but they were brought together in their sunset years by their common support of Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency in 1928.

Burying their personal differences in championing the cause of the Democratic nominee, Hoke Smith made several speeches against the "anti-Smith Democrats," and Brown, too ill to take the stump, issued a statement of loyalty to the party standard bearer.

During the campaign the two stalwart warriors appeared in Al Smith's Atlanta headquarters to be photographed together. Hoke Smith died in Atlanta last summer.

Naming of Wilkerson Is Supported by Loesch

(Associated Press.)

Confirmation of Judge James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, as circuit judge was recommended to a Senate judiciary committee yesterday by Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime Commission.

Loesch, who was a member of the Wickersham commission, said he was supporting Wilkerson because of "the way in which he handled the Capone matter."

News of Post's Essay Test On Subject of Washington

Students of School at Clarendon Submit Many Theses.

The James Monroe School, of Clarendon, Va., lined up yesterday on the side of The Post George Washington Essay Contest by submitting dozens of essays written by pupils in that institution situated on land often traversed by George Washington during his lifetime on his way to visit friends in Georgetown.

This is only one of the schools in nearby Virginia where the students have entered The Post contest eagerly not only in the hope of winning one of the cash prizes to be distributed from the $1,000 set aside by The Washington Post for the 108 prize winners in the contest, but because they want to do honor to their school in this Bicentennial year.

It must not be forgotten, The Post Essay Editor declared yesterday, that eight bronze plaques bearing the bas relief portrait of George Washington from the Houdon bust will be presented to the classrooms in the schools from which come the eight winners of first and second prizes in The Post contest.

How proud the prize winners will be not only to win substantial cash awards for themselves, but also this lasting souvenir for the classrooms in which they were pupils in the historic year of 1932.

Behind the writing of essays in The Post contest is an impulse to pay tribute to the "thoughts, deeds, policies and life work of one who was first in peace, first in war, and was, and still is, first in the hearts of his countrymen."

These words were written of George Washington recently by Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the D. A. R. The rest of what Mrs. Hobart said of Washington at that time is worthy of quotation:

"Long will the world remember and honor his regard for his mother, his fidelity to country, his sanction of religion, his knowledge of the fundamentals of government, his masterly poise in maintaining proper balance between Federal and State's rights, his foresight in asking for a merchant marine, his conduct as a citizen in answering the call of his country to serve as a general of an unprepared army or as chief executive of the new Union, his well-thought-out plans for future national defense, his skill in laying out sites of cities-to-be, his ability in opening up new territory and in building canals and improving waterways, his devotion to childhood, his love of home, his fondness for agricultural pursuit, his keen enjoyment of horses and dogs, his modesty, his dignity, his promptness, his serenity, his generosity, and his gift for friendship."

Entrants to The Post Essay contest are invited to call at the office of The Junior Post, fifth floor, Washington Post building, tomorrow between the hours of 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. to obtain free tickets to the special show to be given at the Rialto Theater on Saturday, March 12, at 9:45, in honor of The Post George Washington Essay Contest through the courtesy of the management of the Rialto Theater. In case an entrant is not able to call in person for his ticket, kindly send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Filipowicz Gives Polish Statistics

Idleness Is Comparatively Small, He Says in Radio Talk.

Illuminating facts about Poland were disclosed by Tytus Filipowicz, Polish Ambassador in Washington, in a radio interview yesterday afternoon with Miss Mary Meade McKone, of Trinity College, over Station WRC.

Ambassador Filipowicz, in response to questions by the college student, revealed that Poland is one of the few European countries maintaining the gold standard; that the present number of unemployed, 350,000, is considered relatively small in a population of 32,000,000.

The so-called Polish corridor, a strip of territory inhabited by Polish population, is indispensable to Poland's existence, the ambassador declared. He expressed hope that neighboring countries will maintain a peaceful spirit and forbear from ever attempting to annex the corridor. The per capita consumption of liquor in Poland is the lowest in Europe, and communities enjoy local option in regard to prohibition, he told his interviewer.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Sane Schedule.

DEAR Frances McDonald:

Upon reading the letter from the woman with the swearing husband and the fourteen children I can not resist a letter in answer. Of the ethics involved in staying with a man until there were fourteen undesired children I will not speak nor of the probably unhappy natures this woman has bestowed upon her children, but perhaps I can advise her somewhat with regard to the hours of sleep regarded necessary for children up to 14 years of age.

I am a governess in a family of the best social and financial standing. There are four children. I have been with them for fifteen years, and I am regarded as a valuable member of the family. I am devoted to every one of them.

The eldest boy was 5 when I came. He is now at college. The next child was a girl baby of 2. She is now at school. At this school the girls wear cotton stockings and low-heeled shoes and live lives of the utmost simplicity. There is at home a 13-year-old boy and a 6-year-old girl. They are under my care. Up to the age of 5 these children were in the nursery and in charge of a nurse. At 5 they came to me and I was responsible for them. The boy, 13, is preparing for the prep school to which he hopes to go next year if he passes his examination. Perhaps his day and the 6-year-old girl's will be a revelation to this lady with the fourteen sitting-up-late children.

The children get up at 7 sharp. The boy takes his bath, does his exercises, and joins the little girl and me for breakfast in the dining room. Sometimes the father of the family has breakfast with us, but the mother rarely does. She gets hers in bed and does her ordering, telephoning, letter writing (and it is a task as she is very charitable and has besides a large and devoted family and many friends). The children come back upstairs after breakfast to attend to their teeth, &c., and by 8:30 the chauffeur is waiting while they see their mother and father. We live in the edge of the city and the children are responsible for their pets and they usually have duties to perform for them. They lunch at school. At 1:30 the girl returns from school. I am ready for her and we take the dogs out and rain or shine manage some exercise unless it is terrific weather. At 5 (we are in the house by 4 in winter) she takes her bath, has supper and goes to bed! She eats at 6 a light supper. If her mother or father are at home they generally are with her at this time, or before her bath. After supper she is left alone to do her small lessons or read or amuse herself quietly. At 7 the light is put out, she has said her prayers, the windows are opened and no more is heard from her until she is waked at 7 a. m.

The boy dines with me at 6:30 or occasionally with his parents later, but this is a rare treat and usually on Saturday night.

As soon as the boy finishes his dinner he goes at once to his lessons. He studies until 8:30. At 9 he is in bed! And he is ready for prep school! On Friday afternoons both children spend an hour at dancing school. Saturday mornings they ride, and the boy has a boxing lesson. You will see that these children have a busy life and a very simple one. The little girl has seen but three movies. They are very happy, good children.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PLANTING HARDY SHRUBS.

HARDY shrubs, deciduous and evergreen, are as much a part of any well-balanced garden as the lawn or the flower borders. They are both decorative and useful as cut flowers. They add to the charm of a garden at all seasons.

To be very definite, we need them for marking the dividing line between our own and our neighbors' properties; as a background for our flower borders; to screen unsightly buildings; for foundation or base planting, or for single specimen or group arrangement.

When planting a shrubbery border always set plants of short, dense growth along the front of the border, graduating to tall-growing kinds in the back.

In preparing the soil for one or several shrubs, irrespective of the variety, be sure to spade the soil thoroughly, and when digging add plenty of sheep or well-rotted stable manure. Should you be unable to obtain manure, use bonemeal. When actually planting, dig each hole of sufficient size to give the roots ample room to spread naturally. Shrubs with crowded roots never do well. Each plant must be well watered at the time of planting. All the future attention they will require is an occasional cultivation to keep down the weeds and a little top dressing of manure or bonemeal in the late fall to keep up the fertility of the soil.

When planting a shrubbery border or a group of shrubs, be careful not to overcrowd the specimens; consider future development. Of course, when you want an immediate effect you can place the plants quite close and later transplant them. Those varieties which are listed in the catalogues as dwarf-growers require 3 feet of space on all sides, and those listed as tall-growers should be given a space of 5 feet.

Deciduous shrubs should be planted in the spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground and the latter is in workable condition. Early planting gives them a chance to make some root growth before hot weather sets in, and while you may plant up until the first of May, they will not do so well as if planted earlier.

Jane Interprets the Mode

A practical lingerie combination of lace and georgette, and a darling nightgown of pink satin crepe with "honeycomb" and lingerie stitching on the decolletage and penguin sleeves. (Dah-ray designs.)

NEW YORK, March 3.—What colors will be stylish for spring?

Well, if you must know it, that is one of the questions that "geeves me beans," as the lovely English lady says.

Because the most becoming color is always the stylish color. And women of good taste know this, as do couturieres of the haute class.

Of course, certain colors are popular every season, usually a color launched by one of the haute couture, as the pink of Patou last summer, and Lelong blue of some winters ago. But does that mean that women are influenced in their choice of color? No! They wear the popular color of the season or not, exactly as they please. And exactly if it is becoming.

So, now that you are duly warned, I'll tell you that you will hear a lot about blue for spring and summer. Also about pinkish or coral reds.

And then you will hear about all the other colors, how this one and that one is indorsed by this and that couturiere or elegante. The only colors I can't promise you that you will hear about are orange and purple—and then who knows but what they will spring to life tomorrow?

Now shall we review the general color rules for types? These are only basic rules, you know, and clever women can experiment with them. Blondes: All colors in the last half of the spectrum. Lighter shades best. Brunettes: All colors in the first half of spectrum. Richer and brighter shades best. Demitypes: Select shades of colors that are not too vivid for your degree of coloring. And generally those that flatter your complexion, and deepen the color of your eyes.

UNDERWEAR—is as they wuz, no I mean am as they are—or maybe I mean is as they does. No, I think I'd better start all over again! Underwear is as underwear does—yes—that's what I mean. And that's something that every woman knows, sometimes after sad and expensive experience! I just defy any woman not to admit that at some time or other she has been tempted and fallen for some impractical and improbable lingerie concoction that simply couldn't be worn under any dress she owned.

But Miladi Modern is wiser if not sadder. And she selects underwear which is probably just as fascinating but assuredly more wearable. Perhaps something like the lace and georgette combination affair I sketched for you today? For the lace, with its give, is nicely and snugly fitting, and the cut of this combination makes it both flattering and wearable under today's frocks.

And then for the unusual and delicious, she selects something like that lovely nightgown in satin crepe with its "honeycomb" and lingerie stitching on the yoke and "penguin" sleeves, which is what this kind of sleeve is called.

Au revoir.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HALIBUT LIVER OIL.

FOR a long time the cod was unique among fish in that it was the only one of its kind that was regarded as the source of a medicine. We ate the cod for the nutrition its meat afforded, and then we drank oil from the liver to cure us of some of our diseases.

Recent discoveries have shown that other fish supply us with products that have therapeutic values. The liver of the halibut supplies an oil which contains the vitamins found in cod liver oil. These are A and D. In one of these, halibut liver oil is far richer than is cod liver oil.

Since we are accustomed to the proportions of vitamins found in cod liver oil, the manufacturers readjust halibut oil according to the plan followed in preparing cow's milk for use by babies. Cow's milk is richer than human milk in fat and proteins. Therefore, in preparing cow's milk for babies we dilute it with water. Thus diluted it is poor in sugar. Therefore we complete the modification by adding sugar.

Halibut oil is very rich in vitamin A. In order to standardize it, this oil is diluted with neutral oils. Thus diluted, it is below standard in vitamin D. It is brought up by the addition of some viosterol preparation. This modification is entirely proper and, in fact, is common practice in the case of milk for baby feeding.

It is altogether probable that additional fish sources of vitamin-rich oils will be found. Salmon meat is very rich in vitamins, according to C. D. Tolle and E. M. Nelson. However, R. W. Truesdail and L. C. Boynton do not agree with all of Tolle and Nelson's favorable findings with reference to salmon meat.

There are several kinds of salmon and the vitamin content of the meat varies. It is agreed that those salmon meats that are reddest are richest in vitamins, and those that are most yellow and white are the poorest. The oils extracted from salmon waste are found to be moderately rich in vitamins, though they scarcely rank with the oils of cod and halibut. It has been known for several years that salmon meat is a good medicine for pellagra. It acts as a preventive and it has some virtues as a cure.

Oysters, clams, scallops and sea fish are of service in goiter. They are especially helpful in prevention, though they have a limited field in cure.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA.

Mrs. M. W. S. writes: Please write something of pernicious anemia, its causes, different stages, chances of recovery and how it can be treated. It seems as if I have never been needed so much before, and I am making a desperate fight for life. I have just discovered the trouble, although I have had regular examinations by three of our best doctors.

REPLY.

Probably no one knows the cause of pernicious anemia. Once it was thought that great sepsis in the mouth caused it, but now the blood disease due to mouth sepsis is called Hunter's anemia or septic anemia, and it is said to be akin to pernicious anemia, but not to be the genuine disorder. The treatment of pernicious anemia with different liver preparations is proving moderately satisfactory. Some patients have been kept in reasonably good health for years through its use. If you use it skillfully you should do likewise. Perhaps the entire pernicious anemia problem may be solved in time for you to build on what liver therapy has done for you.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

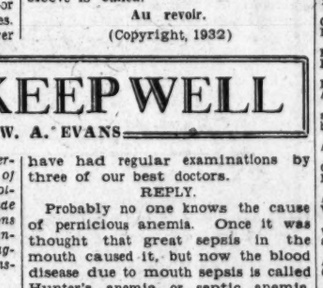
OVERCALLING OPPONENTS' SUIT.

THE immediate Overcall of a suit bid by the opponents, when your partner has opened the bidding, is an indication of a very strong hand and suggests, even at this low stage, the possibility of a Slam in the combined holdings, if only the correct declaration can be reached. Such an Overcall is the emphasis like the dot over the "i" or the cross over the letter "t" and usually it is unnecessary for it to be repeated. However, here is a hand in which the opponents' bid suit was three times bid by the opposing players before the eventual Slam contract on the hands was reached.

Neither side vulnerable.

South—Dealer.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1◇	2♣	3♣ (1)	Pass
3◇ (2)	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♣ (3)	Pass	4♠ (4)	Pass
5♣ (5)	Pass	6◇ (6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Suggesting a Slam. The bid implies but does not guarantee adequate support for partner's suit bid or an alternative strong suit of his own.

2—South's hand is a little too strong for the immediate answer of three notrump. While the diamond suit is not of rebid strength, it is probably the best alternative the hand affords.

3—South cannot again bid diamonds, neither can he support hearts. He, therefore, warns his partner of possible duplication of values and both of these facts by bidding the suit adversely bid. Holding both the Ace and King in the suit he knows that part of his partner's strength is an absence of clubs.

4—North now shows his second biddable suit. There is a slight danger in this course, because a game contract has been reached, but North believes his partner will infer the diamond strength by his showing of a void in clubs and then bidding hearts before he has bid spades. This probably shows a 5-4-4 distribution of the hand.

5—South decodes North's message, but cannot rebid the diamonds or support either hearts or spades. He leaves the final decision up to North.

6—North, finding his partner unable to support either suit bid by him, now bids for Slam in diamonds.

In the play, all 13 tricks were taken due to the fortunate location of the heart and diamond Kings.

TODAY'S POINTER.

When the information disclosed during the bidding indicates that you and your partner hold the balance of honor and distributional strength, the bidding should be continued as long as it is safe in order that all the possibilities of the hand, whether for game or Slam, may be explored.

THE HOMEMAKER

By NANCY CAREY

Rice and Liver en Casserole and Meat Course.

NOW for a Saturday's supper and then to think about our plans for the week-end. Happily now our week-end plans can take on new tone and color, for soon it is to be expected, we shall have with us enduring spring weather upon which we may predicate plans for picnics and all such delightful adventures in the open country. But for the moment, March being March, the routine of winter Sundays must be carried on—so here goes for our usual planning and, again as usual, on tomorrow we shall attempt to "catch up" with our requests for recipes.

SATURDAY'S SUPPER.

Rice and Liver en Casserole
Diced Buttered Turnips
Green Peas
Orange Salad
With Cream Salad Dressing
Saltines
Coffee

Rice and Liver en Casserole.

1 pound of calf's or lamb's liver
1 cupful rice
1 quart water
2 cupfuls stock
2 tablespoonfuls butter
1 teaspoonful caramel flavoring
2 tablespoonfuls flour, browned
2 tablespoonfuls fat
Salt and pepper
Breadcrumbs

Boil the rice in the water and when tender drain and mash smooth with the butter. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Line a well-greased baking-dish or casserole with the rice, pressing it firmly against sides and bottom, leaving the center hollow. Allow this to remain in a cold place until firm. Then boil the liver, drain it and chop fine, seasoning to taste with salt and pepper. Heat the soup stock and add the caramel flavoring. Make a brown sauce with the fat, browned flour and soup stock and add the chopped liver. Fill the hollow in the center of the rice with the liver mixture, sprinkle with crumbs and brown in moderately hot oven.

Orange Salad.

½ sweet green pepper, chopped
1-3 cupful grapefruit pulp and pineapple, mixed and chopped.
2 tablespoonfuls nut meats, cut in pieces.
2 tablespoonfuls canned red cherries, cut in pieces.

Remove pulp and white tissue from oranges carefully to avoid breaking. Mix with the pepper, grapefruit pulp and pineapple and pour over all the fruit juices. Chill in refrigerator. Serve with cream salad dressing on crisp lettuce hearts and garnish with the chopped nuts and cherries.

Cream Salad Dressing.

1 egg
2½ teaspoonfuls butter
¾ cupful cream
¼ cupful vinegar
¾ tablespoonful sugar
½ tablespoonful mustard
Pinch of salt

Mix ingredients well, except vinegar, and cook in a double boiler until thickened. The vinegar should be added as the materials cook rather than when the other ingredients are combined, and added very slowly. Stir constantly during cooking and drain when done. Cool and serve with salad.

SUNDAY'S DINNER.

Okra Gumbo.

Celery Olives
Rib of Roast of Beef
Pan Roasted Potatoes
Scalloped Asparagus
Stuffed Beet and Egg Salad
Apricot Marshmallow Frappe
Coffee

BETTER TONE NOTED IN FINANCIAL REPORT

Federal Reserve States Gold Exports Halted and Trade Conditions Improved.

(United Press.)

Improved banking conditions and a steady decline in the amount of hoarded money are reported in the first optimistic statement issued by the Federal Reserve Board in many weeks.

The statement estimated that $48,000,000 in hoarded dollars had been placed back into the channels of trade and business within the last month. The report also showed that no gold was shipped abroad during the week ending March 2.

This brought to a close an outward flow of gold, temporarily at least, that had been in progress for the past two months. Monetary gold stocks on March 2 totaled $4,350,000,000 (b), the statement said.

Surveys by the United Press at various Government departments revealed numerous hopeful business indications. Business failures during the last half of February showed a sharp decline, it was learned at the Department of Commerce.

The bond market continued its firm tone for the second consecutive week and commodity prices were steady, especially wheat and copper.

Crude petroleum production during January and early February was less than the demand. Lumber and cotton output increased.

Last-minute reports from steel and automobile centers indicate that increased production has set in and necessary adjustments have been completed.

Commissioners Accept Resignation of Bryan

The resignation of Frank B. Bryan, jr., as deputy superintendent of insurance and examiner, was accepted yesterday by the District Commissioners, effective last Monday.

Supt. Herbert L. Davis explained to the Commissioners that Mr. Bryan is resigning because the District Supreme Court has appointed him one of two receivers of the National Benefit Life Insurance Co. in the latter's suit against Robert H. Rutherford.

2 Prisons Studied For Capone's Term

Atlanta and Leavenworth Being Considered by Justice Bureau.

(Associated Press.)

The Atlanta and Leavenworth penitentiaries are being considered by the Justice Department for future imprisonment of Al Capone, Chicago gangster.

At the Justice Department, Henry C. Laubenheimer, United States marshal at Chicago, has been in conference with Sanford Bates, director of the Federal Prison Bureau, on where Capone shall be transferred from Cook County Jail.

The transfer awaits a mandate from the Circuit Court of Appeals which several days ago upheld the conviction of the underworld leader for Federal tax evasion. It was explained yesterday it is optional with the court when the mandate is given. It might be given even though Capone appeals to the Supreme Court.

Apparently the McNeil's Island Federal Prison is not being considered because Ralph Capone, brother of Al, already is imprisoned there. The department has adopted a policy of separating convicted members of the Capone gang as far as possible.

Reich May Reduce Credit 10 Per Cent

Renewal of $100,000,000 Loan Expected Today, for 3 Months.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Reports were current in Wall street banking circles today that the German Reichsbank would make a 10 per cent payment on account when it obtains a renewal of its $100,000,000 international credit tomorrow.

No statement was available at the New York Federal Reserve Bank in advance of the maturity date, although announcement of the extension was made earlier today by the Bank for International Settlements at Basel. The Federal Reserve Bank, the Bank for International Settlements, the Bank of England and the Bank of France each extended $25,000,000 of the $100,000,000 credit last year. The credit will be renewed for three months to June 4.

It was learned the Reichsbank had been approached with the suggestion of paying off $10,000,000 of the credit now on the ground that the effect on world sentiment would more than counterbalance the present loss of gold and foreign exchanges held by the Reichsbank.

Higher Cotton Exports Cheer Dixie Agriculture

(Associated Press.)

Increased cotton exports have brought a slight rift in the dark clouds hanging over Southern agriculture. The American cotton supply in January was reduced 1,345,000 bales, larger than the disappearance in the same month for the last two years.

Exports increased more than 70 per cent over January, 1931, due chiefly to heavy movements to Japan and China. For the first half of the season total exports were 11 per cent greater than the same period a year ago.

SWANSON PREDICTS SUCCESS AT GENEVA

Sends Message to Senate by Delegate Returning From Arms Conference.

(Associated Press.)

The word that "definite results will be achieved by the disarmament conference" was brought back from Geneva yesterday by Ben N. Cherrington, director of the foundation for the advancement of social sciences at the University of Denver.

The first member of the executive committee of the council of American organizations represented at the conference to return, Mr. Cherrington also brought this message from Senator Swanson, of Virginia, one of the United States delegates:

"You tell my colleagues in the Senate that we are going to get something done over here."

Mr. Cherrington, in a statement issued before he left for New York after conferring with senators and other officials, gave the following factors as compelling definite conference action:

"Economic depression in every nation is such that tax burdens must be lifted and resources released for relief of the people or governments will fall; the alternative is between action and anarchy; the crisis in the Far East has served not as an obstacle to action at the conference but as a stimulus and constant warning."

G.O.P. Delegation Fight Is Launched

Louisiana Leader Informs Jahncke Rivals Held Illegal Session.

(Associated Press.)

The first contest over the seating of a delegation to the Republican national convention was indicated yesterday with receipt of a telegram by Assistant Secretary Jahncke, of the Navy, challenging the legality of the New Orleans convention yesterday at which four delegates-at-large pledged to President Hoover were chosen.

The telegram came from John E. Jackson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Louisiana, whose group, known as the "lily whites" also selected four Hoover delegates yesterday at Alexandria, with Jahncke heading the list. Eight Hoover district delegates already had been chosen.

Jackson said the New Orleans group, calling themselves "old regulars and opponents of lily whiteism," held their convention "without authority of the national committee and without legal predicate."

The administration-recognized delegation headed by Jahncke undoubtedly will be seated.

Hyde Is Answered By Mississippian

Senator Harrison Assails Secretary for Stand on Extravagance Charge.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Hyde was assailed in the Senate yesterday by Senator Harrison for a recent interview in which he was quoted as criticizing the Mississippi Democrat for a speech attacking governmental "extravagance."

Harrison said Hyde had charged in a magazine interview (Editor and Publisher) that he had "been very unfair" and had spoken without facts or figures.

"I am sorry," he said, "that the Secretary of Agriculture criticizes as a whole my utterances when they were made in so sincere an effort to effect economies and retrenchment." He remarked that his references to the expense of Agriculture Department publications had been but "incidental."

New Bill on Shoals Predicted in April

Measure Provides for U. S. Operation if Lease Fails.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman McSwain, of the House military affairs committee, yesterday said he expected a new Muscle Shoals bill would be ready for House action in April. The South Carolina Democrat explained that the subcommittee drafting the bill was making substantial progress, but that considerable study would be made by the full group before it was reported to the House.

The bill provides for Government operation through a corporation in the event the $150,000,000 war-time nitrate plant project can not be leased to a private concern for operation. However, it also provides that after the Government begins operation, if a private concern desires to lease it for power and fertilizer production, it may be turned over.

BRITAIN CUTS ARMED FORCES $18,342,036

Naval Building Program Is Virtually Same as Last Year's Estimate.

London, March 3 (A.P.).—Great Britain today tentatively sliced $18,342,036 off the cost of her army, navy and air force for 1932, but left her naval construction program at last year's level.

Total expenditures for the three branches of the service were estimated in a Government statement at £104,364,300 ($373,188,064), a reduction of £5,270,700.

This announcement was lumped in with estimates of civil service and revenue department costs, showing that the armed forces and the two civil departments must lop off a total of £12,857,360 ($44,743,632.80) if government estimates are followed.

The navy estimate called for an expenditure of £50,476,300 ($175,657,524), a decrease of £1,128,700 ($3,927,876). Most of this was accounted for in a decrease in wage allotments and similar expenses to the tune of £1,059,000 ($3,685,320). An average personnel of 91,410, a decrease of 2,240 men, was provided for.

The army estimate was £36,488,000 ($126,978,240), taking the biggest cut of the three services, £3,442,000 ($11,978,160).

The air force was allotted £17,400,000, a decrease of £700,000, or translated into dollars, $70,552,000 and $2,436,000, respectively, in estimate and decrease.

The new naval construction program contains little change from last year's. Two cruisers of the Leander class top the list, with one of the Arethusa class (5,000 to 6,000 tons). Also are included one destroyer leader and eight destroyers, four sloops, three submarines, one shallow-draft gunboat, one destroyer depot ship and three small craft; one boom defense vessel, one tug, two tenders and three lighters.

The announcement of naval estimates was coupled with a warning from Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, that the total expenditure must not be regarded as "adequate provision for the navy's needs."

England Tightens Credits to Russia

Assumed to Be Insisting on Greater Purchases of Manufactures.

London, March 3 (A.P.).—Tightening of British export credits to Russia was indicated today in a government announcement in the House of Commons.

Hereafter, the announcement said, credits for longer than one year will not be extended except under more stringent conditions, but the exact nature of the conditions was not announced because they still were a matter of negotiation with Moscow. It was generally assumed in political quarters that Great Britain was insisting on greater purchases of British manufactures.

British Russian trade and credit relations are expected to be one of the subjects discussed at the coming imperial conference at Ottawa. Like tariffs, Russian credits probably will be used in the future as a bargaining weapon for the benefit of the world empire.

HYDE NOT OPPOSED TO FEDERAL MERGER

But Says He Is Unable to See "Specific Saving" in Public Works Bill.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Hyde testified before the House expenditures committee yesterday that if the agriculture viewpoint were retained in the Bureau of Public Roads he saw no objection to its transfer to an administration of public works.

Appearing at the special invitation of the committee to give his views on a bill pending to create an administration of public works, the Secretary said he thought there might be some resultant saving from the consolidation of building activities into one department, but that he could not "put my finger on a specific saving."

The appearance of Secretary Hyde led Chairman Cochran to say he "might yet have to withdraw my charge that Cabinet officers aren't cooperating" with members of Congress seeking to reduce expenditures by merging Government activities.

Thorough Survey Promised.

Pressed by questioners as to what "specific saving" would be achieved by the consolidation, Secretary Hyde said:

"Once more I say it is impossible to put my finger on any individual man we could be able to discharge or any particular work we would be able to do away with, but I do think it would be possible to make savings by taking advantage of seasonal demands for experts on different kinds of work."

Secretary Hyde promised to make a thorough survey and tell the committee about specific reductions in expense he thought might be achieved.

War-Navy Consolidation.

The committee agreed yesterday to take up the twice-delayed War-Navy consolidation bill in executive session tomorrow.

Chairman Cochran said he still hoped the committee would be able to complete its work on the proposal advanced by Democratic leaders.

Twice before Cochran has sought to have the committee approve the measure. Both times, objectors to provisions in the bill have prevented a favorable report.

Lame Duck Notices To Go Out Tuesday

Governors Will Be Asked to Submit Amendment to Legislatures.

(Associated Press.)

All State governors will be asked Tuesday by Secretary Stimson to submit to their Legislatures for ratification the "lame duck" constitutional amendment.

The joint resolution was received yesterday at the State Department bearing the signatures of Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner, but not that of President Hoover. The latter has nothing to do with adoption of amendments to the Constitution. The resolution will bring newly elected representatives to the House sooner, change the meeting dates of Congress and inaugurate the President January 20.

The Secretary of State will transmit the "lame duck" resolution to governors with a formal letter asking for an acknowledgment of its receipt and a certified copy of the action concerning it taken by various Legislatures.

Premier Denies Canada Financed Wedding Trip

Ottawa, Ontario, March 3 (A.P.).—Denials of charges that the honeymoon trip of W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington, had been financed by the Canadian government were made by Premier Bennett and Herridge today at a hearing by a parliamentary committee.

The charges were alleged to have been made in a speech by G. N. Gordon, former member of Parliament, in a political meeting in Hamilton January 6 last.

Trotzky's Rap at Stalin Icily Received in Russia

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Moscow, March 3 (A.P.).—Official Russia from Joseph Stalin, the Soviet's strong man, on down the line to the ranks of communism, today met the exiled Leon Trotzky's prediction of the fall of Stalin in frigid silence.

But the undercurrent of private opinion, including foreign, was that Trotzy's utterances were like those of an old actor reminiscing on past glories, or those of "a man trying to live on his past." Trotzky told the Associated Press from his exile retreat at Prinkipo, Princes' Island, Turkey, recently that the regime of Stalin was tottering.

Merger to Solve 'Royal Mail' Crisis

White Star Line Will Run as Usual as British Shift Finances.

London, March 3 (A.P.).—The famous "Royal Mail" lines, representing near one-sixth of the normal British Mercantile Marine, will be tentatively reorganized as two operating companies to avoid financial ruin.

This was announced today following recent financial difficulties of the company, which ordinarily carries a million and a half passengers a year, and has a personnel of 60,000 ashore and afloat. The government has £11,000,000 ($38,280,000) in the company.

Officially known as the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., the organization will be divided into Operating Co. No. 1, or Royal Mail Lines, Ltd., serving South America, and Operating Co. No. 2, which will serve west Africa. A moratorium on outstanding obligations until January 1, 1935, was proposed, and subsidiaries, such as the White Star Line, would operate as at present under the scheme.

Proposed Civil Service Cut Hits Military Examinations

Thomas E. Campbell, president of the Civil Service Commission, said yesterday that if its appropriation for the fiscal year 1933 is reduced, as provided in the independent offices appropriation bill, recommended by the House appropriations committee, among other reductions of activities it will be compelled to cease holding examinations for members of Congress for entrance to the United States Military and Naval Academies.

An executive order issued by President Roosevelt in 1907 provides that "upon the request of any member of Congress the United States Civil Service Commission shall aid in testing the qualifications of applicants for designation for appointment in the United States Military or Naval Academies, so far as this may be done without adding to the expenses of the commission."

Since that time the commission has been holding open competitive examinations upon the request of senators and representatives to aid them in selecting their nominees for the Military and Naval Academies.

The bill as introduced cuts the Civil Service Commission's appropriation $82,000 under the estimate of the bureau of the budget, which estimate is $115,000 less than the 1932 appropriation.

King holds the appropriation is unnecessary and unwise.

Dentist Confesses He Killed Mother

Follows Discovery of New Will Reducing His Bequest.

Seattle, Wash., March 3 (A.P.).—The prosecutor's office announced today that Dr. Albert C. McKeown, a dentist, had confessed slaying his 81-year-old mother, Mrs. Rhoda McKeown, of Muscatine, Iowa.

The purported confession was made public a few hours after the finding of a new will, made by the mother three days before her body, the skull fractured, was found Tuesday in the basement of the dentist's home.

Deputy Prosecutor Emmett G. Lenihan said the will provided for a new settlement of a $20,000 estate in which Dr. McKeown would lose the larger share. Lenihan said the new will provided that Dr. McKeown and a brother, Dr. A. Royal McKeown, a physician, share equally. Dr. Albert McKeown has been held by police since he reported finding the body of his mother in the basement.

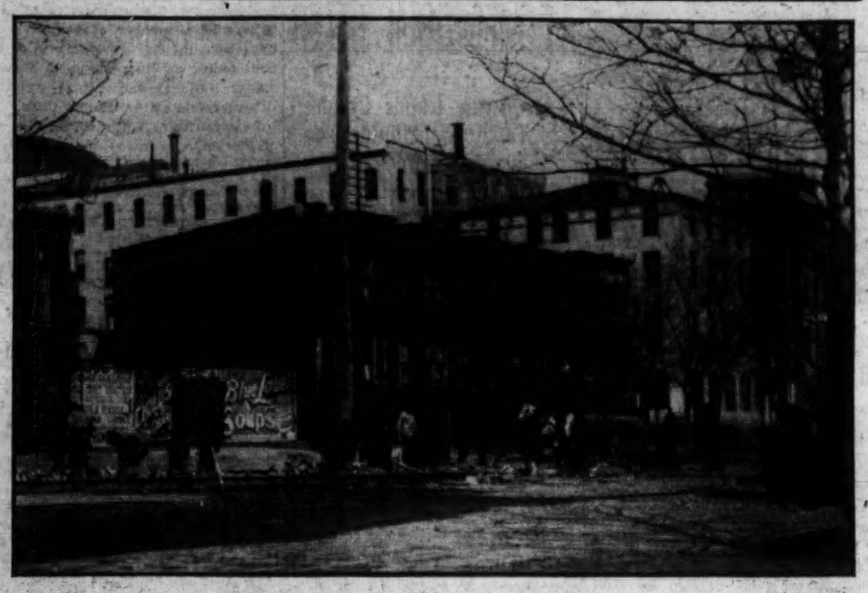
When Washington Was Younger—No. 211



National Photo.

THE site of the Government Printing Office at North Capitol and H streets is shown above. These houses that were torn down to make way for the building are on North Capitol street.

On June 23, 1860, a joint resolution passed by Congress was approved by the President, which provided for a superintendent of public printing, who was "authorized and directed to have executed the printing and binding authorized by the Senate and the House of Representatives, the executive and judicial departments, and the Court of Claims." The bill also authorized the erection or purchase of the necessary buildings, machinery and materials for that purpose.

On March 2, 1861, the Government took over a privately owned printing building, and used that for a number of years until the new addition was started in 1899. The old building is still used and with the addition, the Government Printing Office now occupies the block between G and H streets on North Capitol street.

President Lincoln appointed the first public printer on March 23, 1861. He was John D. Defrees and he held the office until 1869, when President Grant appointed Almon M. Clapp. Mr. Defrees was reappointed Public Printer in 1878 by President Hayes. He served altogether for 12 years, under six different Presidents. George H. Carter is now public printer and has held the job since 1921.

SENATE BODY URGES BYRD ROAD MEASURE

Favorable Report Is Made in Virginia; Option Clause Under Discussion.

Richmond, Va., March 3 (A.P.).—The Harman House bill carrying out the Byrd plan for taking over all county roads and abolishing local road levies, was reported favorably today by the Senate roads committee, thus allowing the House bill to replace a similar Senate bill on the calendar.

The bill was amended by the Senate committee to permit counties which use the local option clause to exempt themselves to receive the normal increase in gasoline tax, but not to patricipate in the equalization fund distributed heretofore under the "85 per cent clause."

The committee voted 12 to 2 to report the bill.

The committee increased the amount to be given the secondary highway system to be formed from county roads, in addition to the gasoline tax, from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. The bill carried $1,000,000 when introduced in the House, but was amended on the floor.

The advisability of removing from the bill the local option clause under which counties may vote themselves out of the provisions of the act, was discussed, but not formally presented for a vote. Senator E. J. Harvey suggested that the committee consider the matter and Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, and Senator George W. Layman, of Craig, expressed themselves in favor of eliminating it.

Prince Georges School Tax Holds

Budget Escapes Reduction by Board; Road Rate Is Decreased.

The school budget presented by the Board of Education to the Prince Georges County commissioners will not be cut, leaving the school tax rate at 82 cents, it was learned yesterday. The commissioners have already cut the road tax from 23 cents per $100 to 18 cents for the next fiscal year.

Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, presented a budget asking for $498,000 to run the system next year. This is the same sum that was levied for last year, although an enrollment of 450 more pupils is expected. The amount required to retire school bonds, about $50,000, is expected to be the same next year as last.

In line with their promise to representatives of the Taxpayers Association, the road budget will be lowered about $30,000. It is estimated that approximately $108,000 will be spent by the county on roads. This amount does not include the money derived from the gasoline and other State taxes and spent on State roads in the county.

Exchange Clubs Plan Mt. Vernon Pilgrimage

The Exchange Club, of Hyattsville, Md., will join similar clubs in a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon and take with them the underprivileged children of their neighborhood, the club decided at its regular meeting Wednesday. The pilgrimage will be held on April 2, and the Hyattsville club will be joined by members of the three Baltimore clubs and the Washington group.

B. W. Anspon, chairman of the club's Bicentennial committee, is in charge of arrangements, and about fifteen members of the Hyattsville organization plan to go. Kenneth A. Clark, of the University of Maryland, was guest speaker yesterday, talking on "General Agriculture."

PARK BOARD DENIES REZONING PETITIONS

Chevy Chase and Bethesda Groups Oppose Proposed New Trade Areas.

Explaining that they feared commercial encroachment would injure nearby property values, members of the Maryland Park and Planning Commission last night disapproved the two petitions for rezoning of land on Bradley boulevard adjacent to the Chevy Chase Coal Co. and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The petition had been presented by the Stone Tile Corporation and Helen K. Winfield and asked reclassification of the property as commercial.

The property, while situated next to commercial property, is classified as residential. Property owners and civic associations of the neighborhood had presented strenuous objections and pointed out that the Chevy Chase Coal property was in commercial use at the time the section was zoned and therefore is nonconforming and subject to change back to residential if the present use is abandoned.

The board of directors of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, Bradley Hills Community League, Bradley Hills Civic Association and the Chevy Chase, Section 8, Leland, Citizens Association had adopted resolutions opposing the rezoning, and a petition signed by nearly every property owner on Bradley boulevard opposing the change was presented.

The commisison did not announce any action on the petition for rezoning of the area surrounding Chevy Chase Lake for construction of apartment houses and stores which had resulted in a decided difference of opinion among civic and business associations of nearby sections.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL GETS STREET BILLS

Resolutions for Improvements Receive Readings; Building Permits Granted.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council yesterday placed on first reading two resolutions relating to street improvements. The first was an appropriation of $13,000 for the construction of five squares of modern roadway on Franklin street, connecting Lee and Washington streets, and affording an outlet for the Ford plant, which is now under construction at the foot of Franklin street.

The second was an appropriation of $5,000 for the construction of a road on Callahan drive, at the base of the new Masonic Memorial Temple, from King to Duke street. This work will be started immediately after the appropriation is made so as to have it ready for the dedicatory ceremonies of the memorial temple. The road is named for Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Masons in Virginia, and the originator of the memorial temple project.

The application of E. G. Yonkers, president of the Sanitary Grocery Co., to cut the curb adjoining the places of business of the company, was granted, with the proviso that the work shall be done by the city and paid for by his company, and that there shall be no charge for parking, the latter being the purpose of the driveway.

The application of the Tide Water Oil Corporation for a permit to install an underground gasoline tank, in the building at 115-117 North Washington street, was denied; application of B. B. Ezrine for rezoning of certain property on Franklin street, between Washington and Columbus streets, will come up for a public hearing March 24. Application of Myers Brothers for permit to erect a sign on Montgomery street, adjoining 854 North Washington street, was granted, provided the sign on the Columbus street side shall not project above the peak of the roof, the plans to be approved by the city manager.

Applications for permits, all of which were granted, were: Charles Arrington, 406 North Patrick street, to erect steps; F. C. Pullin, for windows in store at Queen and Royal streets; Milton O. Moore, 421 North St. Asaph street, to build an addition of one room, and John V. Kendricks, 521 South Lee street, to replace wooden steps with brick.

Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, will hold a meeting tonight at Gadsby's Tavern, when, after the business meeting, a program of entertainment will be given, under the direction of Mrs. Annah Meeks. The numbers will be: Three violins, Joseph Everly, Frank Perry and Linwood Scruggs; a French baby, toe dance, Mary Ellen Fannon; Spanish dance, Harriet and Jane Hulfish; vocal trio, Melba and Maxine Harlowe and Madeline Clark; Sis Hopkins, a tap dance, Evelyn Dillard; comic reading, Mary Davis; ballet in blue, a toe dance, featuring Jean Jeffries and Virginia Gillum; Check and Double Check, Harriet and Jane Hulfish.

Nicholson, secretary-treasurer; Lewis V. Bell, captain; J. Frank Carlin, jr., first lieutenant; Julian Whitestone, second lieutenant. Members of the board of directors are E. E. Lawler, jr., Magnus W. Bales, Dr. Carl L. Dreifus, Jack S. Howard and J. Earl Ross.

Senate in Virginia Delays Budget Bill, Pending Study

Measure, Carrying $85,000,000 Appropriation for Two-Year Period, Provides $190,130 Less Than Estimated Revenues; Page Proposal Killed.

Richmond, Va., March 3 (A.P.).—The budget bill, carrying appropriations of approximately $85,000,000 for the biennium, reached the floor of the Senate today, but action on the measure was delayed until tomorrow, after a statement by Senator W. A. Garrett, finance chairman, had been read.

The bill as submitted by the governor carried appropriations $137,312 less than estimated revenues, and the House cuts raised the amount estimated to be left as surplus to $190,130. The Senate finance committee restored the House cuts and made additional appropriations to leave an estimated surplus of $107,111.

Senator George W. Layman, of Craig, moved for delay as soon as Senator Garrett presented the changes to the upper body, and the senators agreed to give a full day for study.

The House devoted two long sessions to moving measures on its calendar. During the morning session the delegates passed the chain store bill, and advanced to engrossment the Harman bill providing for licensing motor vehicle drivers. In the afternoon the companion bill to the permit measure, providing adequate financial safety-responsibility for automobile drivers, was advanced to engrossment and the Page bill prohibiting the "unauthorized practice of law" in Virginia by nonmembers of the bar was killed.

The last of the county government bills, providing for auditing county books, was passed by the Senate with compromise amendments to include cities and require the State and localities to share equally the cost of the auditing. The amendments to the Gary boxing bill, recommended by the governor, providing for "amateur boxing bouts" and defining "amateurs" was passed by the upper House after having been passed yesterday by the delegates.

Before taking up the budget measure as a special order the Senate also passed the Saunders-Layman banking loan bill, after it had killed with a 26-0 vote the Folkes amendment adopted in the House to reduce the interest rate now being charged by small loan companies.

In his statement regarding the changes in the appropriations measure proposed by his committee Senator Garrett said that approximately $66,000 represented the restoration of cuts made by the House of Delegates, and in no way involved the governor's recommendations. The actual increase in appropriations recommended by the finance committee totaled $29,267, he said.

Three motions to discharge committees from consideration of bills in the House and one in the Senate failed.

Both houses passed a large number of bills, most of them being of noncontroversial nature, and moved many more to engrossment and third reading.

There was practically no discussion of the chain store bill, which places a tax of $50 on each unit over one in a chain system. The vote was 66 to 18 for it.

The joint resolutions, dealing with public school textbooks went into the Senate. One was by Senator Conway Saunders, providing that "for the assistance of the State board of education in the selection of histories" for use in the schools of the State. A commission of five, including the historian of the Virginia Division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and the historian of the Virginia Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, be created.

The other was presented by Senator Robert Noell, of Radford, and Senator Nathaniel Early, of Greene, requesting the publishers of Muzzy's History, the subject of a recent controversy in the State, to cancel their contract with the State Board of Education and to make no further deliveries for use in the public schools. The resolution said the text has "be come offensive and distasteful to the people of this State."

Train Death of Man Is Held Accidental

Body of U. S. Farm Worker Found Beside Tracks in Beltsville.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday in the case of Lester Damewood, whose body was found beside the railroad tracks near his home in Beltsville, Md., yesterday morning.

Damewood had apparently been struck by a train when he started to walk along the tracks after his car had been disabled. He was 26 years old, unmarried, and employed as a milker at the United States Experimental Farm at Beltsville. He was due at the farm at 7:30 Wednesday night, but did not appear. Yesterday morning his car was found, one tire punctured, by another employe of the farm. This man, I. Rogers, started to look for the man and found his body nearby.

The coroner's jury was impaneled by Magistrate George S. Phillips, and the case was investigated by County Policeman Claude Reese.

Democrats Appoint Alexandrian.

Police Justice William S. Snow, of Alexandria, was notified yesterday by J. Murray Hooker, chairman of the State Democratic committee, that he has been appointed on the steering committee of the national organization of Young Democrats. The organization will meet in the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, today and tomorrow.

Bethesda Lighted By Flaming Cross

Authorities Fail to Learn Who Was Responsible for Display.

Residents of Bethesda, Md., last night were startled by the sudden blazing forth of a mysterious burning cross on a vacant lot in the rear of the old John Garrett house between Glenbrook road and Battery lane off Old Georgetown road. The cross was about 30 feet high with a 12-foot cross tree. It was wrapped in burlap and soaked with gasoline and crank case oil.

The cross was set afire shortly after 9:30 o'clock and burned for several hours. There was no gathering about the cross and no permit for the cross had been obtained. The Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department had heard about the cross but did not know who set it afire. County police also denied knowledge of the perpetrators or of any permit having been issued.

Several persons reputed to be members of the Ku Klux Klan were questioned last night but all denied membership and knowledge of the cross.

Grass Keeps Firemen Busy.

Fire Chief James M. Duncan, of Alexandria, has requested all owners of lots with dried grass to notify him if they desire to have the grass burned, and he will have a committee of firemen attend to such work. The local fire department has been kept busy the past week answering alarms caused by burning grass.

APPROVAL IS GIVEN FOR NEW BUS FIRM

Charter for Operation of Line Into Washington Is Expected Soon.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Announcement was made at a meeting of the board of directors of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway Co., held yesterday at Alexandria, of the approval by the Virginia State Corporation Commission of the incorporation of the Arlington-Fairfax Motor Transportation Co., a subsidiary of the railway company.

Julius Parmelee, president, says that he expects an early decision from the State Corporation Commission on the application of the company for a charter to operate a bus line from Lacy into Washington by way of Clarendon.

Sheriff Morton Amsley, of Kenton, Hardin County, Ohio, arrived in Arlington County yesterday morning armed with requisition papers for the return of John Hebel, 29, and Louis Clark, 19, both of Lima, Ohio, and Andrew George Ackerman, 19, of East Rutherford, N. J., on charges of house breaking.

Sheriff Amsley, after an interview with Sheriff Howard B. Fields, left immediately for Richmond, Va., where he will have the necessary papers signed by Gov. John Garland Pollard.

According to police, Clark has confessed to having entered a hardware store at McGuffey, Ohio. While the two other men deny any knowledge of the robbery, police say Clark has implicated them.

Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue for Arlington County, announces that he and his assistants will help the taxpayers of the county in the preparation of their individual Federal income tax returns. Mr. Green says that this is a courtesy that his office extends to the people of Arlington County, as his office has no connection with the Federal income work.

For the convenience of persons who will not be able to get to the office during the day, Commissioner Green says the office will be open Friday evening, March 11, and the following Monday evening and Tuesday evening from 7 until 9 o'clock.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Henry Clay School at Lyon Park meets this evening in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock. Concluding a short business session, a program of entertainment will be presented by Mizpah Chapter, No. 2, Daughters of America, of Arlington.

Police Will Give Youth More Blood

Another Transfusion Is Slated Today for Ill Rockville Boy.

Worthington Pumphrey, 19-year-old Rockville youth, last night was reported critically ill, despite a transfusion of blood administered Wednesday night, which was followed by a saline transfusion yesterday. The blood was given for the transfusion by Montgomery County Policeman Theodore Vollten, of the Identification Bureau. Corpl. Harry Merson, of police headquarters, at Rockville, is slated to donate another supply of blood today.

Young Pumphrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reuben Pumphrey, of Rockville, became ill about five weeks ago from septic poisoning. His condition became so grave that he was taken to the Georgetown Hospital and finally transfusions were felt necessary.

SENATE REFUSES AID FOR CONVICT ROADS

Votes, 45 to 24, to Deny U.S. Funds for Highways if Built by Prisoners.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday voted to retain in the agricultural appropriation bill a provision against the use of Federal aid highway funds on projects involving convict labor. A House limitation was retained by a vote of 45 to 24, overturning the recommendations of the Senate appropriations committee.

Senator Glass (Democrat) Virginia, opposed the restriction with a bitter attack on State aid legislation as "a misnomer and a miserable delusion."

Senator Glass said Virginia paid $114,000,000 into the Federal Treasury in taxes and then was "doled out" insignificant sums in return, while some other States paid much less and received more.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, defended the proviso, saying he was opposed to using Federal money to provide jobs for convicts when free men were out of work.

He replied to Senator Glass that most of Virginia's taxes were paid by cigarette manufacturers and come from people all over the country.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, said he agreed with Senator Glass on the general question of Federal aid under which he said States had "sold their independence" but he added he would not vote to "keep convicts at work when the money could go to honest free men outside."

Twice during the day Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, sought consideration of an amendment which would permit Federal highway funds to be used for the approaches to bridges being built by State highway commissions although tolls for the use of the bridges are charged.

Each time a point of order was made and sustained, whereupon he served notice he would move today to suspend the rules to bring up the matter. A two-thirds vote is required.

He explained that the present law bars use of Federal money for roads within six miles of such bridges but contended it was aimed at private toll bridges, rather than State-construsted ones and was working an injustice to Kentucky.

$30,000 Suits Filed In '31 Car Crashes

Name Georgetown Student Defendant in One of Two Actions.

Automobile collisions last year led yesterday to the filing of two damage suits totaling $30,000 in District Supreme Court.

Bernard J. Mooney, a Georgetown University student, was named defendant in one of the suits, which was for $10,000, while William F. Downing, of 813 Allison street northwest, was named defendant in the other, which asked $20,000.

Frank P. Ross, of 1354 Girard street northwest, brought the suit against Mooney for injuries received September 19, when an automobile allegedly driven by Mooney crashed into a machine operated by Ross near Beltsville, Md. Corinne M. Jackson, of the Rochambeau apartments, sued Downing because of a smash-up between her automobile and Downing's September 7, at Pennsylvania avenue and Jackson place northwest. Attorneys Lambert and Yeatman represented Ross, while Charles S. Baker appeared for Corinne Jackson.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

A PLEASANT half hour visit with Linda Watkins and her newly acquired husband, Gabe Hess, a barrister of parts, following Wednesday night's last presentation of "The Gay Caballero"—in which Miss Watkins is prominently cast—at the Fox, served to bring out a few of this charming young actress' most positive convictions concerning the West Coast studios as a training ground for true histrionic art.

To make her viewpoint clear, it should be explained that Miss Watkins is a serious-minded young woman with an overweening ambition to do creative work worthy to be classed with that of the stage's great. When she journeyed to the coast after a considerable New York success as a member of the Drama Guild's acting company, it was with the sole idea of furthering a career that already had attained some artistic proportion. To her chagrin, she found the studios Bedlams in which artistry was sacrificed to speed and creative effort stifled by the dizzying demands of mass production.

Instead of a methodical development of a dramatic theme with an eye to rounded and convincing effect, Miss Watkins discovered herself at once at loggerheads with a topsy-turvy procedure that presumes to demand of an artiste that she assume and shed moods and emotions as one might put on and take off a garment. This seemed to her something surprisingly and shockingly apart from the purposes for which she had temporarily deserted the traditional stage. So she even more precipitately deserted the cinema, or shadow, drama.

Thrilled at being back in the East and contemplating the resumption of her stage career with the utmost expectancy, Miss Watkins is able to envision only one combination of circumstances that would induce her to return to the chaos which, to her, is Hollywood. The role must be one that she feels a genuine urge to do, directorial authority must be vested in one competent individual and not scattered promiscuously among 50 who are incompetent but still permitted to point out 50 things wrong with every project that is undertaken; the money consideration must be extremely satisfactory, and there must be a high degree of instrinsic merit in the play to be essayed before the cameras and microphones.

Frankly, Miss Watkins doubts very much that any such Utopian consummation ever will be made available to her. Put those are her terms for another picture—not another series, but just one picture. Not that she wouldn't make another under the same conditions, but they must come one at a time and not overlap, thus occasioning that devastating consciousness of mass production and the necessity of turning moods and emotions on and off like a water spigot!

Charming, with its bubbling sense of humor and ready willingness to laugh, there are still perplexing contradictions in the Watkins nature.

For instance, blondly attractive as she is, Miss Watkins is adamant in the view that she does not at all fulfill the requirements of screen beauty. And much as she abhors the slap-dash conditions under which pictures are made, she thought "The Gay Caballero," from the luxurious comfort of a loge chair, was not half bad to watch—even her own part could have been worse.

I'll say it could!

The Paramount Sound News has rendered a genuine service in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Not as a sop to morbid curiosity and not as a cheap device to attract money to the box-office, but as a helpful first aid to positive identification of the missing baby wherever he may be seen in the land, Paramount yesterday inserted in its current newsreel at the Metropolitan and Columbia theaters a special bit of footage which not only depicts the probable method followed by the kidnapers in abducting one of the world's most famous babies, but through skillful use of aerial and ground views makes plain the possible routes that might have been taken in making their successful getaway.

More important than that, greatly enlarged close-ups of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., revealing every identifying feature of the baby face, are shown together with accurate descriptions that amount almost to a recitation of the child's Bertillon measurements.

This special bit of celluloid even includes enlargements of some intimate studies of the baby taken less than two weeks ago on 15 mm. film and expanded to commercial dimensions for this express purpose. It is being rushed before the widest possible audience of motion picture patrons to facilitate easy identification of the stolen child no matter in what part of the United States he may, by chance, be seen.

Today is the day—or don't you need any reminder?—when Miss Irene Rich, headlining this week's vaudeville bill at RKO-Keith's, will greet her friends at a reception in the lounge of the theater following the second presentation of the stage bill. She will be assisted by the other feminine artistes appearing on the program.

And in case it has not been sufficiently dinned into your consciousness as yet—which hardly seems possible—"Broken Lullaby," opening today at the Metropolitan, with Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes in the principal roles, is the Ernst Lubitsch production which was first widely publicized under the title of "The Man I Killed."

This happy change in nomenclature no doubt marked the accomplishment of the height of something or other—I forget just what!

Mr. Robert Macgunigle, stentoring locally for Mr. George Bernard Shaw, points out that it was an accident that made managers first realize that Beatrice Lillie was funny. At present she is making her first venture in straight comedy in the new Bernard Shaw play coming soon to the National, "Too True to Be Good."

It was a "last night" in England in one of her shows, and last nights over there are eventful occasions. Many in the cast and audience take part in the performance. And this particular night Miss Lillie ran riot. She clowned through every act and kept making appearances during other players' scenes. The audience cried for more, and reluctantly the managers agreed "That Lillie girl is really funny."

She then was given the comedienne's part in one of Charlot's revues, in which she was featured with seven others, including Oscar Shaw, Lee White, Teddy Gerard and Clyde Cook, recently seen in person at RKO-Keith's.

"I didn't get over at all well, and any one else but Charlot would have dismissed me," says Miss Lillie. "But Charlot worked with me and helped me in my difficult scenes. Eventually I developed my own style of comedy, and now I'm stuck with it!"

Stuck with it? Pul-lease, Miss Lillie, as one of the original Peels of laughter, have you gone cuh-razy?

Eugen D'Albert Dead; Was Noted Composer

London, March 3 (A.P.).—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Riga today said Eugen D'Albert, widely known composer and pianist, had died there.

Eugen D'Albert was the husband of Hilda Fels D'Albert. They were divorced at Riga in January. He was born in Glasgow and lived for years in Berlin, where he did most of his work. One of his most popular operas was "The Black Orchid," based on a story of bootlegging in New York.

Wife May Get $17,500 On Drunkenness Charge

Los Angeles, March 3 (A.P.).—Attorneys indicated tonight that Mrs. Ruth Wheeler, who charged the Shell (Oil) Co. of California made a drunkard out of her husband, was to receive a $17,500 settlement of her $250,000 suit.

Mrs. Wheeler's suit, also naming the mother oil concern, Royal Dutch Shell of Holland, charged her husband, Joseph C. Wheeler, was required to serve liquor to oil company customers until he became addicted to drink. Wheeler was district manager for the concern in 1927 and 1928.

12 HOUSES ON SAME BEAT ROBBED OF $410

One Victim Loses $300 Ring as Burglary Wave Hits Sixth Precinct.

Twelve homes, all on the same beat in the Sixth Police Precinct and three in the same block, were robbed yesterday morning and jewelry, personal property and cash totaling $410 stolen.

At three of the residences nothing of value was taken by the thieves, who, police believe, have been working together. In addition the band tried to gain entrance to twelve more homes.

Detective Sergt. Fred Sandberg searched all of the robbed residences for fingerprints. He was unable to find any, however.

The article of greatest value was taken from James Dourick, of 1325 Geranium street. It was a sapphire ring worth $300. The burglar, who also took $2 in cash, entered by jimmying a rear window.

Other homes looted were those of Norman Campbell, 1319 Geranium street; Maj. Rex McDowell, 7208 Seventh street; Charles E. Storey, 1731 Geranium street; Mrs. Antoinette Perkins, 1208 Holly street; Harry Seydell, 7611 Fourteenth street; Mason E. Payne, 516 Cedar street; Maj. Charles B. Dendall, 802 Fern place; Hirst F. Sloan, 7517 Fourteenth street northwest; Mrs. Ralph E. Jones, 1340 Hemlock street; William Witt, 7513 Fourteenth street, and Mrs. Marguerite Wilson, 1312 Holly street.

Prohibition Called Nonpartisan Issue

Dr. Dinwiddie Avers Dry Forces Not in Danger of Being Stampeded.

(Associated Press.)

Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, last night said in a formal statement, "prohibition ought not to be a partisan issue and has not been during the 18 years since the successful campaign for it was launched."

Dr. Dinwiddie's statement said:

"The prohibition forces are not in danger of being stampeded over the number of signatures nor the mixed political line-up of those signing the petition to discharge the House judiciary committee from further consideration of the Linthicum-Beck resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"The clamor for repeal or modification is not confined to either the Democratic or the Republican party * * *

"Throughout the whole period of agitation prohibitionists never attempted to commit political parties as such to the principle or policy of prohibition and they will vigorously fight the effort on the part of the wets to do this now."

BUTLER GETS DEATH IN NEW YORK KILLING

Japanese Maid to Serve 20 Years to Life as Aid in Murder.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 3 (A.P.).—Gentaro Akiyama, young Japanese butler, was convicted late today of first degree murder in the brutal slaying of J. William Schatz, his former employer, and was sentenced to die in the electric chair the week of April 11.

Sadako Otsuka, diminutive Japanese maid, was found guilty of second degree murder and sentenced to imprisonment for a term of 20 years to life.

Akiyama received the verdict stoically, standing silently. His eyes blinked rapidly, but he appeared unmoved. He is the first Japanese ever sentenced to death in New York State.

Sadako, his sister-in-law, nearly fainted and was carried from the courtroom by attendants.

Immediately after Judge Graham Witschief pronounced sentence Jesse L. Rosenberg, attorney for the servants, announced he would appeal. When the trial started Rosenberg protested that prejudice against the Japanese growing out of the Sino-Japanese disturbance, might make it difficult for the Japanese pair to get a fair trial.

The jury was out two and a half hours. It had received the cases during the afternoon after a week of testimony that was sometimes thrilling and at other times gruesome and lurid.

Most sensational was the testimony of Mrs. Florence Quick Carozza, companion of the murdered manufacturer. She described a terrific fight that began before dawn in Schatz's bedroom and ended in the basement of the Poughkeepsie mansion, leaving a trail of smashed or damaged household furnishings.

The State charged that Akiyama, enraged at having been dismissed after a dispute with Schatz, entered the room where Schatz and Mrs. Carozza were sleeping, seeking revenge.

D.A.R. ENDS SESSION AT MEMORIAL RITES

Mrs. Owen Lauds Children of Today for Attitude Toward Government.

Conducting a memorial service for 87 members who have died since the last conference, the District of Columbia Daughters of the American Revolution closed their thirty-first annual conference yesterday afternoon at Memorial Continental Hall.

Among those memorialized were: Mrs. Maude L. Greenwalt, former State regent, and Mrs. Josephine Rust, who was national chairman of the Wakefield Memorial Association. A tribute to Mrs. Greenwalt was given by Miss Janet Richards, while Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins eulogized Mrs. Rust.

The memorial service was conducted by Miss Helen Brown, the State chaplain. Miss Lillian Chenoweth, accompanied by Dr. Clifton P. Clark, sang "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping."

At the morning session Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, told the D. A. R. delegates that children of today are growing up with a better sense of responsibility toward good government than their elders. She expressed the opinion that the country would be better off if high school students counted the ballots in big city elections. Mrs. Owen referred to the trips to Washington each year she gives high school pupils as an incentive toward good citizenship.

FRIDAY MARCH 4, 1932. SPORTS

THIRD OVERTIME GAME MARKS A. A. U. TOURNAMENT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., March 3.

WALTER JOHNSON today outlined three reasons why Washington should figure prominently in the pennant race and may happen to win the championship, and one reason why he is nourishing misgivings about the same.

The manager of the Nats, comparing the position of the club at this stage with the performance of the team of 1931, cites Carl Reynolds, Heinie Manush and Sammy West as three guarantees that the team will be better fortified than last year. His tone of evident pleasure undergoes a noticeable change, however, when he talks of his pitching staff, which he sees as the club's only gamble, but a big one.

Of the three outfielders he mentions, the Nats possessed two last season, Manush and West. Reynolds is the only newcomer. On past performances Manush and West were always valuable to the club, but this season Johnson foresees brilliant years for both. On the subject of Reynolds, the Nats' manager talks freely with supreme confidence in the former Chicagoan's ability to lend the long-needed batting power to the Washington line-up.

"Sammy West had a good season last year, batting .333 and leading the team," said Johnson, but this year I expect him to do even better. He will not be worried by his lame arm, which he reports is in excellent condition, and he has reached the point where he is not bothered by southpaw pitching which has always been his weakness. I look for a great year for West, who is capable of sensational things for us.

"Heinie Manush was not himself last year, troubled as he was from the start of the season with boils that made it painful for him to swing a bat or run the bases. Manush can hit 40 points better than .307 whenever he is in condition and those 40 points are going to help us win a lot of ball games that were lost last year because Henie was slow to strike his stride. He's one of the league's greatest hitters and we are lucky to have him. Left field will be one of our strongest points this year."

Johnson's chief pride at this time, however, is Carl Reynolds. As early as 1930, when he learned the the White Sox would consider an offer for the slugging outfielder, Johnson has urged his purchase by President Griffith. The deal might never have been consummated had Charles Comiskey, sr., lived, but his son, who succeeded him, sanctioned the trade which sent Reynolds and Johnny Kerr to the Nats in exchange for Irving Hadley, Sam Jones, and Jack Hayes.

"Reynolds is just the man we have needed," Johnson declared. "It gives us one more player who can break up a ball game, something Joe Cronin had to do all by himself last year. Reynolds, to my mind, is a great outfielder and will fit in well with our base-running activities. I think we are the best base running club in the league and Reynolds will do his share well.

"I have seen Reynolds park home runs into the left field bleachers in the Washington park and I have seen him hit the right field wall, a tremendous wallop for a right-handed hitter. Only Joe Harris and a few other right handers can hit that wall. Reynolds is going to give us a hitting attack that will balance our fielding, something that we lacked last year, especially with Manush in a slump and Sam Rice and Dave Harris failing to care for right field in a way that would help."

Johnson is shy at predicting the success of his pitching staff outside of the fact that he expects Crowder to have a greatly improved season. He is satisfied, too, with the outlook for Fred Marberry and Lloyd Brown, but beyond this trio, he sees a great risk.

Carl Fischer ran into a slump after giving evidence of being a big leaguer at the outset and Bob Burke has proved an in-and-outer for five seasons with the Nats. Help is expected from Monte Weaver, the Baltimore acquisition, but Johnson is not unduly optimistic. He expects the pitching staff to hold the fate of the Nats more certainly this season than in recent years. He describes the three rookies, Griffith, Ragland and Friederich, as long chances.

Four Women Stars In Golf Semifinals

Van Wie-Orcutt and Hicks-Lake in Florida East Coast Matches.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—The battle for the Florida East Coast golf crown will be fought out among four of America's best women golfers here tomorrow.

Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, faces Maureen Orcutt, former metropolitan champion, in one semifinal match, and Helen Hicks, national women's champion, meets Mrs. R. C. Lake, formerly Marion Turpie, twice Southern champion.

Miss Van Wie today defeated Bea Gottlieb, Glen Oaks, Long Island, 5 and 3. The Chicago golfer had two birdies for the round, which was stroked in one over par.

The closest match of the day was between Mrs. Lake and Francis Williams, Wayne, Pa., and was won at the nineteenth hole, where Mrs. Lake holed out a 60-foot chip from off the green. The pair had halved the first eleven holes and then played evenly, with the one never more than a hole up on the other.

Although Helen Hicks played well at the start and was four up for eleven holes, her opponent, Mrs. Leo Federman, Long Island, tightened and cut down the lead to one hole. Mrs. Federman lost one up on the eighteenth.

Miss Orcutt had little trouble eliminating Frances Hadfield, of Milwaukee, 5 and 4.

Exhibitions Awaited by Johnson

Nat Manager Seeks Line of Friedrich, Griffith, Ragland.

Boyle and Harris to Fight for Utility Outfield Job.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

BILOXI, Miss., March 3—The Nats' exhibition games, of which there will be 21, starting one week from Sunday, will be the proving ground for five young men in camp above all others, it was indicated today by Manager Walter Johnson in reviewing the status of his squad as it stands at the present writing.

Pitchers Frank Ragland, Lynn Griffith and Johnny Friedrich; Catcher Cliff Bolton and Outfielder Ralph Boyle will not want for action in the spring games as it is Johnson's intention to give them their fill of work in order that he may peer a bit further in their baseball futures.

The veteran hurlers on the squad, Alvin Crowder, Fred Marberry, Lloyd Brown, Carl Fischer and Bob Burke, will be given enough action to keep them fit, but the pitching burden will devolve chiefly upon the shoulders of Ragland, Griffith and Friedrich, for Johnson is already acquainted with the capabilities of his veterans and is eager to learn the conduct of his rookies under fire.

Although he is automatically assured a thorough tryout by reason of the fact that he represents a $25,000 investment, big Monte Weaver is slated to work frequently in the spring games, for Johnson is anxious to see more of the former Baltimore Oriole in action. He is already regarded, however, as one of the six regulars on the staff.

Bolton Likely to Get Job.

The feeling prevails that Cliff Bolton is certain to get the call over Howard Maple for the second-string catching berth unless Maple uncovers some sensational play in the early games. Maple is not yet quite ready for the big leagues, Johnson intimated. He has been handicapped, too, by reporting overweight. Chattanooga is likely to be his haven.

Johnson retains fond hopes that Bolton may take on enough polish mechanically to stand the Nats in good stead, for his hitting is a valuable adjunct if he is able to play regularly. The Nats' manager can see none but Spencer as the club's regular catcher but he has displayed a great deal of interest in Bolton's improvement.

Ralph Boyle, the youngest and newest of the club's outfielders, will be on trial in the early games inasmuch as Johnson knows the dependability of the other five outfielders on the squad. Boyle's fielding prowess has been extremely gratifying to the Nats' boss, but his hitting is virtually an unknown quantity and he will be given wide latitude to make good in the exhibition frays.

Boyle and Harris To Stage Battle.

A battle between Boyle and Dave Harris for the fifth outfielding berth looms, inasmuch as it will be necessary to scale down the outfielders to five on account of the new player limit of 23 which goes into effect on June 15. Manush, West, Reynolds and Sam Rice are regarded as fixtures in the outfield reckoning and Boyle must beat out Harris for the remaining position.

That Boyle and not Harris will work the bulk of the spring games is obvious, inasmuch as Harris has performed for the Nats for two seasons and Johnson is thoroughly familiar with his ranking as an outfielder. Harris was given a chance to make good as a regular last year on the second Western trip when Sam Rice slumped but he proved of little value at bat and his fielding cost the club some defeats.

The work at camp thus far ranks Ragland as the most promising of the raw rookies with Griffith and Friedrich rating next, in order. Ragland, a towering six-footer, is possessed of tremendous speed but in the past has shown a lack of control. It is this factor which is receiving much attention from Johnson. Griffith, highly confident of his ability to make good, is a workhorse in camp and possessed of a fine fast ball. Friedrich is working under the critical eye of both Johnson and Griffith and has won general approval by his action although yet to be tested under fire. He and Weaver are the only former college stars on the pitching staff.

Clear and cool weather greeted the Nats in their workout again today, keeping up the record of not a poor day for work since the Nats arrived here eleven days ago. The pace quickened for all except the late arrivals, Sam Rice, Bob Burke, Buddy Myer and Carl Reynolds.

The wave of injuries which descended upon all the coaches in the Nats camp yesterday proved to be of only a mild nature and all four were diligently at work today, Schacht serving them up in batting practice, Altrock taking the southpaw rookies in hand and Ainsmith and Gharrity

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

SOFT-SPOKEN Joe Pricci threw a monkey wrench into the orderly proceedings of the Recreation League at the G street alleys last night when he hewed his way through a mass of battered maples to a new world's three-game set record of 497, as a result of 186, 171 and 140 games. It was the second time this season the mark has been lowered, but Pricci's effort promises to withstand the assault of future duckpinners for years to come.

Ray Kolb, of the United Democratic Club, Baltimore, rolled a set of 463 in the preliminaries for the national tournament at the Recreation Alleys in Baltimore on February 20.

Pricci scored nineteen spares and four strikes in hanging up the new record.

Starts With Double-Header Strike.

Pricci made an auspicious start, marking up two strikes and as many spares in the first four boxes of his initial game for a score of 84. He toppled only only nine pins in his next box, but more than atoned for this with spares in his last five boxes for a game of 186. It was admittedly a great game. Joe himself was delighted with the score and the other boys clapped him on the back in appreciation of the noble effort. Some game! Little did any of them realize what was to follow.

His first box in the second game showed anything but a good count. Six pins were all he was able to fell with the three balls allotted him, and he figured that the much-feared reaction, which invariably follows an unusually high game, had set in. But when he counted four spares and two strikes in the following six boxes, Pricci realized he was on the trail of a new record. In the eighth box of this game, he missed one of the three possible spare breaks that he failed to make during the set. It was a No. 4-7 pin setup and he picked it. He came back with spares in the ninth and tenth boxes and struck on the final spare for a 171 total.

Pricci Bundle of Nerves in Final.

Pricci was a bundle of nerves as the third game got under way. News of his spectacular feat had spread all over the building and men bowling on other floors had left their sport to witness the little Italian in action. He inaugurated the final game with a brace of spares, missed a No. 6-10 spare break in the third box and counted a third two-ball mark in the fourth box. He managed to get nine pins in each of the fifth and sixth boxes, missed a "breadline" spare break in the seventh box and finished out the game with a trio of spares for a total of 140. Bedlam reigned as the mob swarmed around Pricci to heap its congratulations upon his shoulders. He was virtually exhausted by the nerve-wracking set and was soon spirited away by friends.

Happily enough Jack Leonard, foul-line judge for the league, was on hand to witness the games. Only last year a record-breaking game was rolled in the Recreation League, but it was not approved by the National Duckpin Congress because of the absence of a foul-line judge.

Incidentally, Joes Rex Team won all three from the Cubs and set an all-time set record of 1,857 for the league in so doing.

Fans Boo Dempsey As Foes Stay Limit

Cincinnati, March 3 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey tackled two more opponents on his comeback path tonight, failed to knock out either of them and won a chorus of boos from the crowd.

George Trenkle, Oklahoma heavyweight, took Dempsey's offerings in a two-round exhibition without trouble. Ray Vanzke, 210-pound Chicago heavy, found the going tougher and was on the verge of a knockout at the end of the second and final round.

FIRST GRID DEATH.

Duncan, Okla., March 3 (A.P.).—William Self, 11 years old, crushed under a pile-up of players in football scrimmage at school, died last night without regaining consciousness.

Lucas Signs Reds' Contract, Taking $2,500 Salary Cut

TAMPA, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Charles (Red) Lucas accepted a $2,500 cut in salary today and will report here Saturday, completing the pitching staff of the Cincinnati Nationals.

Lucas telephoned Manager Howley from Nashville that he would take the salary of $14,000 offered him, as against the $16,500 he got last year.

Lucas is one of the few all-around ball players in the majors. He has seen previous big league service with the New York Giants, in 1928, and with the Boston Braves in 1924 and 1925. He failed as a flinger with the Braves in 1925 and switched first as an infield candidate and then as an aspirant for a fly-chasing job. He then was shunted to Seattle, where he decided to make pitching his forte and he came back to the big tent the following year with the Cincinnati Reds.

"Red" has developed into a good pitcher now and, because of his bat-

WHAT'S in a vacuum?

Nothing, you say; but are you right?

The highest degree of vacuum that it is possible to obtain commercially contains no less than 370,000,000,000,000 molecules!

This fact was recently brought to light by an experiment of the General Electric Company. Seeking a novel way in which to christen a new airplane at Schenectady, engineers finally suggested, instead of the usual bottle of champagne, a bottle of nothing. In other words, they constructed a glass flask containing the highest degree of vacuums possible.

But here's what the glass globe of nothing contained:

288,300,000,000,000 molecules of nitrogen
77,600,000,000,000 molecules of oxygen
3,450,000,000,000 molecules of argon
644,000,000,000 molecules of carbon dioxide
4,470,000,000 molecules of neon
25,000,000 molecules of krypton
5,000,000 molecules of xenon

Even with all these trillions of molecules, according to the Scientific American, they were far from being crowded. The pressure within was only slightly more than a hundred-millionth of average atmospheric pressure. The bulb, at atmospheric pressure, would have contained nearly 29 sextillion molecules.

The supporting games will be between the Y. M. C. A. Flashes and Brightwood Indians and the Powhatans and Swann's Service.

Tomorrow night the Saks Clothiers will get a test, meeting the Brookland quintet.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

Fort Myers, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Rube Walberg, the last of the Philadelphia Athletics to remain outside the fold because of differences over salary terms, signed his contract for 1932 today.

The hefty left-hander, who had been holding out against what he said was a reduction in salary, described himself as satisfied after a brief conference with Connie Mack before today's workout.

Observers had predicted Walberg would come to terms shortly after the announcement was made that Lefty Grove had signed a two-year contract.

San Antonio, Tex., March 3 (A.P.).—The grand opening of the Chicago White Sox training season today was rained out, much to the pleasure of the athletes.

Manager Lew Fonseca's plans called for action as soon as the squad left the train from Mineral Wells, but the field was soggy and the exercises were put off until tomorrow. Fonseca is eager to get at the weeding out process and has ordered two two-hour workouts daily.

GODWIN HERE FOR BARRY BATTLE

Southerner and Local Pride in Portner's Feature Tuesday.

BOB GODWIN, accompanied by by his father-manager, Pa Godwin, arrived here yesterday to conclude training for his eight-round windup with "Reds" Barry at Portner's Arena Tuesday night.

Heated up over Bob's sensational draw with Maxie Rosenbloom, Pa predicted before a gathering of newspaper men that his son would stop the Southeast red head within four rounds.

Godwin will take his first workout today at 2 o'clock within the confines of Portner's Arena where he is scheduled to box with Billy Schwartz.

Bob is on his way to New York where the Madison Square Garden has called him to dicker over a coming match with Gorilla Jones for the National Boxing Association's lightheavy weight title.

Godwin Toughest Foe of Barry.

Without question, Godwin is the toughest customer Barry has ever been asked to face. Bob cannot afford to drop a decision to Barry, although there is every possible chance that such may be the case.

Barry is getting smarter each time out. His draw with Natie Brown proved that.

The Alexandria Day Nursery announced yesterday that Al Trainor, Philadelphia middleweight, who was scheduled to meet Joe Finazzo in the semiwindup has asked for a postponement of a week. In case Trainor cannot fulfill his engagement, Billy Schwartz will box Finazzo. The day nursery announced Trainor would come to a decision today.

Departmental League Delays Baseball Meeting

The Departmental Baseball League's first official meeting, scheduled tonight at G. P. O., has been postponed because of illness in the family of Vic Gauzza, league president. The confab will probably occur next week.

Morris, Red Sox Hurler, Dies From Knife Wounds

CENTURY, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Gaping wounds of a knife that was plunged into Big Ed Morris' chest during a fight at a fish fry given in his honor Monday night caused the death of the veteran pitcher for the Boston Red Sox here today.

Soon after he died, Joe White, a gasoline station operator at Brewton, Ala., was arested and charged with murder.

Witnesses said he and the pitcher engaged in an argument at the party that was intended as a farewell to Morris on the eve of his departure for the Red Sox training camp at Savannah, Ga. Morris knocked the gasoline dealer down and then tripped and fell. As he lay on the ground, the witnesses said, White stabbed him twice. The knife blade barely missed his heart.

Morris was brought to a hospital here and at first doctors gave him an even chance to recover. His condition took a turn for the worse last night, however, and the doctors resorted to oxygen today in efforts to prolong his life.

He lived at Flomaton, Ala., across the State line from this city. He is survived by his widow and two children and his mother, who resides at Forshee, Ala., his birthplace.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Ed Morris, who died today at Century, Fla., was considered one of major league baseball's best right-handed pitchers a few years ago, but a sore arm had impaired his usefulness to

Gains Annexes British Title As Chief Second Drops Dead

LONDON, March 3 (A.P.).—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro, won the British Empire heavyweight championship at Albert Hall tonight, but his victory over Dan McCorkindale, of South Africa, cost the life of his chief second, Jack Goodwin.

Goodwin suffered a heart attack as the fighters went to their corners at the end of the thirteenth round, collapsed and died.

Gains, the Canadian champion, beat McCorkindale on points in 15 rounds.

The referee's decision was greeted with boos from all parts of the hall, although Gains had floored the South African champion for counts of eight and nine in the ninth round.

Gains is expected soon to be matched with Primo Carnera, the Italian giant.

Goodwin's death removed a well-known figure in British sporting circles. He had trained Gains for tonight's fight.

STEELE WINS FEATURE ON MAT

Throws Kotsonaros; Roebuck Downs Frank Spears.

FORMER collegiate football headliners stole the show last night as Joe Turner's rassling crew staged its homecoming at the Washington Auditorium. While 4,500 looked on, Theodore ("Tiny") Roebuck, grappling for dear old Haskell, spilled hefty Frank Spears with a flying mare in 27 minutes.

In the other end of the double-header wind-up Ray Steele, crown prince of Jack Curley's clique, outclassed George Kotsonaros, an erstwhile movie actor. Steele used a body back-drop to overcome George in 34 minutes.

Roebuck Makes Hit With Fans.

Though considerably overnourished, Roebuck captured the mob's fancy in short order. Alternating in his use of body slams and left hooks and occasionally obliging by permitting his 248 pounds to be tossed from pillar to post, the big Indian brought the crowd to its feet with a whirlwind finish.

Spears, who once was outstanding as a gridironer at Georgia Tech, tried to cash in on a flying tackle. Eventually, however, he wilted under the pressure of 'Tiny's' powerful body holds.

Though obviously the master of Kotsonaros, Steele was extended to the limit in the main spot. Showing a marked willingness to mix it hot and heavy, Kotsonaros kept Ray on his toes all the way.

Using every trick of the trade, Steele had his shifty opponent in a bad way several times during the first ten minutes. The latter wiggled out of these holds expertly, however, and was going strongly until the finish.

Lanky Fred Grobmeier was cheered to the echo in the extra added attraction when he tumbled aggressive Cy Williams with his famed figure-four hook scissors. Fred required only fifteen and a half minutes to turn the trick.

Though outweighed by more than 30 pounds, Grobmeier flashed surprising power, easily eluding the bull-like advances of the former University of Florida footballer.

Ginsberg Bows to McLeod.

Williams, a fast and colorful worker, rushed Fred to the ropes repeatedly, but never at any time had his opponent in difficulty.

Luckless Benny Ginsberg again fell short in a preliminary go, falling before George McLeod's leg scissors after thirteen and a half minutes. Prior to his downfall, Ginsberg had made good with plenty to spare.

Popular "Doc" Wilson traveled 30 minutes to a draw with Paul Harper in the curtain raiser. The medicine man had Harper in a bad way on several occasions.

Strangler Lewis Meets Tiny Roebuck to Finish

"Tiny" Roebuck and "Strangler" Lewis are to square off in a finish match next Thursday night at the Washington Auditorium. This go is to feature an all-star card now being lined up by Promoter Joe Turner.

In a recent bout Roebuck was downed after a lengthy session, many disagreeing with the referee's decision.

SHIKAT BEATS SZABO.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3 (A.P.).—Sandor Szabo, of Hungary, finished a flying tackle in the laps of ringside customers tonight and lost his wrestling bout here to Dick Shikat, of Philadelphia, when he was unable to return to the mat. The time was 38 minutes. Szabo weighed 204; Shikat, 223.

St. John's Victors in 37-15 Win Over McLean A. C.

Northern Preps Rout Ingram 130-Pound Team, 28 to 9.

THE crack Company F team, of the Hyattsville National Guards, was eliminated last night by the United Typewriter Grays in the District A. A. U. tournament, which The Washington Post is sponsoring at Tech High Gymnasium. The Grays took the unlimited contest, 40 to 31.

However, the real thrill for the fans was the uphill battle of the Aloha-Lites, darkest of tourney dark horses, who gave one of the punkiest exhibitions in tournament history in defeating the 130-pound Georgetown Boys Club five, 21 to 19, in an extra period. The winners, composed of boys from the Kendall School for the Deaf, trailed by 10 to 0 at one stage.

The St. John's Victors, with their array of prep school champions, played the part of true favorites when they defeated the McLean A. C. team, 37-15, in the 145-pound division. In the second 130-pound battle the Northern Preps trounced the Ingram Church quintet, 28-9.

Typewriter Grays Win From Compapny F Five

The United Typewriter Gray-Company F battle was much closer than the 40-31 score would indicate and, although the Grays always were in the van, their margin was never a comfortable one until near the end of the game and during one rally as the first half was drawing to a close.

This spurt put the Grays in front, 27-13, at the intermission, but the Maryland Guardsmen then suddenly found the basket for half a dozen field goals in a row and at one time pulled up to 33-29. It was at this stage of the proceedings that the Grays mustered their strength and stepped out in front to victory.

Both teams showed flashes of brilliant floor-work, with Sells and B Cogar being the individual heroes for their teams. The former accounted for 20 points, while Cogar had 15 to his credit, with Williams, of the losers, also making his presence felt. He tallied 11 points.

Aloha-Lites Triumph In Overtime Contest

The Aloha-Lites, composed of boys from the Kendall School for the Deaf, gave the boys in the 130-pound class something to think over last night when they staged a gallant rally to tie the Georgetown Boys' Club, 14 to 14, at the end of regulation time, and then stepped out to a 21-to-16 victory in an extra period.

The Lites' uphill fight was one of the most thrilling of tournament history. Coach Andy Mack's five trailed, 10 to 0, at the end of the first period, had moved up to a 10-to-6 score at the half, and were behind, 12 to 8, at the finish of the third period.

O'Brien paved the way for the 14-to-14 tie at the end of game time. The Boys' Club Team stepped ahead on Morrison's long shot at the start of the overtime, but Buzzelli came through with a basket for the Lites. Cougar followed with a field goal and Buzzelli clinched the game with a field goal and a foul goal.

St. John's Runs Amuck Over McLean Tossers

The St. John's Victors, composed of a majority of the players who recently won the District prep school title and rated as one of the choices to cop in the 145-pound class, made good with little or no trouble in its fracas with the McLean A. C. The score, 35 to 17, just about shows the comparative strength of the two teams.

Showing smooth passing, plenty of speed afoot and keen shooting eyes, the Johnnies jumped into an early lead and simply coasted to victory. At the intermission, they led, 17-9, and carried on at about the same pace over the second half of the route.

Scheele, with 12 points, was high gun of the game, with Peruso, of the winners, and Thompson, of the losers,

PANETIAN SETS TROPICAL PARK MARK IN WINNING FEATURE

King Gelding 3-Lengths Victor

Clips 1-5 Second Off of 5½ Furlongs Track Record.

Vaccilate Is Second, With Flag Bearer in Third Hole.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 3 (A. P.).—Panetian, the 4-year-old gelding which C. Leroy King purchased at private terms from G. D. Widener at the recent Hialeah meeting, won his second straight victory for his new owner and turned in the fastest 5½ furlongs of the season here this afternoon.

The Son of Galetian, in winning the featured Pompano Handicap, created a new track record of 1:04 4-5, under 120 pounds, clipping one-fifth of a second off the old mark established by Song Hit at the first meeting of the Gables Racing Association. The winner paid $6.10.

Panetian breezed past the finish line three lengths in advance of Vaccilate, which Buddy Ensor guided into second position, a head before Flag Bearer. Don Leon, after being held in tight quarters on the back stretch, was fourth. Pennate almost went to his knees about a furlong after the start and had no chance.

Buddy Ensor Has Narrow Escape.

The field left in good order after Panetian, Flag Bearer and Don Leon had caused a delay of fourteen minutes. Panetian was full of run and forged to the front rounding the stretch turn. From there, he romped away from his rivals.

Buddy Ensor, who began his comeback campaign in Cuba by riding 21 winners in 26 days and who rode a winner here yesterday, had a close call in the juvenile dash, first on the card. Ensor was astride Bonnie Lillian and the filly was bumped and fell shortly after the start, but jockey and horse escaped uninjured. The talent put over Adorland and received $4.60 for $2. Ensor came into his own in the third race when he kicked home the Heathen, even money favorite. The B. B. Stable's Veteran Sprinter was dropped in the cheapest field he has been asked to meet and easily led all the way to pass the judges three lengths clear. Bob Blackburn neglected in the betting saved the place by a neck from Sun Teatime.

Dollar Princess Is Victor At New Orleans.

Fair Grounds, New Orleans, March 3 (A.P.).—A. Pelleteri's Dollar Princess, a 3-year-old daughter of Snob II and Yankee Princess, easily accounted for the $800 Panzerata Purse, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, here today.

An outsider in the betting, Dollar Princess ran the 6 furlongs in 1:13 4-5 to beat James Poland's My Sweets by three lengths. E. R. Bradley's Harlem was third.

Dollar Princess paid $25.20 for $2 to win, $11.60 to place, and $4.80 for show.

Nelson Makes Show of Field At Havana.

Havana, March 3 (A.P.).—J. E. Smallman's Nelson made a show of his field in the fifth and feature race at Oriental Park today.

The 5-year-old bay gelding by Cherokee—Some Kid won the $800 claiming affair by five lengths over I. O. Reickenthaler's Silver Canopy which was driving hard to save the place from S. Gorbet's Ada Epinard.

Nelson ran the six furlongs in the fast time of 112 and paid 4 to 1 in the betting.

U. S.-OWNED HORSE WINS.

Cheltenham, Eng., Mar. 3 (A.P.).—F. A. Ambrose Clark's Chadds Ford at odds of 8 to 1 today won the Foxhunters Challenge Cup over four miles by a length from Major R. L. McCreery's Canste and 22 others.

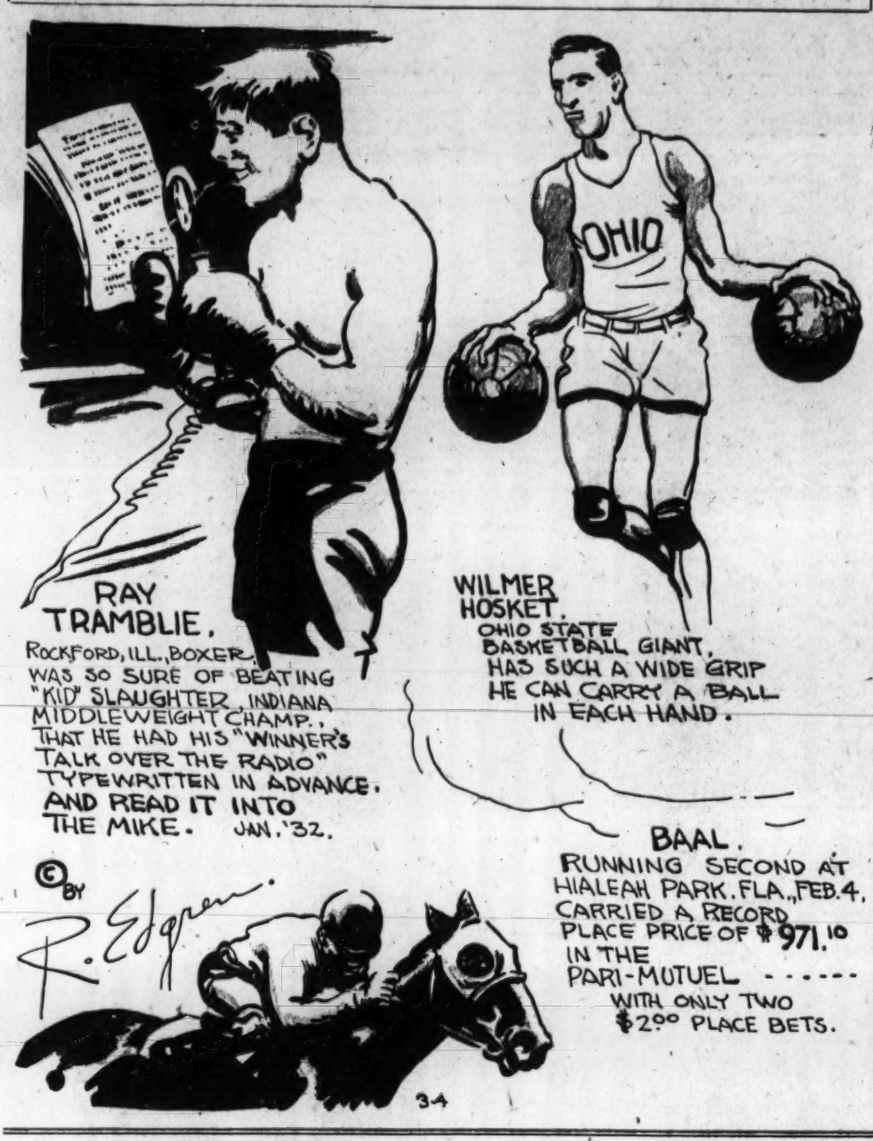
MIRACLES OF SPORTS —By Robert Edgren



Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Tropical Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

TROPICAL PARK, Miami, Fla., March 3.—TRAITOR, for two seasons a consistent horse in Florida, and winner in his last start in 1:11 4-5, is selected for the feature at Tropical Park tomorrow, but will be in stronger company than that in which he scored his recent victory, with GLENSIDE especially dangerous. The race appears largely between the two and the distance is 7 furlongs, with POLYGAMOUS also capable of pressing the leaders.

GLENSIDE has the worst of the weights, carrying 118 pounds, conceding to both the others. He won his last start at a mile, leading all the way. GLENSIDE finished third to Please last out, but beat Please in his previous start. There are other fast horses in this race, with the speedy ELLICE and KENSINGTON, fillies, getting in below 100 pounds. Both Florida tracks have had fair weather with few exceptions, and the course is fast.

FIRST RACE—HELIOS appears best of the 2-year-olds in the opener. The J. D. Ely colt has won several races in the South, and Saturday beat a good field, equalling the track mark for 3 furlongs. FRETWORK, heavily backed in the Miami Nursery Stakes to beat Wise Anne and winner in a previous start, should be the contender. IPRAL should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE — DEDICATE has been showing signs of returning to good form and looks like the winner. ESTIN is sure to run well and is dangerous. He was second by a head the other day to Light Nun. NONANA, a Rancocas cast-off, is fast and should be no worse than third.

THIRD RACE—TUSKEGEE is the class of the third and had early speed against horses like Traitor last out, but tired. He should benefit by that race and is selected to win. HIGHEST POINT, a beaten favorite, is rated the contender. MORTIME should hold out for third money.

FIFTH RACE—WAR SAINT appears to be the class of the fifth. In a previous race he was second to Partisan and on that showing should win this. MERRY WINDSOR, which turned a sparkling race Wednesday, winning in 1:06, will be a dangerous contender. LAWYER, winner last out, looks next best.

SIXTH RACE — TANTALIZING is best. MISS CHILLA is most dangerous of the opposition. PUTTER may get third money, but her form is bad. In his last start TANTALIZING was second to Sir Byron.

SEVENTH RACE — JUNGLE BOY showed a good effort in his last start by running second to Fair Blanche, beaten a head. SINGLE KAY has a chance and is picked for the place. CASTLE ROCK should be at the others.

Browning-Martin On Monday Card

Considered a main eventer throughout the circuit, "Tornado Jim" Browning voluntarily will fall into a preliminary spot Monday night when the Boiling Field Athletic Association stages its all-star wrestling show at Boiling Field Armory.

Browning engages "Bull" Martin in a supplementary attraction to the two-star main go involving Karl Pojello and Rudy Laditzi and Billy Bartush and Tommy Texis.

Having shown in some 700 matches, Browning has met with defeat but three times. He recently was a principal in a Boston show that attracted a 25,000 turnout.

Martin, a great card locally several years ago, is still the showman of old. He also has developed into a top-lining grappler.

Tickets are available at Goldie Ahearn's, Gayety Lunch, and Hoya Inn.

LADY LEGS broke rapidly on the outside and drew away into an easy lead first furlong. Mills hugged the rail and saved ground all the way. She was inclined to stop at end and had to be ridden out to stall off DUNNELLEN. Latter, a forward contender most of journey, was forced to work his way up on outside in early stages. DANCING BOY weakened under punishment. KING ROW broke slowly and was never a dangerous factor. BIG SPRING was shuffled back soon after the break.

EASTERN WINS, CENTRAL BOWS IN HIGH SCHOOL TOURNEY

Harrisonburg Beaten by 60 to 15

Danville Noses Out Central, 29-27, in Overtime Game.

Bristol Team Withdraws From Play at Lexington.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 3.—Eastern High of Washington won and Central lost in the first-round play in the Washington and Lee scholastic court tournament, staged here, Eastern running roughshod over Harrisonburg High, 60 to 15, while Danville downed Central, 29 to 27, in an overtime thriller.

With Kane and Courtney leading the scorers, making 18 and 16 points, respectively, Eastern won just about as it pleased. At no time during the game did the Harrisonburg team have the lead, and Eastern scored almost at will. Eastern's fast-breaking offense clicked well, and the man-for-man defense was too much for the Virginia school.

Central Loses Thriller.

Danville and Central furnished the thriller of the tournament late this afternoon, when they played overtime until Danville won, 29 to 27.

The Virginia boys got the jump on the District lads, leading them, 6 to 2, at the quarter and, 12 to 7, at the half. In the third quarter Central staged a ferocious rally which knotted the count at 15 to 15. Moulton's field goal put them in the lead for the first time. The crowd was constantly on edge as the game seesawed, with the lead changing five times.

Accurate foul shooting by Wentz gave Danville a 22-to-17 margin which Sidell and Keyser obliterated. Nau finally knotted it, 25 to 25, with a free shot as the game ended. Ramsey put Danville into a 27-to-25 lead as overtime began, but Moulton evened it again. Two free throws by Ramsey gave Danville a victory margin just as the final whistle sounded.

In other games played, Spartanburg beat Hopewell, 25-18; Mount St. Josephs downed Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind, 22-11; Glass High, of Lynchburg, defeated Newport News High, 32-22; Benedictine whipped Camp Chesapeake, 30-18; John Marshall, of Richmond, vanquished Staunton High, 35-11; Lexington traveled overtime to nose out South Boston, 28-22; Tech High, of Atlanta, walloped Covington, Va., High, 34-11, and Durham High defeated Charleston, 16-14.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

LORRAINE GULLI, premier woman bowler of this city, is definitely out of the picture so far as the Greater Washington handicap tournament for women is concerned. It seems that when talk of the tournament first commenced to hum around the bowling alleys she was included in the list of women certain to start, but complications have now developed and she has informed officials in charge of the affair that she has decided not to compete in the event.

It seems that Miss Gulli has an engagement to bowl in Richmond tomorrow which would cause quite a bit of embarrassment if broken. No woman, especially if she is a trifle shy, encourages embarrassment. So she will go to Richmond. Certainly her presence will be missed at Convention Hall, where the tournament will be rolled, and it will mean the loss of color. Victory will be hollow for the winner, for anyone can win a tournament that does not have La Gulli in it, but to win against the incomparable Lorraine is an achievement worthy of the headlines. And how those women love to beat her!

Hyattsville assaulted the maples for a set of 1,840 to win all three from Silver Spring in a Suburban League match rolled at Hyattsville last night. The winners' games were 604, 615 and 621. Oscar Swain was master of ceremonies with a 137 game and 382 total.

We will admit 359 comes nowhere near being as noteworthy as the 497 set Joe Pricci rolled, but to Garvis, in the Interior Department League, it was some pumpkins. It took the prize at Columbia. Oberheim's 139 game was also a winner. Land's 569 and G. H. I.'s 1,638 set topped the teams.

McDonald, of Grace Church, rattled the maples for a 381 set, and Wade, of the Knights of Columbus, paddled the pins for a 150 game, to lead the North of Washington Church loop at Silver Spring. Woodside M. E. was high among the teams with a game of 562 and set of 1,620.

The guns were roaring in the War Department League at Arcadia. At least it sounded like guns, but on investigating the matter it developed that it was only Hart and Lekas mauling the pins for the individual honors of the night. The former had a game of 147 and his partner a 368 set. Panama Canal's 592 game and 1,685 set took the team laurels.

Herald and Post Circulation scored clean sweeps in the Daylight League at Convention Hall yesterday. Bond Bread and Post Composing Room earned 2-1 victories. The Master Printers, Occidental Hotel, Post Press and Evening Star were the victims. A 581 game and 1,613 set by the Post Composers led the teams, while O. Smith's 354 set, which included a 132 game, bagged the individual laurels.

And here's the Ladies' Federal League from Arcadia. Internal Revenue's 556 game, a new season's record for the circuit, enabled it to take the odd one from Labor. Treasury managed to hold on to the top rung of the ladder with a 2-1 victory over Agriculture, and the Commerce Comets rolled a set of 1,479 to win all three from Interstate. The remainder of the matches were decided by the well known odd game. Commerce Juniors, G. P. O., Commerce (itself) War and Economics defeated C. A. O., Mines, Marines, Veterans' Bureau, and Census in such fashion. Cecil Raver's 325 set, and Fanny Ahmay's 128 game accounted for the prizes.

Maryland is still leading the Intercollegiate Alumni League race despite its 3-0 setback at the hands of Lehigh at the Rendezvous alleys last night. Princeton continued its deadlock with the valley boys by whitewashing V. M. I., and also garnered the team honors for the evening with a 561 game and 1,561 total. Cornell, Navy, Dartmouth and Harvard, odd-gamed victories out of Yale, Michigan, Brown and V. P. I. Larry Proctor stole the show with his 132 game and 358 set.

Delaware-Hudson Ties Court Series

Beats Griffiths, 34-31, in Play-Off for Community Loop Title.

Jack Shanklin's long-shot in the last 30 seconds of play, after a free toss by George Beach had broken a tie at 31-all, enabled the Delaware & Hudson tossers to defeat the Griffith Consumers last night, 34 to 31. This was the second game of the play-off for the Community Center League title and gave each team a victory.

It was a thriller all the way with the D. & H. five in front, 12-5, at the half. Beach, with 19 points, led both teams in scoring, with Peck, of the losers only 2 points behind him.

The third and deciding game of the series is being planned as an added feature of the A. A. U. tournament program at Tech High next Tuesday night.

Hyattsville High Wins State Game

Hyattsville High School, champion of Prince Georges County, earned the right to compete in the second round of play for the Maryland State scholastic championship by winning a lopsided 37-4 victory over Solomons High, Calvert County champion, in a weird game played at Ritchie Coliseum yesterday.

Solomons was held scoreless in the second half, and the 4 points it scored in the first half were tallied from the charity stripe. Hyattsville's well-drilled courtmen loafed through the second half, after running up a 17-4 lead in the opening period. McClay, Cogar and Kidwell starred for the victors.

Buchanan Beaten At Maryland Nets

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., March 3.—The annual Maryland State indoor tennis championship tournament became a purely local affair tonight when the lone Washington survivor, William Buchanan, was put out of the running.

The Capital netman was an easy victim for Eddie Jacobs, seeded first, who disposed of his opponent in handy style in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2. The match, which was a semifinal test, was played at the Fifth Regiment Armory.

In the other semifinals engagement, Elmer Rudy, defending champion, defeated Aaron Miller, 6—1, 6—0.

Washingtonians, however, were more successful in the doubles, for Buchanan, coupled with Frank Shore, triumphed over M. Page Andrews and Edward Griepenkerl, 6—3, 6—3, in semifinals.

The former will face in the finals Jacobs and Rudy, who tonight defeated Price Colvin and Aaron Miller, 6—2, 6—2.

Temple U. Ringmen Here Tomorrow in C. U.'s Final

ONE of the strongest college ring teams in the East will show here tomorrow night when Temple University invades to help Catholic University ring down the curtain on the boxing season. The first bout is scheduled for 8 p. m. in the Brookland Gymnasium.

Temple boasts a team of rugged veterans, the same men who suffered a 4½-2½ defeat at the hands of the Cardinals last season. The shoe may be on the other foot tomorrow night as Danny Pyne is the only holdover on the Catholic Team from 1931. Pyne was victorious in his match last season. He, together with Rocco Blasi, who fought two opponents, a middleweight and light-heavyweight, and defeated both; De Pasquale and Maravelias, who earned a draw, accounted for the winning points.

The records of the teams are equally meritorious, both having won three and lost one match, but Temple's victories have been scored against stronger teams than those over which Catholic University gained the verdict. Its only defeat was a 4-3 setback administered by Army. Buckneil is responsible for the only blemish on the Brooklanders' record.

Temple's line-up will be as follows: 115 pounds, Peter D'Alessandro; 125 pounds, Justin Eshelman; 135 pounds, William Beloff; 145 pounds, Walter Gibson; 155 pounds, Capt. Irving Kutcher; 165 pounds, Sammy Neil; 175 pounds, Joe Houbrick. Coach Eddie La Fond has announced the names of only four members of the local team who are certain to start—Pyne, Thibodeau, Gearty and Flynn. The others will be announced tomorrow.

Bliss Will Tackle All-Stars Tonight

Meets Picked Washington Conference Five at Silver Spring.

Bliss Electrical School will play the strong Washington Conference All-Stars tonight in the Silver Spring Auditorium at 8 o'clock. The All-Stars have a combination equal to any that the Engineers have met this season.

Numbered among the collection is Proctor, Understen and Sherman, of the Ben Franklin five, Smith and Dougherty, of the Columbus University, and Rogme and Grasiano, of Strayers. Bliss will have its regular line-up on the floor.

The Electricians will bring a team here next week that is considered one of the strongest visiting fives to play in Washington this year. It is the Westinghouse Club, of Pittsburgh. This organization reached the semi-finals of the A. A. U. court tourney in Pittsburgh recently.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"INJUSTICE"—A WINTER RESORT TRAGEDY.

THE scene is the beach of a Florida resort.

P. Dexter Withers, who has been down from the North for ten days, is stretched on the sands in his bathing suit as his wife approaches, opening a letter.

He—Any news from home?

She—Yes, here's a letter from Eva.

He—What's she say about the weather?

She—She writes that it's just like spring. The warmest winter in 22 years.

He (sourly)—I might've known we'd get a break like that. How about snow? Ain't they had any snow yet?

She (reading)—There hasn't been a sign of bad weather since you left for the South and the pond hasn't frozen over once. The sun has been so hot here that * * *

He (savagely)—She's rubbing it in, that's all. I'm sure she must be wrong. I saw an item in the paper that the worst blizzard of the winter was sweeping across the country tying up traffic and causing indescribable suffering.

She—This was written day before yesterday and she says it was so mild and sunny that people were sitting in the parks without their overcoats on and * * *

He—Well, they'll get pneumonia and it'll serve 'em right. The idea of going around back home without overcoats on! It ain't fair to people who go to Florida for the winter. Eva makes me sick.

She—Why, dear?

He—Writing a letter like that and spoiling our vacation.

She—But how does it spoil our vacation? Aren't you glad people are comfortable back home in lovely spring weather and * * *

He (vehemently)—Of course I'm not glad. I came way down here thinking there'd be zero weather back home and there certainly ought to be. It's a shame if they haven't had a blizzard or anything.

* * * *

She—You don't really begrudge people back home a warm winter.

He (a little ashamed)—Well, if they haven't had any blizzards they ought to keep their mouths shut and not go writing letters boasting about it. What's the use of being a hypocrite? I came down here thinking I was escaping discomforts back North, and so did you. It's no satisfaction being told we didn't.

She—The way you talk, anybody think Providence owed it to you to send a nice big blizzard to the folks back home.

He—Oh, don't try to kid me. You're just as disappointed as I am when you get news that it's just as comfortable home as it is here and that nobody we know has had his feet frozen.

She—How can you say such a thing?

He—Oh, be yourself.

* * * *

(A Mr. Swaffer comes along with a newspaper.)

Mr. Withers—Hello, there! What's that? A paper from the North?

Mr. Swaffer—Yes. The Japs have taken——

Mr. Withers—What's it say about the weather?

Mr. Swaffer—They're having a hot wave.

Mr. Withers—What happened to that blizzard?

Mr. Swaffer—It says here it went out over Canada and did very little damage. Back in New York it says the people flocked to the beaches and 50,000 people went in swimming and——

Mr. Withers (stalking off)—It's an outrage!

QUITE RIGHT.

"Shirt selling is a necessary feature of all market trading, Mr. Whitney said."—Jacksonville Journal. Never a truer word spoken.

* * * *

"Radio City has finally been chosen as the name of the new radio center."—News item. This, we take it, amounts to a final rejection of the suggestion that it be called Mike's place.

* * * *

Short selling, Mr. Richard Whitney told the Senate committee, smooths the waves but never affects the tides. "Once you are swept overboard with no life preservers what difference does it make?" demands Elmer Twitchell.

Used Farm Wagon 65 Years.

Jackson, Mich. (U.P.).—A farm wagon may not be the fastest means of locomotion, but it's about as safe and dependable as any other in the opinion of Almarian Hatt, 76 years old. Hatt has been using one wagon for 65 years. During that time, he said, the wagon has been repaired once. A new tongue was placed on it 20 years ago.

DIVIDEND IS MAILED BY SECURITY FINANCE

Light & Power 1931 Total Drops $83,176 Under Previous Year.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The Security Finance Corporation has just mailed to its stockholders checks covering its thirteenth semi-annual dividend on its preferred stock. This company specializes in the financing of home improvements. Officers and directors of the company are as follows: Claude W. Owen, president; Merritt O. Chance and James B. Evans, vice presidents; William Conradis, secretary; A. H. Brewood, treasurer; Edgar Morris, E. E. Ellett, Harry M. Keyser, Frederick W. Quinter, William C. Hanson and Gen. John L. Chamberlain.

The consolidated income account of Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co., of Baltimore, for the year ended December 31, 1931, shows gross operating revenue of $28,499,247, against $28,582,423 in 1930, a decrease of only $83,176. Operating revenue deductions totaled $18,847,089 for 1931, against $19,318,662, a decline of $471,573, leaving net operating revenue of $9,652,158 for 1931, against $9,263,760, an increase of $388,398, or 4.19 per cent.

Slight Income Drop.

After crediting other income and deducting fixed charges, net income available for dividends and surplus totaled $7,197,483 for 1931, against $7,262,617 for 1930, a recession of less than 1 per cent. Preferred dividends totaled $1,123,407 for 1931, against $1,110,259 for 1930, leaving a balance of $6,074,076 for the common stock, against $6,152,357 in 1930.

The latter was equal to $5.21 earned per common share in 1931 against $5.42 in 1930, based upon the average number of shares outstanding, such shares having increased during 1931. The actual number of shares outstanding December 31, 1931, was 1,167,137 against 1,164,897 on December 31, 1930.

A discussion of the design and construction of the Mount Vernon Memorial highway followed by a sight-seeing trip over the new highway will be the features of the final meeting today of the American Concrete Institute which convened Tuesday at Wardman Park Hotel. R. E. Toms, principal highway engineer, and J. W. Johnson, district engineer, Bureau of Public Roads, will speak.

Prof. S. C. Hollister, professor of structural engineering, Purdue University, and inducted into office as the new president of the institute at a business session yesterday afternoon, will preside at the last session today. It was announced that P. H. Bates, of Washington, D. C., senior member of the board of directors, will probably be selected vice president of the institute at a meeting of the board today.

Hollister to Preside.

Dr. D. A. Abrams, consulting engineer of New York City, retiring president of the institute, was awarded the highest honor given by the institute last night at the annual dinner when he received the Henry C. Turner Gold Medal for "notable chievement in or service to the concrete industry."

It was estimated that approximately 300 scientists, engineers, architects and other experts in the design and use of concrete were in attendance at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the institute.

Cotton Prices Cut By Profit Taking

Trade Buying Absorbs Offerings; Liverpool Records Gains.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—The cotton market was reactionary today under realizing and Southern selling.

Offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying on a scale-down, but prices worked off from 7.19 to 7.06 for May, and the close was rarely steady at net declines of 7 to 9 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 1 point. After the start active months sold about 2 to 4 points net higher, with October advancing to 7.55, but the demand was supplied by Southern selling or realizing at these figures, while prices worked gradually lower.

The failure of the stock market to hold its opening advance was probably a factor on the decline which carried prices off to 7.43 for October, or about 8 to 9 points net lower on the general list. Closing quotations were at the lowest on most positions.

Private cables attributed the advances in the Liverpool market to general buying and covering, influenced by the financial situation. Brokers with Liverpool, continental and Japanese connections were among the buyers here during the early trading, but the demand later seemed to be mostly on scale-down orders, while the bulges were said to be attracting some Southern selling as well as realizing.

A continuance of the steady spot basis was reported in the South, but buyers were said to be less active on the advance.

Stock Prices Close Lower Despite Better Undertone

Bond Market Assumes Boom-time Aspect With Advancements Throughout List; Heavy Loans Granted Carriers Give Hope of Revenue's Upswing.

What the Stock Market Did

	Thurs.	Wed.
Number of advances	285	408
Number of declines	187	90
Stocks unchanged	136	123
Total issues traded	608	611

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Compared with the strong bond market, stocks gave a wishy-washy performance today.

In reacting from an early rally, however, they uncovered a good undertone and although many pivotal issues closed lower, net losses were small. Turnover was slightly less than yesterday, amounting to 1,720,220 shares.

Renewed activity in railroad securities gave the bond market a boom-time aspect. Prices advanced substantially throughout the list, and although there was some realizing in scattered issues, this, in most cases, was readily absorbed.

Hope for the down-trodden carriers was reflected in the recent heavy loans granted several important lines by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and indications that an upturn in traffic revenue might be expected in the near future.

The utility and industrial bonds were not far behind the rails. United States Government obligations were irregular and quiet, and a number of foreign loans were in demand. New highs for the year were reached by Argentine bonds, and British 5½s passed 100 for another 1932 record. Substantial gains also were registered by Japanese issues.

Bond sales totaled $12,667,000.

Wednesday's late rally in the stock market had sufficient carry-over to produce a lively opening, featured by gains of 1 to 2 points and blocks of 1,000 to 7,000 shares. It lacked staying power beyond the first 30 minutes, however, and subsequent attempts to rekindle enthusiasm fell rather flat. Nevertheless, the list seemed unwilling to get out of line with the investment market. Generally speaking, leading shares closed with fractional changes. Declines averaged half a point for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Radio, Westinghouse and Du Pont. Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Western Union, Case and Loew's lost slightly more, but Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Tobacco "B," Woolworth, Allied Chemical and American Can retained part of their initial gains.

American Telephone's 1931 earnings of $9.05 a share had been well discounted and the stock, after rising 1½, closed a point lower.

It hardly seemed probable that the bond market was anticipating another cut in the rediscount rate this week. But the tone of money was easier, time loan rates being reduced by one quarter of 1 per cent. Foreign security markets continued to reflect a better feeling, stimulated in part by recent financial developments in England and also by reports that the Reichsbank's international credit was being reduced by 10 per cent simultaneous with its extension.

London traders were somewhat disappointed at the Bank of England's decision against a rate cut this week, but security prices there had only a brief relapse.

News of the day bearing on domestic trade was light, although estimates of bank clearings for last week said there had been a larger than seasonal gain. Also, steel operations in the important Youngstown district seem to be expanding slowly.

The curb market bulged in the early trading, and retained a fair portion of its advance to the finish, despite persistent profit taking.

The turnover approximated 200,000 shares, although there were fewer signs of pool activity in the low-priced issues. Brokers said bulls were standing by hopefully, awaiting developments which might justify a resumption of activity.

Recent pressure against the Insull issues lifted somewhat, with unconfirmed rumors that a reorganization of the two holding companies, Corporation Securities Corporation and Insull Utility Investment, were being arranged. Commonwealth Edison closed only a fraction lower. Middle West Utilities rose ⅝ of a point to 3½, then reacted to close at 2⅞.

Grain Prices Drop After Advancing

Wheat Shows Effects of Cut in American Export Demand.

Chicago, March 3 (A.P.).—Taking its cue largely from the course of securities, the wheat market today advanced, but then fell back, and closed with slight losses. Stripped of gains, wheat values during the late transactions showed the effects not only to New York stock market downturns, but also of sharp curtailment of North American export demand. Bear sentiment was further emphasized by a forecast that rain or snow would be general throughout the United States winter wheat belt.

Wheat closed unsteady at the day's bottom level, ¼@½ lower than yesterday's finish; corn, unchanged to ¼@⅜ higher; oats, ⅛ off to ½ up, and provisions, 2 to 20 down.

Although Liverpool reported an improvement in European continental demand for wheat, there was no worthwhile reflection of this in purchases from Canada or the United States. Further handicapping wheat bulls here was a late reaction in wheat prices at Liverpool, together with an estimate that Argentine wheat shipments this week were heavy, 6,248,000 bushels, compared with 5,174,000 last week and 4,311,000 at this time last year. Exports of 1,504,000 bushels of rye this week from Russia tended also to cut the ground from under bulls, and to discredit assertions of Russian famine.

Corn and oats developed relative strength owing to prospects that wet weather would retard the marketing of corn from rural sources.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

STOCKS opened on the note of Wednesday's strong rally, but there was no positive news to sustain the early advances and the close was dull on a hesitant downswing. Shorts still are covering at every opportunity. Sales were about 1,800,000 shares.

BONDS displayed independent strength, led by rails and foreign issues. Reconstruction finance loans to the carriers and the cessation of the Shanghai warfare dominated the trade.

CURB stocks followed the big board in a dull finish after a brave beginning. But the closing undertone was decidedly firm.

WHEAT lost Wednesday's gains, principally on poor foreign inquiry. It was almost exclusively a traders' market.

COTTON advanced at the opening, but Southern selling on the bulges ended every rally. The trade was in a narrow range with the close 5 points below Wednesday's.

Money Circulation Drop Is Hailed by Bankers

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Bankers expressed gratification today at the $9,000,000 decrease in currency circulation, recalling that the normal seasonal movement is upward over the period, covering the March 1 settlements, when demands are usually large. It was pointed out that the week's change plainly indicates the flow of rather substantial amounts back to the banks, and this in turn would reflect a decrease in hoarding.

RAIL BOND BANKERS COMPLETE ACTIVITY

Group Formed to Purchase Loans at Bottom Ends Organization.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—The Wall street banking group formed last December to buy railroad bonds when they were kicking around their lowest price levels has been dissolved.

All objects have been achieved, bankers said.

The lion's share of the profit, it was stated, went to private investors quick to act on information that bankers believed the time ripe to buy selected railroad bonds. The bankers' agreement provided for a joint buying movement designed to gather in choice railroad securities on further price reactions. But there were no substantial reactions. The market turned the other way.

While they have been secretive as to the money set aside for investment in the so-calld "banking concert," it was stated today by one man who had a hand in the organization that $50,000,000 was allocated in all for such purchase, of which only $300,000 was actually given a chance to go to work.

The group's profit was placed at $35,000.

Extent of the gains in railroad bonds since the group was formed was clearly registered in yesterday's market averages. The average price of 20 representative railroad bonds at the close of yesterday's market was $758 per $1,000 denomination, a gain of $135 from the December 16 low of $625.

The largest individual gain was recorded by Nickel Plate 6 per cents which mature this year. This bond jumped up $105 in yesterday's market session, selling at one time at $670 per $1,000 unit, a gain of $525 over its low point of $145 reached last December when investors were worried over how the road could meet the maturity of this issue.

PHONE INCOME SETS HIGH MARK FOR 1931

Cuts in Costs and Interest Are Responsible for Gain in Net Earnings.

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—Despite smaller operating revenues for the $5,000,000,000 Bell System, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., parent of the world's largest business enterprise, had a record net income last year.

The company, making public its annual report today, covered its per share dividend requirement in 1931 by a margin equal to the cost of one pay station call—5 cents. Earnings were equal to $9.05 a share against $10.44 in 1930, but were figured on the basis of 18,419,461 shares compared with 15,856,623, the average number outstanding in the previous year.

Curtailment of expenses and a reduction in interest chargest were responsible for the gain in net income, which totaled $166,666,533 against $165,544,707 in 1930 and $166,190,000 in 1929, the previous high record.

The Bell System's total assets, which just topped $5,000,000,000 in 1930, increased last year by approximately $24,000,000. American Telephone's addition to surplus, after paying out $163,588,474, to stockholders, was $3,078,059, bringing total balance sheet surplus to $325,493,925.

Bell System receipts from operations amounted to $1,075,757,273 against $1,103,939,805, a drop of $28,182,532, or 2.6 per cent. Taxes and depreciation rose about $4,000,000 and $10,000,000, respectively, but the system cut expenses by $29,000,000.

The number of Bell telephones in use last year declined 292,000, or less than 2 per cent, as compared with a net gain of 122,500 in 1930. Local calls decreased about 1 per cent while toll and long-distance conversations were 6 per cent fewer than in 1930.

Net additions to plant of $149,000,000 were the smallest since 1930, but replacements and improvements brought the gross construction total to $391,000,000.

Western Electric Co.'s sales declined to $229,000,000 from $361,000,000.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, March 3 (A.P.).—The Brown Shoe Co. is operating at 80 per cent of capacity, manufacturing an average of 50,000 pairs daily. Orders received since November 1 show increases in each month to date over the corresponding months of 1931.

Stockholders of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. increased by 77,209 last year, bringing the total as of December 31 to 644,903. The average holding was 29 shares.

Bradstreet's Food Index declined 1.1 per cent to $1.79, a new low, in the week ended March 1. This was contrary to an expected seasonal rise of four-tenths of 1 per cent.

After a period of comparative harmony in selling policies, leading distributors of cigarettes have again cut prices. The United Cigar Stores Co. of America is reported to have reduced the price of popular brands in New York City to the old level of two packages for a quarter, following similar cuts by leading grocery chains.

Further evidence of improving conditions in the investment market was seen today in the oversubscription reported for a $4,000,000 issue of Virginia Electric & Power Co. 10-year 5½ per cent bonds.

The Harriman Securities Corporation, affiliate of the Harriman National Bank, plans to acquire a large block of Liberty National Bank stock, it was learned today. Liberty National was formed about three years ago by William C. Durant, although it is understood that control now rests elsewhere. No merger with the Harriman bank is contemplated.

Showing the largest earnings in its history, the 1931 statement of the International Business Machine Corporation, issued today, reported net profits of $7,422,388 after depreciation, interest, foreign exchange losses, Federal taxes and other charges. This is equal to $11.08 a share, and compares with 7,357,816 in 1930, or $11.53 a share on a smaller number of shares.

February shipments of the Interlake Iron Corporation were reported as the largest for any month since last June, the improvement being attributed to increased steel demand from the automobile industry and miscellaneous consumers.

The London financial community was distinctly disappointed today when the anticipated reduction in English bank rate failed to materialize, but buying developed on the London stock exchange after an early decline and the session closed cheerful.

Bank clearings, as estimated for last week, showed a larger than seasonal gain, and Youngstown steel operations were said to be still gaining slowly.

$100,000,000 Credit To Germany Renewed

Basel, Switzerland, March 3 (A.P.). The Bank for International Settlements announced today that the $100,000,000 credit to Germany had been renewed for three months.

The credit, which expired today, was granted by the World Bank, the Bank of France, the Bank of England, and the Federal Reserve Bank.

COLUMBUS U. BOXERS IN FINALE

Meet Brooklyn College Tomorrow at Strand.

COLUMBUS UNIVERSITY'S boxers will conclude a successful season tomorrow night when Brooklyn College invades this city for a match at the Strand Theater, starting at 8 p. m.

The Massachusetts avenue ringmen have garnered victories in three of the four matches they have participated in thus far and have excellent prospects of bagging their fourth in the finale. Little is known of the Brooklyn team, but it is safe to say that it does not measure up to the standard of the locals. The only defeat on Columbus' record was put there by the strong City College of New York leather-pushers.

Mike Tardugno, Mickey O'Connor, Harry Allen, Leo Coveleskie, Eddie Marmel, Gus Mirman and "Red" Burke will don the gloves for the home team.

JOHNSON AWAITS TESTS FOR PITCHERS

teaching Bolton and Maple the art of gathering in pop flies.

With the dead-line set for next Monday, only three ball players have yet to sign Washington contracts. These are Manush, West and Judge. They are due to report here on Sunday and take their initial workout the following day. There is no indication that there is a holdout among them.

Young Bud Thomas, the former Washington sandlotter in the Capital City League, continues to impress the camp strategists favorably and it is the consensus that he will make good at Chattanooga, where he is destined to be sent. Thomas' fast ball is his forte.

Another raw recruit, John Boyle, is only 19 years old, but is constructed on the lines of Lefty Grove, a tall, willowy youth, who, unlike Grove, is right-handed. Youngstown, in the Middle Atlantic League, with whom the Nats have a working agreement, is his probable destination.

MORRIS, RED SOX, DEAD OF WOUNDS

the Boston Red Sox during the 1930 and 1931 seasons.

He was a sensation in his first season with the Red Sox in 1928, winning 19 games and losing 15 for a last place club. The following year he continued his excellent work, splitting even in 28 games as the Red Sox again finished in the cellar.

In 1930, however, he participated in only 18 games, winning 4 and losing 9, and last season his record showed 5 victories and 7 defeats in 37 games.

Born in Forshee, Ala., December 7, 1899, Morris began his professional career with Bradenton in 1920, advancing to the class A Chattanooga Club of the Southern Association the following year. He spent the next seven years with Chattanooga, Nashville and Mobile, although he was given trials by the Chicago Cubs in 1922 and the Cincinnati Reds in 1925.

Mobile sold him to the Red Sox at the close of the 1927 season and he was a star there from the start.

During his five years in the majors, Morris participated in 140 games, winning 52 and losing 45 with a club that usually finished in last place. He pitched 774 innings, allowed 680 hits, struck out 251 and walked 287.

Vics and Skinkers Play Again Sunday

Second Game in Semipro Title Series Listed on Silver Spring Floor.

Undaunted by the stinging defeat administered by the Skinker Eagles in their first meeting, Vic's Sport Shop is confident of taking the measure of its rival for the semipro championship when the two clash Sunday at 3 p. m. at Silver Spring.

Vic's is composed of a cocky bunch of youngsters. The teams split the gate receipts of the first game on a 60-40 basis, with the winner receiving the larger portion. This time the Sport Shop wants to play on a winner take all proposition, this despite the fact that the Eagles all but doubled the score on them.

Meanwhile Manager Bernie Peacock, of the Eagles, goes about his daily chores humming the popular song entitled "Everything's Gonna Be All Right." "Why we can beat those chumps any time we feel like it," said Bernie. "And we are going to feel like it Sunday. Why, it gripes me to think that we have to play such punk teams to win the undisputed semipro championship."

Perhaps he is right; perhaps he is wrong. Sunday will bring the answer.

LUCAS, OF REDS, SIGNS CONTRACT

ding prowress, he not only has helped along his own cause with many a timely hit but he also has been one of the best pinch-hitters in the National for the past two or three seasons. The Reds need Red almost as much as Red needs the Reds, and Manager Howley was quite enthusiastic today when he announced that Lucas finally had capitualted and would report shortly.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

four-hour practice session of the St. Louis Browns. It was the third day of stiff training and many of the athletes were complaining of sore muscles.

Catcher Herb Bryant, who had a trial with the New York Yankees in 1929 and played with Wichita Falls last season, joined the squad today. He was a welcome recruit with Ferrell and Bengough, first and second string catchers, still thinking over their contracts.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—A firm believer in correct ballast for baseball players, Manager Burt Shotton today brought out a weighing scale for his Phillies, with a chart above it for recording the facts.

A daily weighing, he announced, will be the order until each overweight man has achieved the right amount of shrinkage. Most of the Phils stepped on the jiggling platform and off again with the calm assurance that comes of having nothing to conceal.

Catcher Virgil L. Davis, however, shot the indicator clear over the bumper at the scale's high mark of 225. He stepped offf with grumbles about "inaccurate" scales.

Palo Alto, Calif., March 3 (A.P.).—Gerald Walker, survivor of the Walker brothers' outfield act on the Detroit Tigers, justified Manager Bucky Harris' retention of his services today by walloping one of Tommy Bridges' pitches over the 460-foot distant wall of the Stanford University sunken playing field today. Dale Alexander is the only other player ever to perform the feat.

To prove it was no fluke, he slammed the next pitch against the top of the wall and the third to the base of the barrier. Harvey Walker was sent to the International League by the Tigers this winter.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 3 (A. P.).—Speed is to be one of the major assets of the Pittsburgh Pirates of 1932. In selecting the players he will carry on the Pirate brig this year, Manager George Gibson is figuring first on flashy work, both on the field and on the base paths. With Comorosky, the Waners, Piet, Groskloss and a half dozen other fast men to start with, Gibby feels he will have one of the speediest clubs in the majors.

Opening of the camp games was postponed until tomorrow.

Bradenton, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Cardinal pitchers held their first bunt-fielding drill today and Manager Gabby Street watched the work of his new hurlers, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, Tex Carleton, Ray Starr and Bud Teachout.

Street said it will be difficult to decide when time comes to reduce the mound corps from twelve to nine men.

There will be a morning workout tomorrow, the final session before the opening game of the exhibition schedule with the Athletics at Miami, Saturday.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—Pitcher Bruce Cunningham today became the first Boston Brave casualty of the season. A line drive hit by "Pink" Hargrave struck him on the back of his gloved hand and forced his retirement from the practice session.

Manager Bill McKechnie prolonged the practice for three hours, Waterfront Park being so soaked by dew, the morning session was cancelled.

Mrs. Walter Maranville, wife of the veteran infielder, who arrived two days ago, received word of her brother's sudden death in Rochester, N. Y., and left for home later.

New Orleans, La., March 3 (A.P.).—Battle was in the air at the Cleveland training camp today with first base as its locale. Impending conflict was scented when Eddie Morgan, late holdout, issued forth armed with a first baseman's glove to do battle with the pretender to the position, Bruce Connatser.

Morgan will get a chance to redeem his miserable showing at first last season, was voiced by Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, who declared that should Morgan field his position as he did two years ago when he took Lew Fonseca's place, teh former Tulane star can hold the job. Peck is interested in keeping Morgan in the line-up on the strength of his .350 batting average.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3 (U.P.).—Tony Lazzeri, recently signed New York Yankee shortstop, took part in his first workout of the season today, giving the Yanks a perfect attendance. Lyn Lary has been playing great ball at short and it appears the Yankee position will not go to Frank Crossetti, high-priced rookie from the Far Coast, without an earnest fight.

Clearwater, Fla., March 3 (U.P.).—Yannigans beat regulars today as the Brooklyn Dodger squad played a six-inning game. The score was 9 to 2. Engle, Moore and Gallivan pitched for the Yannigans, while Vickers, Krider and Mattingly were regular hurlers. Ike Boone hit a homer off Gallivan. Hack Wilson, making his second appearance in a Dodger uniform, was hitless in two turns.

TONY SANTINI SETS PIN RECORD

Rolls 190 Game as He and Pacini Win at Richmond.

Special to The Washington Post.

RICHMOND, Va., March 3—Tony Santini and Ollie Pacini, crack Italian doubles pair of Washington, made a clean sweep in their matches against Richmond talent at the Health Center, No. 1, alleys this afternoon and tonight, with a powerful single game of 190 by Santini featuring the games. Tony's great game sets a new all-time Richmond record, beating Benny Campbell's former mark by eight pins.

Northern Preps Rout Ingram Church, 28-9

The 130-pound Northern Preps outclassed the Ingram Church five by a 28-9 score. The Preps, who were held to a 9-7 score in the first half mainly due to haphazard long shooting, changed their tactics in the final half and walked away with the game. Mitchell led the Preps' attack with six field goals and a foul for 13 points. Wonneberger made two field goals for the Churchmen, who battled to the end against a better team.

2 Changes in A. A. U. Schedule for Tonight

Two changes in the schedule of games for the A. A. U. tournament tonight were made by the basket ball committee. The Y. M. C. A. Flashes and Brightwood Indians will play at 8 o'clock with the St. John's-Arcadians due to clash tomorrow.

Fort Washington will make its debut against the Logan A. C. at 9 o'clock with the Potomac Boat Club-Northern Prep game delayed until next week.

SQUAD OF 44 OUT FOR G.U. BASEBALL

Mound Staff Chief Worry of Coach Clayton Sheedy.

HEADED by Capt. Johnny Evers, son of the famous Chicago second baseman, 44 candidates for the Georgetown baseball team yesterday reported to Coach Clayton Sheedy for the initial outdoor drill of the year. Despite the fact that ten members of the squad are holdovers from last season, Sheedy faces a gigantic task in molding a capable nine, measuring up to Georgetown standards, from the materials on hand.

Evers, Kilgallen and Trodden provide him with the nucleus for an outfield, and Bill Rapp, slugging third baseman, Dick King and Donato will make the task of selecting an infield considerably easier, but it is the battery candidates who will cause the Hilltop mentor real anxiety.

Heaney and Nosesky are the only veteran moundsmen in the fold, while Bandzul and Orifice are the catchers back from last season. The team will not lack for candidates for the hurling berths, as ten of the newcomers claim to be twirlers, but it remains to be seen whether numerical strength can offset the lack of experience. Walsh, G. Crowley, Healy, Lawlel, O'Connell, Hooke, J. Crowley, E. Katalinas, Newkirk and Carpenter are the prospective pitchers. The two veteran backstoppers of the team will be aided by Sullivan, Felix and Daugherty. There are eight new candidates for outfield positions, and fifteen for the infield.

Spring football practice will begin Monday at the Hilltop. Coach Tom Mills expects at least 50 men to report.

GRIFF NINE MEETS.

"Wee Willie" Glascoe, manager of the Griffith-Blue Coals baseball team, has called a meeting of the team for Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the clubhouse, 8 Fourth street northeast. All of last year's players and any new candidates are requested to attend.

St. John and Gonzaga Clash

Battle Tonight Ends Successful Season for Saints.

WITH the exception of the A. A. U. tournament, finis will be written to the local scholastic basket ball season tonight when St. John's, champion of the prep schools, clashes with its traditional foe, Gonzaga, at 8:15 o'clock in the Vermont avenue gym. It will be their second meeting this season, St. John's having won the first game by a wide margin.

The game will mark the final appearance of seven cadets, four of whom are regulars, who are scheduled to graduate in June. Mike Scanlon, Fred Scheele, "Gabby" Hartnett and "Ike" Brien, the regulars, and George Scheele, Smith and Mahoney, are the boys who will be playing in scarlet livery for the last time.

Gonzaga, hit hard by the loss of three regulars in midseason, has improved greatly since its first meeting with the Johnnies and there is a possibility that it may turn the tables in tonight's game. In Lao and Hall, Coach Orrell Mitchell has two of the cleverest floormen in schoolboy ranks.

Howard U. Plays N. Y. City College

Bisons Play First Major Interracial Game for Charity Tonight.

The Bison Quint of Howard University will meet the City College of New York five in a charity basket ball game in Rockland Palace, New York, tomorrow night in the first interracial game staged between major educational institutions. All of the proceeds of the game will go to charity, and will be divided between the Harlem emergency unemployment committee and the Community Chest.

Personal interest of Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, Howard president, and Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, president of City College, has been expressed in the game. New York was chosen for the contest because of the likelihood of a larger attendance. City College has been defeated only twice this season, while Howard has shown exceptional ability in spurts, winning her first five games against keen competition, and including in her list of victories one over Morgan, of Baltimore, on its own court, a feat not accomplished by any team previously since 1925.

JURY IS DISCHARGED BY JUSTICE PROCTOR BECAUSE OF FINDING

Jurors Are Lectured After Freeing Prisoner in Lunchroom Robbery.

GUILTY PLEA ENTERED BY MAN'S COMPANION

Verdict Is Called "Travesty on Justice;" New Panel Will Be Called.

One of the most dramatic endings ever seen in a criminal court trial in District Supreme Court was enacted late yesterday when Justice James M. Proctor first angrily lectured a jury of four women and eight men and then summarily discharged them from further service, though they had only been sworn in the day previous.

The jurors had reported a finding of "not guilty" in the trial of Edward H. Gavard, a young white man, who was charged with robbery in connection with the robbing of the P. O. Visible Lunchroom, 727 North Capitol street, in which two men obtained $25 at pistols' point January 8.

Companion Pleads Guilty.

Gavard, according to courthouse attaches, had said that he was present at the time, but that he was motivated by fear of his companion, who has entered a plea of guilty.

When the jurors filed into the courtroom Chief Criminal Clerk William S. Adkins asked for the verdict. As the foreman reported a finding of not guilty, Justice Proctor seemed stunned. After directing an inquiry to determine the correctness of the decision, the justice vehemently lectured the jurors.

Criticism by Justice.

"Your verdict is a travesty on justice. It is a miscarriage of justice. It is an open invitation to the citizens of Washington to commit brigandage. You are forthwith discharged from further service as jurors."

The jurors silently filed from their jury box and left the courtroom. They were: William C. Lakin, John H. Ledger, F. W. Loetsch, Bertram Longstreet, Mrs. Marguerite S. Lord, James C. Perrie, jr., Mrs. Gladys C. Rodgers, Bertram C. Robertson, Edward A. Rule, Mrs. Nellie I. Russell, Mrs. Helen E. Steinberger and Richard I. Wade.

As a result of the discharge, another panel of criminal jurors will have to be summoned.

GLASSFORD FAVORS USING RUM AUTOS

Chief Wants Police to Take Pick of Confiscated Cars for Law Enforcing.

The Police Department should be able to take its pick of the automobiles confiscated because of liquor violations or other reasons, in the opinion of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police.

This view was expressed by the police chief yesterday in discussing his recent statement that "we are only scratching the surface" with regard to the enforcement of dry laws in the District of Columbia.

Efficiency of the department with regard to the dry laws and other responsibilities would be increased considerably if its present rolling stock were augmented by the confiscated vehicles, Brig. Gen. Glassford believes.

Backing up his statement that the dry laws are not being adequately enforced, he cited statistics indicating 6,375 arrests for intoxication in 1922, as against 16,408 similar arrests in 1931.

Gen. Glassford is having aids make a study of statutes and other precedents relative to confiscated cars. With the completion of this survey he expects to know whether he can make any definite move toward obtaining use of the confiscated automobiles.

Jury Talk Balks Gambling Hearing

Familiarity of Jurors With Gaming Device Brings Mistrial.

When several members of a Police Court jury that was hearing a gambling case yesterday audibly chatted about a mechanical contraption that was alleged by the Government to be a gambling device, Judge Ralph Given halted the trial and directed that a mistrial be entered. The jurors were not discharged.

The case was that of Albert Kodok, who was charged with permitting gaming. He had a machine that gave out a small piece of candy with every "play" and when policemen showed the machine and began explaining how it worked, several of the jurors chimed in with remarks.

The case will be retried next Wednesday.

Pageant of Washington Given by Drama Club

A pageant entitled "Living Pages From Washington's Diary," was given last night by the Southeast Community Center Drama Club at the Buchanan Auditorium, Thirteenth and D streets southeast.

Lewis Hisen portrayed George Washington, and his wife, Mabel Hisen, enacted Martha Washington. The chorus comprised pupils of Elliott Junior High School. A colonial costume dance was held after the pageant at which Horace R. Higgins and Miss Vivian Kern were awarded prizes for the best costumes.

Officers Elected By Al Smith Club

Walmsley New President; Hoover Administration Scored in Speeches.

The Al Smith Club of Washington last night elected officers and enthusiastically applauded speeches critical of the Hoover administration and laudatory of Democratic regimes.

Bert Walmsley was elected president of the club, Mrs. L. Gauzza, vice president; W. M. Greer, treasurer; Harold B. Foulkrod, secretary; John J. Cain, sergeant at arms, and A. J. Verschelden, publicity chairman.

Mr. Foulkrod made the principal address, criticizing economic conditions he alleged were brought about by the present administration. He said 7,000 banks have failed under the Hoover administration, while only 200 failed during the Wilson regime.

Fight Waged For N'Gi Seen As Paradox

The fight which is being waged by medical experts to save the life of N'Gi, the gorilla, could scarcely be the object of a quarrel if the same efforts were made to wipe out abortionists, the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, professor of philosophy at Catholic University, told a congregation last night in the Sacred Heart Church.

Akin to the paradoxical sentimentality attached to animals, Father Smith pointed out, is the "silly and even criminal attempt to handicap and handcuff the police department in its treatment of outlaws," by curtailment of the so-called "third degree."

With reference to N'Gi, Father Smith said: "Does the passing of an animal mean more than the passing of the life of a man? Out at the zoo is being enacted a scene that is commanding the attention of the whole country. Medical experts are mobilized with expensive equipment to save the life of a gorilla. Whether this is humanity, publicity or science, no one knows yet. And little quarrel could be had if the same efforts were made to wipe out abortionists * * * who make a specialty of killing the unwanted babies of unnatural mothers."

Referring to "third degree" practices, Father Smith said: "No one likes cruelty or suffering, but no surgeon will attempt a major operation with a powder puff or a lipstick. Distasteful as is the third degree, it must be remembered that you can not make a crook tell the truth by giving him a five-pound box of chocolates. Sentimental regards for the feelings of crooks has raised up an impudent and defiant class of criminals that is threatening the lives and property of thousands of our citizens."

Small Fire at G. W. U. Ties Up Nearby Traffic

A quantity of trash and several oil mops, which caught fire last night in a closet on the first floor of the George Washington Medical School, 1335 H street northwest, brought out a number of downtown fire companies, tied up traffic for some time and caused a flurry of excitement throughout George Washington University Hospital, which occupies an adjoining building.

Dense smoke issuing from the front of the school attracted the attention of pedestrians and motorists, who sounded an alarm. No one was in the building at the time and the blaze was quickly extinguished. Slight damage was done to a small storeroom housing the mops. The origin of the fire was not determined.

Glassford Details Aims to Kiwanians

Outlines Police Purposes; Club Votes $1,000 for Camp Kitchen.

"Criminals and traffic are the two problems that police contend with," Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford told Kiwanians at their luncheon meeting yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel. Criticism of police tactics always is present and every question has positive and negative features, he asserted.

"The purpose of the Police Department is to make this city the most safe and comfortable to live in, and that's what we're going to do," he said. Edwin F. Hill, vice president of the Kiwanis Club, presided at the meeting.

An appropriation of $1,000 was voted for the erection of a larger kitchen at "Camp Good Will." The camp is a social project sponsored by the club. Entertainment was furnished by Ruth Rodeheaver Thomas and Mrs. Mary Atkinson, who will participate in "Evenin' in the South," a concert for the benefit of the Children's Emergency Home at the Willard Hotel tonight.

ATTORNEY IS KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

William Horgan, 52, Victim of Accident on Road Near Rosslyn.

William Horgan, 52 years old, of 4323 New Hampshire avenue, Washington, former Commonwealth attorney of Fauquier County Va., brother of Dr. Joseph Horgan, prominent local surgeon, was instantly killed when struck by an automobile on the Lee highway near Rosslyn, Va., yesterday morning. He was pronounced dead at Georgetown Hospital.

Mr. Horgan, who had his law office at Warrenton, Va., according to the county police, was riding in an automobile with A. C. Hutchinson and R. L. Travers, of Warrenton, and when reaching a point opposite the Bergmann's Laundry they parked their car. Hutchinson was said to have been driving the car. He with Mr. Horgan were about to cross the highway in the direction of the laundry when Mr. Horgan was struck by an approaching automobile operated by Thomas Tinsman, 21 years old, who gave his address as 75 Harrison street, Cherrydale. Hugh Reid, jr., son of Delegate Reid, was a passenger in the car.

Mr. Horgan was taken to the hospital by William A. Warren, of Washington.

Tinsman, who was operating a car said by police to belong to G. W. Stratton, of Cherrydale, was taken to the Arlington County Jail by Officer Raymond Crack, where he was later questioned by Commonwealth Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas.

He was held for further investigation and later released on $1,500 bond. A hearing will be held on Monday morning.

He is survived by his widow, and three daughters, Margaret, Virginia and Betty, and two sons, Charles and Jack Horgan.

Funeral arrangements will be announced.

$721,800 Is Requested For Bolling Field Work

A companion bill to the $15,000,000 Army housing measure reported to the House Monday, the bill provides appropriations for 26 posts in the United States, Hawaii and the Panama Canal Zone.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS DISPLAY STRONG BID FOR TOURNEY PRIZE

"Quare Medicine" Feature of Community Center's Second Round.

2 OTHERS ON PROGRAM LAID IN COLONIAL TIMES

Offering of Pierce Hall Actors Is Postponed by Illness in Cast.

"Quare Medicine," a play by Paul Green, the entry of the Columbia Players, featured the second round of the District's 1932 one-act play tournament at Eastern High School last night.

Far above the amateur class, this vivid picture of a farmhouse family in North Carolina is superior to any play given thus far in the present tournament and was thought by many in the audience last night to transcend the prize-winning play of last year.

Orris Holland, who directed the play and also played the part of the quack medicine man, gave a performance that would do credit to any actor on the professional stage. Frank Jamison, as the father, contributed a splendid character portrayal, and equally fine character work was done by Aurora Poston and Willard Miller as wife and husband. Mr. Miller supplanted H. R. Baukhage, who was ill.

Power of Psychology.

The play reveals the power of psychology when the quack medicine man bluffs the harassed father and husband into subjugating the fanatical wife of the household. It is packed with tense drama and hilarious comedy.

The two other plays on the program were in the period of George Washington. "The Trying Time," produced by the North Carolina Avenue Players, was written by Frances G. Donovan, a Washington girl. Miss Donovan also directed the play and took a leading part. Others in the cast were William Hayghe, Helen Foley, Edgar Doorman and Hummer Acton, who supplanted Mynor McIntyre, who was ill. The players deserve credit for surmounting a number of difficulties, such as illness, which disrupted rehearsals and forced last-mnute switches in the cast.

Dramatic Climax.

The other Washington play, presented by the Rebecca Dial Studio Players from the Institute of Musical Art, was entitled "Martha Washington at Valley Forge." Mary Black took the part of Martha Washington; Jessie Holt, the wife of Gen. Nathaniel Greene; Pemberton Thacker, the wife of Gen. Henry Knox; Viola Reed and Betty May Brown, colored servants, and Theodore Tiller, a deserter.

The high point of the play is reached when Mrs. Washington persuades the deserter to return to camp. The play was written by C. Antoinette Wood and directed by Rebecca Dial.

"The Stoker," the Pierce Hall Players' offering, was postponed until next Tuesday because of illness of a member of the cast. The tournament is being conducted by the Community Cenetr Department and the Drama Guild of Washington.

3 Claiming Inventor's Body As Wealth Prospects Loom

Oscar Sperling, Recently Killed in Auto Accident, Was Designer of Ice Machine; Has no Relatives in United States.

A Louisville, Ga., undertaker who has become temporary administrator for the estate of Oscar Sperling, 52 years old, is faced with a problem as to the disposition of the body and estate, according to Associated Press dispatches from the Georgia town. The undertaker, William G. Taylor, revealed yesterday that at least three women were interested in Sperling's burial.

George A. Ash, jr., of 1236 Shepherd street northwest, who was with the consulting engineer and inventor at the time he was instantly killed in an automobile accident 10 miles from Louisville ten days ago, said last night that Sperling had no relatives in this country and had mentioned no women friends.

Since Sperling's death, however, he said he had received a letter from a Gary, Ind., woman claiming that her sister was engaged to the man and asking information about him.

Mr. Ash said that the inventor, who lived at 1400 L street northwest, was out of work, but before they left for Miami showed him a telegram from South American interests offering $200,000 for a dry icemaking machine Sperling had invented as soon as a successful demonstration could be made. Sperling is said to be survived by a brother in Sweden.

In Louisville, Mr. Taylor said he had not located any relatives. Through advice of counsel he wrote the Swedish consulate in Savannah, asking advice.

Evidence of a personal fortune in store for Sperling at the time of his death was found by Mr. Taylor, and among his personal effects was the telegram offering $200,000 for the ice machine and other papers showing that patents on that machine and other practical inventions had been received by Sperling.

A woman who said she was Miss Glendora Butcher came to Louisville a few days ago from Miami, told the undertaker she was Sperling's fiancee and paid Taylor $100 in cash for a vault for the body, but never made other arrangements for burial.

The Louisville chief of police received a letter from the Gary woman, and the postmaster received an inquiry about Sperling from a woman in Yoakum, Tex.

HOUSE GROUP LIKELY TO PASS UTILITY BILL

Original Measure for Merger of Traction Firms Is Favored by Black.

The traction consolidation bill as originally drawn by the Public Utilities Commission, before conflicting amendments left the issue in the air, will be favorably reported by the utilities subcommittee of the House District committee, Chairman Loring M. Black, jr., said last night.

Representative Black said he had conferred with members of the subcommittee, who seem to be in agreement on the original bill. He will not call the committee together for a vote, however, for about two weeks, he said.

Meanwhile the Senate District committee, which has completed hearings on the measure, is receiving amended drafts of the original groups from all of the parties at interest. They may vote on the bill next week, Chairman Arthur Capper indicated.

The Public Utilities Commission has amended its original bill to exclude the merged company from operation of taxicabs, and Peoples Counsel Richmond B. Keech concurred in the amendment. Vigorous dissent was registered by the traction companies, however, in their amended draft.

Peoples Counsel Keech further attacked the validity of existing power contracts under the merger, and urged adoption of universal transfers between street cars and buses. The Commissioners in their bill, oppose traction companies unloading the paving burden they now bear altogether on the District.

William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, has yet to submit his amended draft. He will recommend universal transfers and a guarantee of continued reduced fares for school children.

SCHOOL PLEA IS SET BY CITIZENS' GROUP

Mass Meeting to Protest Taft Junior Delay Aim of Burroughs Body.

With the chances of an appropriation for the proposed Taft Junior High deemed improbable and with the possibility that last year's appropriation of $250,000 may be reallocated by Congress, the Burroughs Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution urging that the item be retained in the District budget and initiated plans for a mass meeting of protest to be held next week.

The probable unfavorable action of the House subcommittee of the committee on appropriations was brought to the association's attention by Kenneth P. Armstrong, chairman of the group's education committee, who stated that Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, advised him yesterday that he thought the subcommittee would eliminate the wanted $200,000 and might force the abandonment of the project by canceling last year's action.

Mr. Armstrong said that the appropriation was being opposed subversively by a minority group of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association. The mass meeting, through which the community's wishes for the school construction will be crystalized, will be engineered through the Northeast Joint Civic Federation, which includes the Burroughs, Michigan Park, Dahlgren Terrace and Brookland Citizens Associations. The Rhode Island Avenue group will be asked to attend.

The proposed school is to be built at Eighteenth and Perry streets northeast. Although it was authorized last year, the District government has not yet advertised for bids for its construction. According to the Burroughs group, the municipal architect has not completed the plans.

ADDED SCHOOL FUND ASKED IN PETITIONS AS HEARINGS CLOSE

Committee Members Begin Tour Tomorrow of New Building Sites.

"MARKING" OF MEASURE WILL START NEXT WEEK

150 Citizens Appear Before House Group; Delegation Asks for Stadium.

Besieged with civic petitions for additional school facilities, the District appropriations subcommittee yesterday completed hearings on Washington's $47,000,000 budget, with prospects none too bright that any single item will be increased.

Tomorrow committee members will begin a tour of new building sites and streets scheduled for repair. Early next week the group will begin "marking" the bill, which probably will be reported soon after the House disposes of its tax problems.

Approximately 150 citizens appeared before the committee yesterday, most of them representing independent school organizations, defending estimates in the budget, or seeking additions. All morning and most of the afternoon they streamed past Chairman Clarence Cannon's subcommittee, which had previously announced only "emergency" items will be added to the bill as drawn.

Williams Heads Group.

Edward R. Williams, president of the Business High School Parent-Teacher Association, led the largest single delegation. Thirty-two civic organizations, including the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Washington Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade, appeared in support of his petition for $105,000 in additional funds with which to build a stadium for the new Roosevelt High School.

A delegation representing Western High School Home and School Association asked the committee to make immediately available on passage of the bill, $50,000 for preparation of plans for the new Reno High School. Western is now overcrowded, the committee was told.

"Completion of new Reno High School in the only relief in sight for present congested conditions at Western," Charles V. Imlay, president of the association, told the committee. "Western now has 1,700 students enrolled, and accommodations for only 1,500. Lacking relief, a double shift system may again have to be instituted."

Rastall Cites Figures.

William H. Rastall, chairman of the association's legislative committee, cited figures to show that need for a new high school is not a mere temporary demand, but a permanent necessity.

Headed by Kenneth P. Armstrong, a delegation from the Burroughs Citizens Association asked approval of estimates for completion of the Taft Junior High School, and additional funds for the purchase of a site for a new elementary school at Twenty-fourth and Randolph streets northeast.

Approval of a $70,000 item for renovation of the Kenilworth School was asked by the Kenilworth Citizens Association.

Allotment of 33.9 per cent of funds for the colored divisions to buildings and grounds, as originally recommended by the Board of Education, was recommended by the Federation of Civic Associations.

Ham Attacks Proposal.

William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., objected to his company paying any part of the cost of the new Benning and P street bridges, provided for in the bill, in testifying before the committee.

Estimates of $225,000 for the Roosevelt High School Stadium were cut out of the budget by the District Commissioners. The Budget Bureau substituted a $135,000 item for completion of construction and improvement of grounds.

"We have been informed by the budget officer that $9,800 left over from the building contract will be added to the $136,000, making $144,800, and that a deduction of $25,000 for painting, electric fixtures and equipment leaves $119,800 for improvement of grounds, including grading, sodding and seeding," Mr. Williams told the committee. "This does not include building of the stadium."

Described As Necessary.

George E. Sullivan, vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, pointed out that every other high school here is provided with a stadium, a necessary facility for growing children. He added:

"The taxpaying citizens of this District are always willing to pay their full share of such taxes as are necessitated by what is fair and reasonable in the public interest, and it is noteworthy that the District school system is being enjoyed by a great number of nonresident children, particularly from Maryland and Virginia.

A petition outlining the delegation's request was read by Miss Margaret R. Ryan.

Raiders Seize Still And Destroy Liquor

A 50-gallon still and 200 gallons of mash were seized last night by Privates J. J. Hunter and R. W. Hopkins, of the Third Precinct, in a house at 2402 I street northwest.

The police said they had a tip the still was in the basement of the house and secured a search warrant. They found no one in the house. They destroyed the mash and brought the still to the precinct station.

Man Under $6,500 Rum Bond.

Raymond D. Dorsey, colored, was held under $6,500 bond yesterday when arraigned in Police Court on charges of transporting liquor and possessing a smoke screen. Policemen R. A. Williams and H. G. Bauer said they arrested Dorsey when they pursued some men they had seen unloading liquor from an automobile in an alley between Corcoran and Q streets northwest.

Wakefield Masque Player Becomes Bride of Artist

After a rapid courtship of less than a fortnight, Virginia H. Alexander, of 3937 Livingston street, Chevy Chase, a character in Percy MacKaye's "Wakefield Masque," was married yesterday by Judge Robert E. Mattingly to Charles Battley, 23 years old, of 217 F street northwest, an artist.

Mrs. Battley was graduated from Central High School and also attended Strayer's Business College. She was also a member of the Caroline McKinley dancing class. Her father, George H. Alexander, is employed at the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Mr. Battley formerly did art work at the Club Michel at Thomas Circle, and is now engaged in similar work at the Crystal Caverns Night Club. They have not decided where they will make their home. Mr. Battley was at his place of employment last night.

Auto Is Bumped Into Park; Hit-Run Trolley Sought

The driver of a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car is being sought as the result of an accident last night in which an automobile was struck amidships and thrown 25 feet into a small park at Third and H streets northwest.

Witnesses said the motorman of the street car stopped and took the license number of the automobile, then got back on his car and drove away.

Alfred Grieg, 52 years old, of 720 Allison street northwest, driver of the automobile, escaped injury in the crash, but his nerves were rubbed slightly raw.

Mr. Krieg was northbound on Third street when the westbound street car crashed into the side of his machine, bumped it along for about 25 feet and left it in the park, badly damaged.
